U. S. to Seek Quick Trial Of Collazo For Murder

Fay Will Press Charge in Death Of Pvt. Coffelt At Blair House

By Jean Reiff
and Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporters

Federal prosecutors said yesterday they would seek a speedy trial of Oscar Collazo, Puerto Rican Nationalist, on a first-degree murder charge for the slaying of a White House policeman.

Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, 40, was killed in a gun battle in front of the Blair House Wednesday, when Collazo and an accomplice, Griselio Torresola, tried to assassinate President Truman. Torresola also was killed in the exchange of bullets.

The case against Colazzo probably will be presented to the grand jury next week, George Morris Fay, United States attorney, said yesterday.

Police now believe it is almost certain Torresola and Coffelt killed each other. They based this conclusion on the positions of the slain men and the course of the bullets. The FBI, however, is making ballistic tests to determine which of the seven guns fired by the two assassins and five White House policemen carried the fatal bullets.

Collazo and two of the policemen, Donald T. Birdzell, 42, and Joseph H. Downs, 44, were wounded in the affray.

Truman Visits Officers

President Truman yesterday paid a brief visit to the Emergency Hospital room of the two policemen to express his "deep gratitude" for what they did to protect him.

He walked the few blocks to the hospital from Blair House, accompanied by a heavy guard, and chatted with Birdzell and Downs for 5 or 10 minutes. When he left, he ordered that fresh flowers be sent to them daily.

The President said his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, who is attending the two wounded men, told him both were "getting along well." The hospital, however, still carries Downs, who was shot in the chest, abdomen and head, as being in critical condition. Birdzell's condition is good. He was hit in both legs.

Car Stop Discontinued

As another step in protection of the President, the Capital Transit Co., on order of the District Public Utilities Commission, yesterday discontinued the westbound streetcar stop on Pennsylvania ave. just east of Jackson pl. nw. and less than a block from Blair House.

The stop was a heavy transfer point between streetcars and the U-2 (Kenilworth), X-2 (Seat Pleasant) and E-2 (Woodridge) buses. Streetcar passengers will now be discharged on Pennsylvania ave. just east of Madison pl. Buses

Widow, Mourning Police Hero, Glad Executive Was Spared

By Arthur Ellis-The Washington Post
Mrs. Leslie Coffelt, whose husband died defending the President

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

If her husband or President Truman had to be killed, she is glad the President was saved, the widow of the slain White House policeman said yesterday.

"He's gone, I know, I had to give him up—and, oh, I'll miss him." Mrs. Leslie Coffelt sobbed. "But if it was God's will that someone had to go, I'm glad the President was spared. I feel the Lord has a more important job for the President to do, he has such a great job before him, so He preserved him."

Choked with tears and grief, the black-clad widow said:

"My husband loved the President. He always said: 'Honey, he's a man—a real man. I've got a job to do—take care of him—and I'm going to do it.' Well, he took care of him."

Mrs. Coffelt talked to a reporter on the eve of the funeral today of big Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, who was every inch a man himself. He fell in the defense of the President, his gun blazing away at a would-be assassin.

President and Mrs. Truman will be among the mourners at the services in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial of the slain hero, a World War II veteran, will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Through her tears, Mrs. Coffelt was showing great courage herself yesterday, taking refuge in the belief that "it was God's will" and that her husband was "brave—he was a hero."

"Even as late as last week he said to me: 'You know, honey, we never know when we're going. We should be ready.' It is a great comfort to know that he was ready. He was a fine Christian man.

"If it was God's will . . ." she kept repeating between sobs, and the walls of the living room gave back the voiceless answer.

"General Graham (the White House physician) told me that my husband died praying. He was so

Truman Gets RecordHookup For Tonight

President Truman makes his only avowed political speech of the 1950 campaign in St. Louis tonight, and the Democrats expect he will have an immense radio and television audience.

Mr. Truman will speak in the Kiel Auditorium at 9 o'clock St. Louis time (10 p. m. Washington time). His words will be carried on the largest radio and television hookup in history—1200 radio and 76 television stations.

The Democratic National Committee, which is paying about $100,000 for the hookup, estimates Mr. Truman will be heard by 66,500,000 citizens, approximately 44 percent of the population.

It will be the first time Americans have heard from the Chief Executive since two Puerto Rican fanatics made a vain attempt to assassinate him on All Souls' Day.

The Republicans will have one of their own orators waiting to answer Mr. Truman. Harold E. Stassen will speak over a 521-station hookup of the Mutual network from New Haven, Conn., immediately after Mr. Truman.

The President and members of his entourage will take off this afternoon in the Independence, land at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, and then motor into St. Louis.

Traveling with Mr. Truman will be Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross and Mrs. Ross, Secretary Matthew J. Connelly, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Brig. Gen. Robert B. Landry, Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, William M. Boyle, jr., chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Rear Adm. Sidney W. Souers, USN (retired); Charles Van Devander, publicity director for the Democratic National Committee; Fred Canfil, U. S. Marshal for Kansas City; Miss Rose Conway, the President's personal secretary; Jack Romagna, official White House stenographer, and Miss Elizabeth Smith, acting secretary to Mr. Snyder.

Truman Escape From Death Brings Message From Tito

BELGRADE, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—Premier Marshal Tito congratulated President Truman "warmly" today on his escape from assassination.

The message read: "Mr. President, allow me to congratulate you warmly in connection with the unsuccessful terroristic act against your person."

FCC Upholds Phone Cutoff In Gambling

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

A Federal Communications Commission ruling yesterday reaffirmed the right of telephone companies to remove telephones when there is evidence of use for gambling or other illegal purposes.

The ruling was on a District case which stemmed from a 1949 attempt of George Morris Fay, United States attorney, to remove 300 suspected telephones as a means of curtailing District gambling.

The FCC order—which technically is only the recommendation of the FCC examiner who heard the case—will become final if no objections are filed within 40 days.

FCC acted on a complaint by Harry and Bertha Katz of 3169 Walbridge pl. nw., who said they were threatened with loss of telephone service last year without "adequate notice of hearing."

The Chesapeake & Potomac Co. had notified the Katzes March 30, 1949, that their telephone would be removed on April 6.

The company said it was discontinuing service on request of Fay, who had stated he had "competetent evidence" Katz was using his telephone in violation of the antigambling laws.

Katz brought an injunction suit against the company and Fay, whereupon the case was dropped on agreement of all parties. The FCC ruling yesterday recommended dismissal of the Katz complaint.

John L. Ingoldsby, jr., attorney for the Katzes, said last night he will object to yesterday's preliminary ruling, thus forcing a final ruling by the full commission.

Actually, Ingoldsby is seeking a court test on a telephone company regulation which became effective April 18, 1949.

This regulation, originally recommended by the FCC, states:

"The service is furnished subject to the condition that it will not be used for an unlawful purpose. Service will not be furnished if any law enforcement agency, acting within its jurisdiction, advises that such service is being used, or will be used in violation of the law, and if the telephone company receives other evidence that such service is being or will be used."

Ingoldsby contended his clients' constitutional rights were violated by the company in that no hearing is provided prior to removal of a telephone.

Yesterday's FCC order argued:

1. All telephone companies have similar regulations, limiting service to "lawful" uses, and stipulating that service may be cut off following illegal use.

"Unless and until the courts shall decide that the action of a law enforcement officer in requesting the telephone carrier to discontinue service to a subscriber is unwarranted and baseless," said the ruling, "we think such a request must be considered an incident in the prevention of crime and maintenance of law and order."

2. The regulation is constitutional because individuals are granted a hearing "at some stage" in the proceedings.

The Public Utilities Commission similarly upheld the controversial regulation in an opinion in August, 1949. The PUC decision also was based on the Katz case.

FCC Upholds U. N. Votes Peace Plan Free of Veto

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly today approved by 52 to 5 Secretary of State Acheson's program for a veto-free system of collective security giving the U. N. power to meet aggression with armed force on a few hours' notice.

For the first time in U. N. history, the Assembly was empowered to ask for troops if the Security Council fails to act immediately.

Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam hailed the action as the most important taken by this fifth General Assembly and perhaps the most important ever taken by any U. N. Assembly.

Entezam in effect called on all U. N. members to back up the resolution by placing armed forces on call for U. N. use, which was one of the key sections of the plan. He told the delegates after the vote: "It is now for us to show the world we are uniting for peace."

(Secretary Acheson said in Washington that the "peoples of the world will be heartened by this historic step toward effective collective security through the United Nations.")

Meanwhile, the 60-nation Political Committee of the Assembly at Lake Success approved a resolution, also backed by the U. S., calling aggressive war the gravest crime against humanity. The whole resolution was approved, 47 votes to 5. The soviet bloc opposed the resolution, but abstained on the section referring to aggressive warfare. Yugoslavia abstained on the entire resolution.

The committee indorsed once more the Assembly plan for international control of atomic energy, urged U. N. members to strive for control and elimination of atomic and other weapons of mass destruction and to regulate arms under a U. N. system of control. Finally it declared these goals can be attained if all members demonstrate by their deeds their will to achieve peace.

This committee resolution was the Western answer to Soviet proposals, based on the Stockholm peace appeal, for an immediate prohibition of atomic weapons, a Big Five peace pact, and a reduction by a third of the armed forces of the five big powers. These proposals were voted down in the committee last Monday.

The resolution approved by the committee called "Peace Through Deeds," stands apart from the Acheson plan approved by the Assembly. The Committee sounded another call for peaceful actions, while the Acheson plan put teeth into collective security measures.

Delegations supporting the resolution said it was necessary to prevent the Russians from making propaganda capital out of the rejection of Vishinsky's proposals.

The Russian plan had described use of the atomic bomb as the gravest crime against humanity but it did not specifically condemn aggression. Some backers of the majority plan said a nation subject to aggression would be justified in using the atomic bomb to preserve its independence.

Soviet Asks Big Power Talks To Unify East, West Germany

By The Associated Press

Russia last night proposed a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain and France on its Prague proposals for creation of an all-German constitutional council to unify Germany under one government.

Such a proposal was handed United States Ambassador Alan G. Kirk in Moscow last night, the State Department said.

Kirk told the department that similar proposals would be given the French and British ambassadors.

The three diplomatic representatives had been called in separately to the Soviet Foreign ministry.

Creation of an all-German constitutional council to unify Germany under one government was first proposed in Prague on October 21 by Russia and seven satellite countries.

Four proposals were made by the Soviet bloc in the announced interest of the "maintenance of peace and international security in Europe" and of the rights of the German people. They were:

1. A proclamation by the Soviet Union, Britain, France and the United States "that they will not allow the militarization of Germany and her being dragged into any aggressive plans."

2. "The removal of all hindrances in the road to the development of a peaceful German economy and the inadmissibility of the rehabilitation of the German war potential."

3. "The undelayed conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany," the creation of a unified German state, and the withdrawal of all occupation forces a year after the signing of the treaty.

4. "The creation of an all-German constitutional council on the basis of balanced representation of Western and Eastern Germany, which should prepare for the establishment of an interim democratic, peace-loving, all-German sovereign government."

The initial reaction in this country had been to regard the Prague proposals as a political and propa-

Catholics Told Of Red Peril To Christianity

Archbishop Keough Sounds Warning at National Meeting

Communism is doubly dangerous because its adherents proclaim immediate objectives which often are close to those of Christianity, Archbishop Francis P. Keough of Baltimore said last night.

Behind the immediate objectives, however, lie motives which are the very opposite of those actuating Christians, he declared.

Archbishop Keough addressed the opening general meeting of the thirty-sixth annual National Conference of Catholic Charities and annual meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society at the Statler Hotel.

As an example, he cited the Communist ideal of security. The enticing part of the picture, he said, was that it provides an assurance of employment, and other materialistic benefits. Above all, the Red ideal offers a "sense of belonging—the security of the herd," the Archbishop stated.

But the motive behind communism is hatred, of other classes and of other peoples, and security is provided by an "unfeeling machine," with absolute denial of

Tibet Ruler Flees Before Red Advance

50 Loyal Followers Reported With Lama, Probably India-Bound

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—The boy Dalai Lama of Tibet has fled his capital of Lhasa with 50 loyal followers before the Chinese Communist advance, leaving a pro-Red faction of his government in power, dispatches from the frontier said tonight.

Spearheads of the Communist army, advancing almost unopposed along the snowbound high Himalayan Mountain trails, are within 50 miles of Lhasa, the advices said.

Dispatches reporting the 16-year-old Dalai Lama's flight were not confirmed. They said he had left for an unknown destination and there had been a "political changeover" in Lhasa.

Presumably this meant the pro-Communist cabinet faction which had split the government on the question of opposing the Reds had either seized or inherited control.

It was known the Dalai Lama was preparing to flee with his 73-year-old regent, Taktra Rimpoche, and other loyal members of his government, leaving the pro-Communists to welcome the invaders.

Assured in advance of asylum in India, the little ruler of the hermit country was expected to make his headquarters in an Indian frontier city.

It is likely Dr. Sinha, Indian government representative in Lhasa, also has fled. The government has not heard from him in three days, and is alarmed by his silence.

Up to today meager reports received here of the Communist advance had the Red army marching westward along the old silk caravan route from China.

Frontier dispatches said the remnant of the little Tibetan army might try a last stand at Nagchu-Dzong, an ancient stronghold. Reports said four members of the Dalai Lama's cabinet, including Defense Minister Naboo, had died fighting at the head of their little band of troops.

British Plane With 48 Aboard Missing in Alps

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 3 (AP).—A chartered Constellation airliner en route from Bombay to London with 40 East Indian seamen and a crew of eight was missing tonight and believed to have crashed in the Alpine approaches to Geneva airport.

A French laborer in Villaroger in the Savoy region said he heard two loud explosions a few seconds apart about 2:30 p. m. in the direction of Mont Pass.

The four-engined Air India plane, chartered by a British shipping firm, was transporting the seamen to Britain to man a newly-built freighter.

WITH U. S. MARINES IN NORTHEAST KOREA, Saturday, Nov. 4 (AP).—Chinese Communists today cut off two Marine battalions north of Sudong after penetrating positions of the attacking Seventh Marine regiment.

An official source tonight said a Chinese roadblock was set up behind the two battalions.

The Marines, attacking north from Sudong, 20 miles south of the bitterly defended Changjin reservoir, encountered strong opposition, a Tenth Corps officer said.

He reported small arms and mortar fire raking the leathernecks.

The forward Marine elements were being supplied by air-drops.

A First Marine Division spokesman said a third cut off battalion near Majon, 16 miles west of Wonsan, was well dug in and in no danger.

He reported few North Koreans around the position.

A helicopter spotted a small force of Reds preparing to ambush a relief column heading for this battalion. The pilot warned the convoy and convoy guards deployed to ambush the would be ambushers while the convoy halted.

SEOUL (Saturday), Nov. 4 (AP).—Escape of at least half of a trapped United States Regiment was disclosed today and the Red counter-drive in northwest Korea, which sprang the trap, ground to a halt.

South Korean troops held fast at Kunu, 47 miles north of the fallen enemy capital of Pyongyang—the point of deepest penetration by Chinese and North Korean troops.

A United States Eighth Army spokesman said action was limited Friday night, in contrast with recent days, which saw heavy red attacks force Allied withdrawals of up to 50 miles.

The spokesman said at least half of the United States First Cavalry's Eighth Regiment, trapped north of Kunu and west of Unsan, had escaped. Others were trying to filter through and rejoin friendly forces.

There was no new word on the fate of about half of a battalion of

Car Stolen Here Kills 1, Hurts 3 In Connecticut

WEST HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—A two-car accident climaxing a police chase today killed one person and injured three others.

Police said a stolen automobile, driven by a man who identified himself as David E. Campbell, an Army sergeant from Fort Myer, Va., crashed head-on into another car carrying three persons.

Mrs. Mary Angelo of Milford, Conn., died en route to a hospital. She was believed to be the mother of Ralph Angelo, 40, who was critically hurt. A third passenger, Helen Hopkinson, 29, also of Milford, was reported in critical condition. Campbell's condition was "fair."

According to police, Campbell was driving a car stolen in Washington.

2 Holdup Men Rob Arlington A&P Manager of $4000

Two middle-aged bandits, armed with revolvers and wearing gloves, last night held up an A&P store at 4891 N 1st rd., Arlington, and escaped with more than $4000 in cash.

The two men forced Mrs. H. B. Brady, wife of the store manager, out of her car as her husband and the janitor left by the front door shortly before 10 p. m. With the woman in front of them, the bandits forced Brady back into the tore, made him open the safe, and urn over the cash.

Colder, Rain Due To End 'Summer'

It's time to start worrying about poor robin, poor thing, again.

If he hasn't started south, he'd better stretch his wings, set his tail rudder, and hop off.

For Washington weather is getting back to what they call normal. It's going to be colder today, and there will be occasional rain, the weatherman says. He doesn't expect the temperature to go higher than about 55, and after today it's going to stay cold for awhile.

Yesterday, the Indian summer heat wave bowed out with a high of 77 degrees at 2:40 p. m.

Protestant Festival of Faith Called 'Tremendous Success'

Washington's most ambitious Protestant preaching mission ended last night with an estimated total participation of 75,000 persons in the six-day program. More than 300 churches took part.

Leaders of the Protestant Festival of Faith were jubilant at the success of the mission.

The Rev. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, sponsoring organization, said the mission was "tremendously successful," and the "churches were filled with very fine spirit."

Some 15,000 persons participated in the mission yesterday, Dr. Reissig said, including noon programs. A noon service at the Department of Agriculture auditorium was attended by 550 persons.

The mission brought 30 religious leaders to the Capital to fill 300 speaking engagements during the week. In addition to services at 19 churches in the area each night, there were noon services at downtown churches, and 11 Bible lectures. The visiting leaders also spoke before scores of service and professional organizations.

More than 1000 persons attended the service at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church last night, at which the Rev. Robert James McCracken of Riverside Church, New York City, spoke.

Mrs. Harper Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., and the Rev. George Kelsey, of the Federal Council of Churches, New York City, shared the pulpit at Shiloh Baptist Church last night, speaking to an audience of 300.

The Rev. Jesse Bader, of the Federal Council of Churches, New York, addressed 500 persons at National Memorial Baptist Church.

Tight Illinois Race Puts Lucas In Danger; Crime Probe Factor

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The Administration's top man in the Senate, Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas, is definitely in danger in this State's tight-as-a-tick Senate race.

His isolationist opponent, Everett M. Dirksen, is benefiting from "rich cop" crime probings in Democratic Cook County, completely unrelated to Lucas himself and the big national and world issues in this campaign.

But Lucas and the whole Democratic ticket may lose votes because of it, in an area they normally must carry heavily to trump downstate losses.

Lucas is still a betting favorite to win (odds 7 to 5) largely because of reported farm defections from Dirksen in Republican rural strongholds downstate.

But to this reporter, anyway, it seems another even-money race, with the outcome contingent on these two questions:

1. Will Illinois farmers, now fat and prosperous, revert to this State's historical off-year Republican voting pattern, or is the 1948 rural Democratic swing still in progress?

2. How much will Chicago's Sheriff's race, highlighting the big personal fortune amassed by Democratic nominee, Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert, chief of the State's attorney's police, cut into Lucas' own Cook County vote?

The Administration politically has more at stake in how Illinois answers those questions than in the outcome of any other single Senate race.

It's a daily double wager for Republicans, too. If Lucas goes down with Senate Majority Whip Francis Myers in Pennsylvania, the GOP will have plenty to crow about even if they make no other substantial Congressional gains.

Lucas has been lighting into Dirksen hammer and tongs, in Chicago and downstate, for his "flip-flopping" foreign policy record and votes cast against farm soil conservation and rural electrification while a Republican member of Congress.

Off to a later start than Dirksen, who has been stumping this State for 21 months, Lucas recently completely lost his voice trying to catch up. Now he's on the offensive again, hoarsely telling

Chest Attains 51% of Goal; Campaign May Be Extended

The Washington area Community Chest drive passed the 50 percent mark yesterday with $2,182,474.94 pledged or collected of the $4,250,000 goal.

General Chairman Hugh K. Duffield indicated the 51.23 percent total was "good," but said it probably would be necessary to extend the campaign through November to meet the goal.

Four of the major units reported at special luncheon meetings in the Willard and Washington Hotels yesterday.

Government hit 65.18 percent of its quota with $1,096,753.45. Chairman Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, commended the National Security Board for its 104 percent lead among Government departments. It represented an average gift of $17.62.

Special solicitation unit responsible for reaching potential donors not employed in business or government, reported $139,081.13 or 44.65 percent collected of a $311,500 quota.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg, spoke to the special solicitation unit. Commenting on the progress of woman suffrage in Europe, she predicted "they soon will be playing civic roles along with the men, as the American women do." With approximately one-third of all positions in the United States being held by women, she maintained they "had a job to do with the Community Chest."

Business-employes unit checked off $783,492.69 or 47.23 percent of its quota. Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools addressed the meeting.

Business-employes II reported it collected $77,382.42, or 31.82 percent.

Air Raid Spotters To Be Tested Today

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Air Force on Saturday and Sunday will test the readiness of 42 air raid observation posts in the Metropolitan Washington civil defense area, part of 6000 now being established throughout the Nation.

The idea of the visual spotters who form the Aircraft Warning Service is to supplement the national radar screen (only partly in operation so far), especially by picking up low flying planes that duck under the mechanical eyes.

A survey of the Washington area shows only fragmentary preparedness of the observation posts. The lack of any sense of urgency appears to be the biggest deterrent to all-out preparations.

Part of the difficulty springs from the fact that the massive civil defense job already has swamped the few paid and many part-time participants. And, to boot, the spotter set-up, though an adjunct of civil defense, is responsible to the Air Force which in time of an emergency may order the volunteers on 24-hour duty.

Booklets Issued

Where observation posts have been set up, the spotters have been issued Air Force booklets showing silhouettes of 100 aircraft —25 of them Russian, 25 British and the rest American Air Force and Navy craft.

As Everett A. R. Searl, a Chevy Chase, Md., builder who heads a post just over the District line, put it:

"I don't know how we're going to tell them apart at the speeds they fly today. But we're going to try."

The spotter program must be considered in the light of two basic promises:

1. A potential enemy may not attack at ultra-high altitudes with atomic bombs. He may fly in (from aircraft carriers or submarines, for example) at low levels, hoping to get under the radar screen. And he may carry either conventional bombs or paratroops.

2. The United States is covered with observation posts, or will be when the program is completely in action. So if bombers come over the Arctic headed for Washington it may be spotters in northern Michigan who will pick them up in time to alert the Air Force to send up interceptors. Or spotters along the Atlantic Coast might see planes destined for Chicago or St. Louis.

Obviously the spotters in the 42 observation posts here are not going to help defend the Washington area. A 600-mile an hour plane would have passed Baltimore or Richmond before the spotter could do much more than reach for a telephone.

This Saturday and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. each day all of this area's 42 posts (and all the other posts in the Eastern half of the country) are supposed to be manned. Each post should have a chief observer, two deputies and about 20 spotters.

Each post is supposed to search the sky constantly for four miles in all directions. Binoculars are out, the Air Force says. They just confuse the spotters, especially on distances.

Once a plane is spotted, a phone call is supposed to carry the information to a filter center. Baltimore and Richmond are the nearest and some phones in this area lead to one, others to the other. The Air Force won't say more.

Alert Air Force

The Nation's 19 filter centers in turn plot the aircraft and alert th eEastern Air Defense Force headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y., which decides on sending up fighters to meet an enemy. The filter centers are manned by volunteers but headed by Air Force officers. All these centers will take part in the weekend test.

Observation posts are supposed to be set up by local government authorities on high ground with good visibility. Phones are volunteered by subscribers. In the District the Civil Defense office is having a phone installed in the Nalle school, 51st and Bass st. se., for this purpose. Phones which go through company switchboards are not wanted.

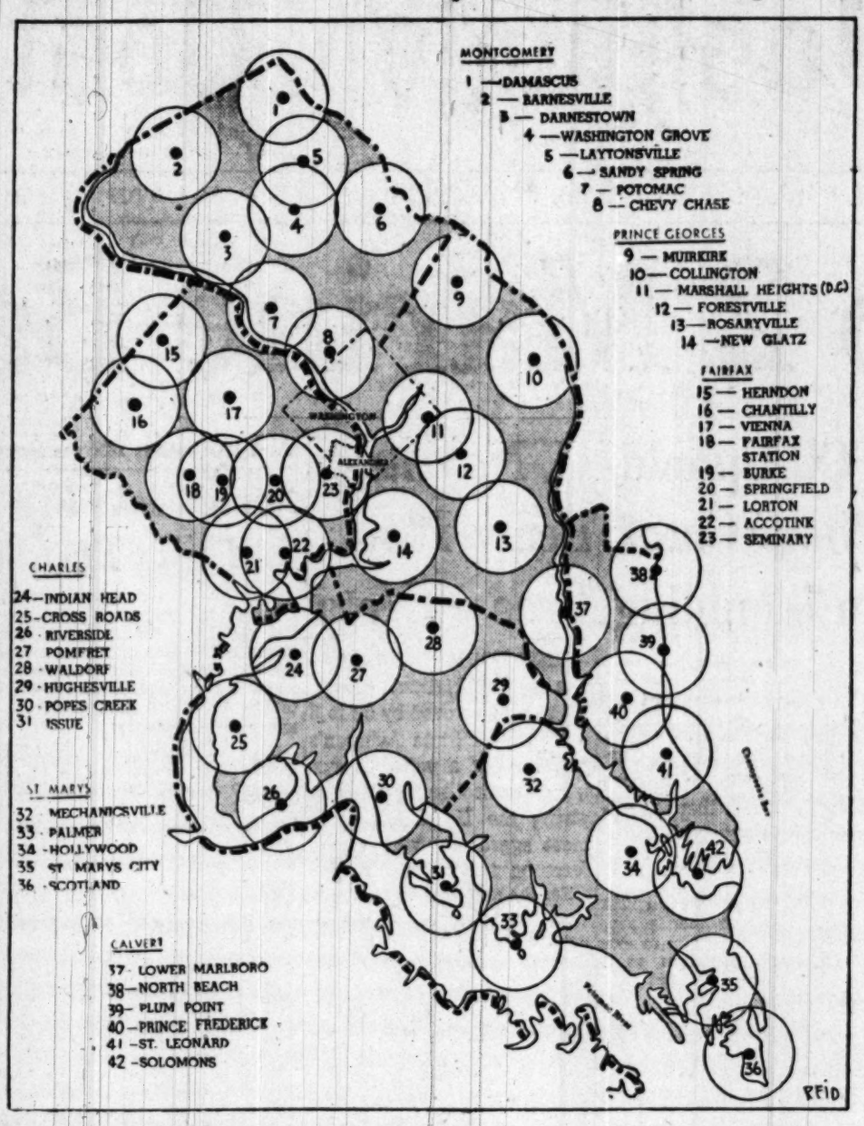
Phone company operators have been told that when a spotter's call comes in (the spotters have code words to identify themselves) it is to be given priority on the long distance lines to the filter centers. On dial phones, the spotter dials operator who then puts through the call.

This week-end's tests will serve as a check on the communication system as well as on the spotters and filter centers. Some planes will be specially sent up to be sure all the posts see aircraft during the two days. That won't be necessary in the immediate Washington area, however, due to normal heavy military and civilian air traffic.

Here is the Air Force's list of spotter locations in the metropolitan Washington civil defense area:

Montgomery County, Md.—1, Damascus; 2, Barnesville; 3, Darnestown; 4, Washington Grove; 5, Laytonsville; 6, Sandy Spring; 7, Potomac; 8, Chevy Chase.
Prince Georges County, Md.—9, Muirkirk; 10, Collington; 11, Marshall Heights (D. C.); 12, Forestville; 13, Rosaryville; 14, New Glatz.
Fairfax County, Va.—15, Herndon; 16, Chantilly; 17, Vienna; 18, Fairfax Station; 19, Burke; 20, Springfield; 21, Lorton; 22, Accotink; 23, Seminary.
Charles County, Md.—24, Indian Head; 25, Cross Roads; 26, Riverside; 27, Pomfret; 28, Waldorf; 29, Hughesville; 30, Popes Creek; 31, Issue.
St. Mary's County, Md.—32, Mechanicsville; 33, Palmer; 34, Hollywood; 35, St. Marys City; 36, Scotland.
Calvert County, Md.—37, Lower Marlboro; 38, North Beach; 39, Plum oPint; 40, Prince Frederick; 41, St. Leonard; 42, Solomons.

Observation Posts in City's Defense Setup . . .



AGAINST AIR ATTACKS—The map shows the locations of 42 air raid observation posts in the Washington civil defense area. The readiness of these posts to defend the area against an air attack will be tested today and Sunday when planes fly over at various altitudes and speeds. The air raid spotters at these posts are supposed to scan the skies for four miles in all directions and then transmit the information to a "filter center." Only one of the posts is in the District itself— No. 11 at the Nalle School at 51st and Bass sts. se.

Special Fire Victim Care Urged in U. S.

Special hospital centers in every large city for the care of burn patients, exclusively, were recommended here yesterday by a British burn specialist.

While such centers are required in England, need for them in the United States is "twice as great," said Dr. Leonard Colebrook of Birmingham, England.

He compared the accidental fire death rates of the two countries in support of his contention.

In England, he pointed out, the death rate from accidental fires, exclusive of conflagrations, which are almost unknown in peacetime, is 14 for each million of population. In the United States, he said, the rate is 32 deaths for each million persons. Counting conflagrations, he added, the United States rate reaches 50 per million.

Dr. Colebrook spoke at the afternoon session of a three-day symposium on burns sponsored by the National Research Council. Three hundred specialists in burn research and treatment are attending the meetings at the National Academy of Sciences.

The speaker called frame dwellings, multistoried buildings and centrally heated housing units major factors in the high American fire rate. In England, he said, home are predominantly stone or masonry, and "not as dried out."

Dr. Colebrook said the special burn centers are needed because of the specialized care and treatment patients must have. Since institution of a 40-bed center at the Birmingham Accident Hospital, he stated, the hospitalization period for burn victims has been halved.

Dr. Colebrook, burn consultant for the Birmingham Hospital, estimated that in England, special hospital centers should have 90 beds for each million population, and in the United States, 150 beds per million.

47 Doctors and 19 Dentists Listed as 1-A in Area Draft

Forty-five District physicians and two from nearby Virginia has been classified as 1-A in the doctor draft, it was learned yesterday.

District Selective Service headquarters disclosed that 19 dentists also have been classified as immediately available for the draft call.

Four dentists and two veterinarians in nearby Virginia—including Arlington County, Fairfax County, and Alexandria— also have been classified as 1-A.

These 1-A medical men are in Priority I. They were deferred from the World War II draft to continue their medical training and saw less than 90 days' service in uniform. It is from Priority I category that the medical men who recently registered for the special draft will be drafted into the Army, unless they obtain a commission beforehand.

Altogether, 116 physicians and 27 dentists were found to be in Priority 1 by the District draft headquarters, but the local boards, with counsel of the special medical advisory committee, gave occupational deferments to approximately 30 of the medical men. Several had physical defects.

Just how many of the 1-A medical men will be called in the draft depends on the quota announcements expected soon. Physical examinations preceding induction are scheduled to be taken by November 15.

New Members of Bar Sworn in Number 320

Three hundred twenty persons yesterday were sworn in as members of the bar of District Court in a mass ceremony held in the Departmental Auditorium. Court attaches said it was the largest number to be initiated at one time here.

U. S. to Spend $620,000 at Walter Reed

The Defense Department intends to spend $620,000 in construction projects at the Army Medical Center during the current fiscal year.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Chief of Army Engineers, yesterday announced the projects as part of a 209-million-dollar total for 210 projects on which the Engineers will work.

At the medical center, $270,000 will be spent to prepare designs for a new Armed Forces Institute of Pathology Building. At present the institute is operating in a two-story temporary building at 7th and Independence ave. sw.

The new building is to be located on the medical center grounds, at a site between 13th and 14th sts. nw. on Dogwood st., center officials said.

The remaining $350,000 of center money will be used to convert the heating plant at Walter Reed from coal to oil, officials said.

Treated Water Proposed Here

Dr. A. Harry Ostrow, director of the District Health Department's Dental Bureau, yesterday said he would recommend to the Commissioners this month that the city's water supply be treated with sodium fluoride.

Reports from other cities where the treatment has reduced child tooth decay by half indicate it would cost the District 11 cents per person per year, or $88,000, Ostrow said. Silica fluoride, with which experiments are being made elsewhere, would cost about half that amount, he added.

Ostrow said the tasteless substance would be added to the water supply at treatment plants at the rate of one part sodium fluoride to one million parts of water. If the program were approved and funds made available, treatment could start in a month, he said.

istrict health workers now paint school children's teeth with a sodium fluoride solution. The continuing application should be more beneficial, Ostrow said.

Ostrow said fluoridation of publict water supply is favored by the American Dental Association and the American Public Health Association. He said he plans a meeting with representatives of civic groups soon to explain it.

CAP Asked to Organize Private Plane Owners

The District Commissioners yesterday asked the National Capital Wing of the Civil Air Patrol to organize private plane owners into a civil defense team for the Washington area.

They said Virginia and Maryland civil defense officials have agreed with them that a Civil Air Defense Patrol of small planes should be formed to fly supplies into the area and spot fires and damaged areas after a bombing. The CAP would form the nucleus of the volunteer force, but plane owners would not be required to join the CAP, the Commissioners said.

Lieut. Col. Donald D. Webster, acting commander of the National Capital Wing, had suggested such a project at a meeting with District civil defense officials last month. District officials said then they favored the plan but held up formal approval until it could be cleared with the States.

Webster said yesterday he has compiled a list of 340 privately owned planes in the area and has tenatively selected about six suburban airports where they could assemble for assignments during an attack. He estimated that about half of the plane owners would volunteer their services.

First step will be to call a meeting of all plane owners in a couple of weeks to explain the project, Webster said. Next month he hopes to fly a practice mission that may include landing about 15 planes on the Mall. Permission to land on the grassy strip between the Capitol and Washington Monument has been sought from the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Webster said.

Dolivet Refused Right to Reenter U. S.; Served U. N.

Louis Dolivet, editor of the magazine United Nations World and a former U. N. propaganda consultant, has been refused permission to reenter the United States, it was disclosed yesterday.

Dolivet, whose appointment to the U. N. expired October 31, applied in Switzerland for a United States entry visa. The State Department said it had advised the consul there it appeared that Dolivet was not eligible to come here. No reason was given.

A French citizen, Dolivet was attacked as a "dangerous Stalinist agent" in a House speech last May 25 by Representative Edward H. Jenison (R., Ill.) Jenison said witnesses before a Senate subcommittee had identified the editor as a member of an international Communist apparatus.

Enlisting in the Army last May, Pvt. Zimbro was sent to Korea late in August and on September 30 wrote his parents that he expected to go into the front lines the following day. Since then the family had received no further word, until the Defense Department telegram reported he had

Navy Announces Smokeless Rocket To Boost Takeoff

By The Associated Press

The Navy announced yesterday a new smokeless rocket motor for aircraft booster power. It claimed for the motor greater safety and better performance.

Experts say the ash-laden smoke trail of the present unit is unsatisfactory because it blocks out carrier decks and airport runways and might damage aircraft in the vicinity. The new unit, based on smokeless powder such as is used in guns and rockets, will have a barely discernible exhaust trail.

Soviet Combat Planes Estimated at 14,000

By The Associated Press

The Navy said yesterday the authorized operating strength of Russia's air force is estimated conservatively at 14,000 combat planes. This estimate does not include Russian naval aviation, transport planes or trainers.

Exactly how much of such "authorized" strength has been achieved, Navy spokesmen did not attempt to say.

The magazine Naval Aviation News, publication of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, said the 14,000 operational aircraft included some jet fighters and TU-4 (B-29 type) medium bombers.

"Its strategic (long-range) bombing force is relatively small, although this arm appears to have been stressed in the Soviet post-war program," it added. "Its naval aviation is land-based, having no aircraft carriers from which to operate."

Primary Purpose Tactical

Because Russia is a land power, the magazine expressed belief the primary purpose of Russian air power probably will be to back up the Russian army by tactical operations, which usually are of short or medium range.

Comparison of the newly published estimate with the operational combat strength of the United States Air Force is difficult. Since early in the Korean conflict, the American Air Force has stopped releasing figures on the total number of combat planes it operates. However, last June 30 it was officially disclosed to be operating 3200, with an additional 4600 in storage.

(Operational refers to planes in active service, as against those in storage or otherwise classed as nonoperational.)

On June 30 the total number of planes available in the United States Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, the Air National Guard and the Civil Air Patrol was 20,800. However, in addition to the nonoperational combat planes, this total included 9100 Air Force utility planes—transports, trainers and other types not in the combat category covered by the estimate of Russian strength. This total also included a number of transports, trainers and other noncombat planes in the Air Guard, Reserve anad Civil Air Patrol.

Navy, Marines Have 6000

The United States Navy and Marines had on June 30 approximately 6000 active planes, including transports and trainers as well as combat types. The Navy and Marines hope to raise the number of active combat and non-combat planes to about 7100 by the end of next June.

The magazine said Russia's new MIG jet fighter will, considering present trends, serve as a first-line fighter for a number of years. It has swept-back wings resembling those of the United States Air Force's F-86 Sabre, which holds the world's speed record.

The United States Air Force said earlier this week that jet fighters which the Communists sent into the Korean conflict recently appeared to be the new Russian fighter type, known as the MIG-15.

Superiority in Air Held 'Must' in West

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Air Secretary Thomas K. Finletter said tongiht the North Atlantic democracies must build and maintain "a great and unchallengeable superiority in th eair" to offset Russia's mass land armies.

"As long as enforceable peace does not exist, the Western world must see to it that it has the most powerful air arm in the world," he said. "Nothing could be worse than to have control of the air in the hands of those who would misuse it."

Finletter did not refer to Russia in his speech, prepared for the annual Wings Club dinner attended by ministers and air chiefs of other North Atlantic nations. But he stressed that air power can "do evil as well as good if it is in the wrong hands."

1200 French Quit Laokay, Seek Safety

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 3 (AP).—A French column of 1200 troops today retreated westward from abandoned Laokay under enemy harassment.

[The United Press reported that the column reached the safety of Cha Pa, one-time mountain resort, 15 miles southwest of Laokay.]

The withdrawal left the Communist-led Viet Minh in full control of the last French fortress on Indo-China's northwest frontier as well as a 300-mile-wide zone of communciation with Communist China.

The garrison—including Senegalese, Algerians and Indo-Chinese colonial forces—had been isolated for several weeks, except for an airlift.

A French military spokesman here said French counterattacks had eased Viet Minh pressure and there was no question of evacuating Loakay. Official accounts today, however, said the evacuation was in keeping with a long-standing plan and was ordered Tuesday in view of Viet Minh efforts to cross the Red River from the east and circle the town, on the river's west bank.

Soviet, Iran In 20 Million Barter Pact

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 3 (AP).—Premier Ali Razmara disclosed today that a final agreement had been reached on the long-negotiated Russo-Iranian barter trade pact.

The premier previously told the Majlis (parliament) the value of the commercial exchanges between the Soviet Union and Iran was expected to reach 20 million dollars.

Russia already has freed nine Iranian border guards captured in minor frontier incidents last year. A joint Iranian-Soviet commission is scheduled to meet November 11 in Astara, Russia, to negotiate on a dozen territorial disputes along the frontier.

Under the barter pact, Iran will exchange cotton, tobacco, rice, dried fruits, hides and other commodities for Russian textiles, cement, glass, machinery and other manufactured goods.

Adm. Nimitz Sees Winter War in Korea

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (AP).—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today predicted a winter campaign in Korea. He said military operations are "bound to succeed."

"General MacArthur's conduct of the Korean adventure has been masterly," he told a news conference, adding:

"Military operations in Korea are well in hand. Reverses are to be expected in a war."

Nimitz, commander in chief of the U. S. Navy in the Pacific in World War II, now is public relations consultant to the U. N. secretary general. On active duty as a five-star admiral, he said he is anxious to "go to sea."

"The United Nations has done a marvelous job and possibly averted a world war," he said.

He said he doubts the Chinese Communists intend to intervene in force in the Korean war.

"There is alleged to be a 300,000-man Red Chinese army in Manchuria. They would certainly throw an army into North Korea if they wanted armed intervention. They wouldn't send a token force."

Asked what the U. N. needs more today in Korea, Nimitz replied:

"More troops."

Nimitz was here to address a convention of the National Association of Ice Industries.

Italian Thinks France Will Compromise Issue

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Italian Defense Minister Randolfo Pacciardi predicted today that before the end of the month the French would compromise on the issue of including German forces in a western European army.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, Pacciardi also foresaw the inclusion of Yugoslav, Greek and Turkish armed forces.

He said Italy could put more than one million unemployed into factories to produce arms and clothing for the Atlantic forces.

Italy, he said, hopes to have ready and armed by the end of 1951 "11 divisions, including one armored. At present we have seven divisions almost ready for combat, which we can give to the Atlantic forces."

Gen. Clark to Review 10,000 GIs at Belvoir

The Army Engineers will march on parade ground P-2, on Route 1, nine miles south of Alexandria. Bronze Star medals will be awarded to two enlisted men for action in World War II.

U. S. to State Defense Stand To Paris Again

NYHT News Service

A restatement of the American plan for use of German troops in an integrated western European defense force is being drafted by the State Department as a note to France, it was learned yesterday.

The note is understood to reflect the unanimous view of the other North Atlantic treaty organization powers that the French plan—for use of Germans in the smallest possible units under a single European defense minister and a unified military budget—is technically unworkable, and cannot be allowed to delay the urgent task of getting a strong united force into the field by next summer.

State Department officials would not comment on reports that the note would be "stiff," but it is known that the Defense Department chiefs believe that it should be made clear to the French that the United States does not intend to be frustrated in its intent to form an integrated European army.

Among representatives of the smaller nations it is believed that the sooner the State Department gets tough, the better. At the State Department, however, there is a keen realization of the political difficulties which the French government has to cope with, and a readiness to seek a reasonable compromise.

It is believed that this will be possible. The French already accept the idea of admitting Germans in "smallest possible units," which in itself is a considerable advance in their position. The question is: how small, or how large, is "possible?"

There is a general conviction that the company or battalion units which the French appear to have had in mind are much too small. Something like a regimental combat team is envisioned—an elastic formation, self-contained, the modern equivalent of the brigade. It could run up to 10,000 men, and the French objection to German generals and a General staff might still be met by putting it under the command of a colonel or lieutenant colonel, as is commonly done in American and British units of this type.

These considerations will form the basis for renewed negotiations which will commence in London next week in the Council of Deputies, under the chairmanship of Charles M. Spofford.

Spofford leaves today for London.

Moch and Scientists Confer on Defenses

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 3 (AP).—Jules Moch, France's Minister of Defense, held a secret conference today with California Institute of Technology's top scientists on problems involving the military defense of Western Europe.

The French minister came here with his military aides from Washington, where he held a conference with United States Defense Secretary Marshall.

Moch, Vice Admirals Louis Kahn and Charles Lambotin, Gen. Jacques Lafargue and Maj. Gen. Pierre Salmon, inspected Caltech's secret jet propulsion laboratory and tomorrow are to visit Pt. Mugu, near Pt. Hueneme, to inspect Navy guided missile tests.

Moch declined to discuss France's position in Western Europe's defense but admitted that "the situation in Europe is pretty warm."

Not in Charter

Europe Unit Tables Issue Of One Army

ROME, Nov. 3 (AP)—A rule of unanimitiy caused the European Council's committee of Foreign Ministers to decide tonight against taking any action on a unified European army.

Britain opposed consideration of the issue by the committee—the upper house of an international discussion group organized on parliamentary lines at Strasbourg, France—which is meeting here in its sixth session.

The British delegate, Undersecretary Ernest Davies, did not oppose the idea of a united army but insisted the council, by its charter, is not competent to act on matters of defense. Since such an issue would require unanimous approval by all of the 13 Foreign Ministers, it was impossible to continue.

The organization of a West European army, including the possible role of West Germany, is under discussion among members of the 12-nation North Atlantic Pact. France's fear of remilitarization of Germany has limited developments.

Diplomatic officials in London said tonight the United States wants German armed forces equal to about 10 divisions assigned through such a European army, primarily as combat troops. Roughly equal to one division to every six or seven divisions from other nations.

The question of rearming West Germany will get its first airing in the German parliament at Bonn next Wednesday.

Both Allied and German officials warned West German taxpayers today they will have to dip into their pocketbooks to help finance the defense of Western Europe. West Germany now pays about one billion dollars a year for occupation costs.

The committee agreed to sign tomorrow a convention to establish a virtual European Supreme Court of Human Rights, to protect the fundamental freedoms of individuals in all countries which accept the convention.

Red Guerillas Slay Marines After Capture

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION, Korea, Nov. 3 (AP).—Korean Communist guerillas deliberately shot wounded and captured Marines through the head after the Reds' surprise attack on a Marine convoy west of Wonsan Thursday, a spokesman for the Leathernecks said today.

The guerillas are "getting bolder and better organized," the Marine spokesman said. He said that after the battle several Marines were found with identical bullet holes in their heads. The guerillas had stolen the Marines' shoes.

There was no disclosure as to how many died in this manner. The Tenth Corps yesterday reported 14 killed and 33 wounded, including both Army and Marines.

Australian Commander Dies of Battle Wounds

TOKYO, Friday, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Lieut. Col. Charles H. Green, 30, commander of the Australian battalion of the British Commonwealth Brigade in Korea, died of battle wounds Thursday night, it was announced today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that Green had been awarded the United States Silvar Star Medal for gallantry in action.

So. Korean Civilian Toll Estimated at 284,233

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 3 (AP).—South Korean civilian war casualties so far total 284,233, including 109,417 killed, the Republican Ministry of Social Activities reported tonight.

It listed the missing at 75,917, wounded 89,115, and captured 9784.

When the Reds invaded the south June 25, South Korea's official population figure was 20,388,641.

Execution of Reds by S. Koreans Draws Blast From Reporter

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP). — The hillside execution of 27 Koreans convicted of Red collaboration—one of them a girl entertainer who died with a song on her lips—was described today in the New York Times.

In a dispatch from Seoul, the Times said the 27, including two women, were tied to posts and shot on a sunny afternoon in a hillside cemetery outside the city.

They were taken by South Korean guards from a Seoul prison housing nearly 4000 suspected or convicted Communist collaborators, the story said.

The women were Lee Chang Ho, a young Kiisang (Geisha) girl who had been mistress of the Seoul Communist police chief during the North Korean occupation, and the 47-year-old wife of a Communist official.

On the 8-mile ride to the cemetery, the condemned were forced to squat on the floor of trucks, their heads bowed upon their knees.

"When one raised his head," the story said, it was sharply pushed down by the Korean military police executioners.

"The most callous example was the failure of all concerned to remove an 8-month-old child strapped the the Kiisang girl's back in the customary Oriental child-carrying manner before she was lifted, hands bound behind her, into the truck in the prison yard.

Just before the trucks rolled out of the gate, an officer, almost as an afterthought, ordered the infant untied and returned to "prison."

The story by Charles Grutzner, said that he, a Frenchman and Australian were the only non-Korean witnesses of the execution. He gave this account:

When names of the condemned were called out in the prison, no one answered, because the captives "knew 60 others whose names had been called since Sunday never had returned."

The jailer had to identify the doomed 27 as they tried to hide among their cellmates. They were taken into the yard, their hands tied, and then loaded into trucks.

"The 29-year-old Kiisang girl wept and asked what would become of her baby. The guards ignored her."

The captives were unloaded in a field, at the foot of the hillside execution ground, and made to squat in rows of nine. The Kiisang girl resumed her wailing, repeating the word "aegi"—meaning baby.

As the young South Korean captain read the death warrant, the girl raised her head and pleaded with him. The captain leaned forward and said: "It is useless. This is your lot and there is nothing that can be done."

Strangely, the woman's strained features relaxed. She began singing. The words were those of a girl asking her lover to return.

The first row of nine was led up the hill to nine posts, behind which were freshly dug pits.

The young Korean women volunteers found vantage seats on rocks to watch.

A volley rang out and three bodies broke their binding and fell into the pits. The others were tied so tightly that they remained upright even after a lieutenant fired a coupe de grace into the heads.

The second batch of condemned, including the girl, were brought to the posts. She fell to her knees, clutching the captain's legs, and renewed her entreaties. Soldiers dragged her to the post. The girl resumed her love song as the rifles cracked. Another sang loudly. The words were Korean: the tune was "Nearer My God to Thee."

Yanks Escaping From Traps

another First Cavalry regiment trapped south of Unsan.

The South Korean Seventh Division restored its main defenses at Kunu by noon Friday after the Reds had made some penetrations.

In northeast Korea, a Marine battalion was in a Red trap. For a time Friday, a Marine regiment was threatened with encirclement.

In northwest Korea, air observers said a withdrawing South Korean regiment had dropped out of sight. It was the Seventh Regiment of the Republic's Sixth Division which went all the way to the Manchurian border last week, then began a withdrawal when Red forces cut supply roads to the rear. It was last sighted Wednesday and supplies were air dropped.

United Nations forces still were holding some positions near Unsan, 20 miles north of Kunu. The South Korean First Division, 7 miles south of Unsan, was under attack from 5 p. m., Friday, until midnight.

A North Korean communique asserted that the Reds have killed or wounded 1500 U. N. officers and men and taken 2000 prisoners "in the Anju area," 13 miles southwest of Kunu.

The Marine regiment which got into trouble in northeast Korea yesterday was advancing near Sudong, 20 miles northwest of the east coast industrial city of Hamhung.

The Marine Seventh Regiment was threatened with encirclement for a time Friday north of Sudong.

A Marine briefing officer said two regiments of Chinese Reds halted the Marine drive with flanking attacks shortly after the Leathernecks pushed off from Sudong toward the Changjin reservoir 16 air miles to the north.

Marine staff officers said they believed the regiment was advancing again, however, after getting ammunition by air drop.

Eighty miles southwest of Sudong, Korean Reds isolated a Marine battalion at Majon, 16 miles west of Wonsan. The Marines had gone there to block the northern escape route of by-passed North Korean Reds, but were themselves cut off. They were reported in good shape but the Reds ambushed a relief column.

At the same time, Marine fliers bombed a force of 2000 by-passed Reds only five miles from Wonsan, big east coast port and site of the largest allied airfield in North Korea. Tanks were called up to protect the airfield.

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton said the First Marine Division was strung out over 100 miles from Sudong southward to Kojo, 30 miles south of Wonsan, in what many Marine officers called an almost impossible tactical situation.

An intelligence spokesman at General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters said the United Nations still held the initiative in North Korea generally, despite the withdrawals.

He called the attacks large-scale enemy defensive action and not a counteroffensive.

The main Red smash was aimed at United Nations forces near Unsan, about 65 miles north of the captured Red capital of Pyongyang.

It trapped elements of two regiments of the veteran United States First Cavalry Division. Some of the surrounded men escaped. Other First Cavalry infantrymen slogged through mud and rain in an attempt to rescue those still cut off.

The Red drive knifed south of Unsan to within two miles of Kunu, which is 47 miles north of Pyongyang. The Communists captured much American equipment in the push, including 13 tanks. It was presumed that the tanks were disabled by their American crews before they were abandoned.

The U. S. Second Division was pulled out of reserve and rushed to the new front line to meet the Red thrust. It was reported to have reached the Chongchon River, 40 miles north of Pyongyang. Presumably, it was at Anju, a river town 13 miles southwest of Kunu.

On the west coast, the U. S. Twenty-fourth Division withdrew 50 miles south and east of Chongju to avoid entrapment. Its leading elements once were within 15 miles of the Manchurian border. British Commonwealth forces also fell back to Chongju.

The west coast pull-back was no fighting retreat. It was the result of the strong Red attacks in the Unsan area to the east, which endangered the right flank of the Twenty-fourth Division and the British.

In the northeast, United States Marines jumped off from Sudong in a drive aimed at the Changjin reservoir, 16 air miles to the north. They immediately encountered Red attacks on both flanks. A First Marine Division spokesman said the attackers were Chinese Communists.

Chinese Nationalist reports to Taipei from Red China said the Chinese Communist 120th Division was in action in Korea and that Chinese Red Gen. Lin Piao's Fortieth Army in Manchuria had moved to the Yalu River border facing Korea.

United States pilots also reported troops were moving in Manchuria toward Korea.

American officers have confirmed the presence of Chinese Communist troops on the battle front in Korea, but have declined to give any estimate of the total numbers aiding the North Korean Reds.

MacArthur's intelligence spokesman in Tokyo said the last estimate of 26,000 remaining North Korean Red soldiers had been "revised upward considerably." He did not give a new estimate. He declined definitely to estimate the number of Chinese Reds in Korea.

The spokesman said North Korean casualties at midnight November 1 were 336,000, including 135,000 prisoners. The casualty total includes men who were wounded, evacuated, returned to action and wounded again, perhaps several times.

The officer said the Red action at Unsan was a major battle and that it would take some time for the Allies to turn back the attackers.

He said the situation was better Friday than it was Thursday.

Shorter communications and supply lines, the addition of reinforcements, reorganization of previously smashed units and the winter weather all have worked to the advantage of the Reds, the spokesman said.

United States Eighth Army headquarters in Seoul said one regiment of the First Cavalry Division was cut off 2 miles west of Unsan and about half a battalion of another was surrounded south of the town.

The unit set to rescue them advanced a mile but was still 5 miles from the trapped men west of Unsan.

A regiment of the South Korean First Division was forced to withdraw from positions north of Unsan, and a companion regiment had to pull back from a point east of Unsan to a location 7 miles south.

Air observers reported Red reinforcements moving toward Unsan from the north. The spotters said the troops wore bright green uniforms, but their nationality was not determined.

In the comparatively quiet northeast, South Korean Capital Division troops advanced 2 miles north of Kilchu to within 60 miles of Chongjin. It is a big port about 55 miles south of the Korean-Siberian border.

United States Marine fighter planes supported the Capital Division's advance and also struck at guerrilla units near Sudong which were blocking the Marine advance on the Changjin reservoir.

Behind the lines throughout the northeast, Red guerrillas have become so troublesome that the U. N. command has given anti-guerrilla warfare top priority.

Raiding Reds have burned villages and looted and terrorized civilians along the northeast coast. They also have ambushed several American Marine supply columns.

Village elders asked U. N. commanders for protection.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, U. S. Tenth Corps Commander, ordered "every effective means" to be used against the guerrillas.

FIFTY-MILE WITHDRAWAL—On the Korean west coast, United States troops were forced to withdraw 50 miles south and east to Chongju (1) to avoid entrapment. Pushing down from the Unsan area (2), the Reds knifed close to Kunu in a large scale offensive to trap elements of two First Cavalry Division regiments. Marines, jumping off yesterday from Sudong in a drive on the Changjin reservoir (3) were threatened with encirclement by flank attacks (open arrows) in which Chinese Communists were reported taking part. South Koreans made slight gains past Kilchu (4) on the east coast. Bypassed Reds (5) were attacking near Wonsan and were reported to have isolated a Marine battalion at Majon (underlined)

Rhee Premier Selection Fails Of Approval

SEOUL, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Republic of Korea's National Assembly refused today to confirm President Syngman Rhee's appointment of Minister of Education Paik Nak Choon as premier.

The assembly vote was 21 in favor and 100 opposed to Paik for the top cabinet post. Two members abstained.

Paik, formerly president of the Korean Christian College in Seoul, was named education minister May 4.

Last spring the assembly sought to install Chough Pyong Ok, a prominent political figure who headed an unofficial Korean delegation to the United Nations in 1949, as premier when Lee Bum Suk resigned from that position. At that time a petition signed by 104 of the 210 members of the assembly was submitted to President Rhee in Chough's behalf.

Rhee, however, appointed Defense Minister Sihn Sung Mo acting premier in addition to his defense job.

Last July 15 while the Rhee government was in its refugee capital at Taegu, Chough was appointed home minister.

Opposition to the Rhee administration by some elements of the national assembly has shown up recently in the form of a petition calling for the entire cabinet to resign.

ganda counter-move against the defense plans of West Europe.

Officials here noted at the time that both Russia and the Western Powers have long advocated unification of Germany.

There was little indication last night that Russia's suggestion for a Foreign Ministers' conference on the Prague plan would be accepted.

The terms and conditions proposed by the East and the West for the unification of Germany have differed so sharply in the past that all practical efforts to write a peace treaty and unite have been stalemated.

When the break over the issue occurred in 1947, the Soviet set up an East German government and the United States, France and Britain then proceeded to unify the Western zone under a non-Communist regime.

U. N. Approves Acheson's Veto-Free Peace Plan

Vishinsky accepted for Russia a place on a Peace Observation Commission, but voted with the four other members of the Russian bloc against the resolution. India and Argentina abstained. The sixtieth member, Lebanon, was not present for the vote.

In brief, the Assembly totday:

1. Voted itself authority to meet on 24-hour notice in the event of an emergency caused by failure of the Security Council to act to meet aggression.

2. Set up a Peace Observation Commission of 14 members and charged it with responsibility for investigating quickly any threat to peace anywhere.

3. Asked United Nations members to maintain within their national military establishment forces so trained and equipped they could be made available promptly for service as United Nations units on recommendation by the Security Council or General Assembly. This section was approved in preliminary vote by sections, 45 in favor, five against and seven abstentions. The Russian bloc was against it. Argentina, Iceland (which has no army), Indonesia, India and Yemen were among those abstaining.

4. Established a Collective Measures Committee of 14 members to study and report to the Security Council and the Assembly not later than September 1, 1951, on methods to maintain and strengthen international peace and security.

5. Urged all members to respect fully and develop respect for an observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms and to work for increased economic stability. Several delegates argued it is useless to free a man from aggression and then leave him to starve.

6. Recommended that the Security Council work out as quickly as possible measures for creating the U. N. army envisioned in the Charter. This was originally a Russian proposal, but the Russians shied away when the majority tacked on a paragraph saying it would not interfere with Assembly action under other parts of the resolution. The vote on this section was 52 in favor, none against and six abstentions. The Russian bloc and Argentina abstained.

7. Recommended that the five permanent members of the Security Council—the United States, France, China, Britain and the Soviet Union—meet and discuss their disagreements and try for a settlement. In sectional voting, this was approved unanimously, 57 in favor, none against and none abstaining. In the debate, Westerners called on the Russians to show their desire for peace by deeds and not words and the Russians made the same demand on the West.

The Assembly then grouped all the sections together and passed them by the 52 to 5 vote.

Pearson Answers Russian

Before the voting today, Lester Pearson, Foreign Minister of Canada, answered Vishinsky's attack yesterday on American Delegate John Foster Dulles. Pearson said Dulles took the attack in his stride and reminded Vishinsky that Dulles was safe here, since this the U.N. Assembly "and not a purge."

The members of the Peace Observation Commission selected were: Nationalist China, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, France, India, Iraq, Israel, New Zealand, Pakistan, Sweden, the Soviet Union, Britain, the U. S. and Uruguay.

The commission will go to any spot on the invitation of a threatened country to check on threats to the peace. The U. S. had preferred that the Big Five stay off this group, but Vishinsky insisted the great powers should be on it. The U. S. agreed and noted that decisions of this body would be by majority vote and there would be no veto.

The Collective Measures Committee was composed of Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Burma, Canada, Egypt, France, Mexico, the Philippines, Turkey, Britain, the United States, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

Acheson Speech in September

Secretary Acheson laid down his program for peace in an address to the Assembly in September. His ideas were agreed on by several other delegations and they sponsored the long resolution incorporating the Acheson plan.

The main Soviet opposition was based on a declaration the Acheson plan would by-pass the Security Council and violate the Charter. Vishinsky appealed for the Assembly to respect the principle of unanimity in the Charter, which is the technical language for giving the Big Five the veto right.

Opposing delegates answered they were not trying to break the Security Council, but that they had given the Security Council up in a large measure as an effective force because of the 46 Russian vetoes. They also replied they were giving the Assembly more authority so that the Korean war would not happen again somewhere else in the world.

The next step is to see how many nations come up with direct offers of armed force under the resolution.

U. N. Scores 3 in Red Bloc For Curbing Rights

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP).—The United Nations General Assembly today adopted a resolution denouncing Russia's Balkan satellites — Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary—for trampling on human rights.

The Assembly approved a denunciatory Australian resolution by a vote of 40 in favor, 5 against and 12 abstentions.

The action grew out of the trial and imprisonment of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and similar trials and purges in Communist-dominated Romania and Bulgaria.

Chinese Talks Seek to Stir War Support

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3 (AP).—Chinese Communist broadcasts today reported mass meetings in China which appeared aimed at raising popular support for open intervention in the Korean war.

Broadcasts from the Peiping radio, heard by the Associated Press in San Francisco, quoted village speakers as calling American forces in Korea a "man-eating beast which, if not shot in time, will break into our homes."

There was no reference to United Nations action in Korea. Nor was there the slightest hint that Chinese Red troops already have crossed the Manchurian border into North Korea to help the Red Korean army.

The word campaign against the United States, a frequent theme of broadcasts from Peiping, reached a new peak in intensity.

Typical of the incendiary broadcasts were quotations from "peasants" such as these:

". . . I tell these inhuman mad dogs—the American imperialists—that I will break their skulls with my hoe, and let them have a taste of our Chinese people's strength . . ."

The broadcaster editorialized: "They (the peasants) know that to oppose the U. S. invaders they cannot be content with indignation and talk and that many practical things have to be done by them . . ."

Significantly the peasants quoted in the above broadcasts were described as living in the Port Arthur and Dairen areas on the Liaotung peninsula in Manchuria.

Hospital Stay Costs $285 Average Here

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

It costs a patient an average of $285 to be sick and carried through one siege of illness in private hospitals here.

Of this sum, $131 goes to the hospital; $109 represents the doctor's bill; $15 is for anesthesia and $6 for X-ray services, $10 for special nursing, and the remaining $14 pays other costs.

The expense of acute illness requiring hospitalization, and the extent to which area residents are covered by insurance plans against such costs, were uncovered here in a survey of some 1796 private patients admitted to general and allied special hospitals in the District.

The survey findings are published in today's weekly issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The District-wide study, covering two busy weeks of hospital life in which patients, doctors and hospital personnel were interviewed on cost facts, was conducted by the U. S. Public Health Service under sponsorship of the District Medical Society.

Its findings show:

1. Seventy percent of the nearly 1800 patients were subscribers to some form of voluntary health insurance.

2. Of those insured, their policies paid from 36.8 percent to 74 percent of their total bills, depending on the types of insurance to which they subscribed.

3. More than half of the patients subscribed to Group Hospitalization, Inc., the Blue Cross plan, which paid, on the average, 40 percent of their total bills.

4. About half of these GHI subscribers also subscribed to Medical Service of the District of Columbia, the Blue Shield companion plan for insurance toward doctors' bills. This group had 74 percent of their bills paid by the insurance.

5. Seventeen percent of the patients interviewed held commercial cash indemnity policies, which reimburse the patient directly toward coverabge of his hospital bill. This insurance averaged 36.8 percent of the total sickness bill.

6. The Medical Service plan met [illegible] per cent of the charges to those patients who had obstetric or surgical care.

The District survey marks the first extensive cost-analysis study ever made on the controversial subject and its results can be expected to be freely cited by both proponents and opponents of national compulsory health insurance.

Authors of the AMA report are Theodore Wiprud, executive director of the medical society, and Isidore Altman, biostatistician, of the division of public methods, USPHS.

The authors concluded that the cost of medical care requiring hospitalization "is high but not exorbitant in terms of what the patient receives today . . .(but) is often beyond the capacity of a family to meet."

It was pointed out, moreover, that the survey dealt with one-sickness hospitalization, that it did not include chronic disease patients who require long-term hospitalization or periodic care during flare-ups of their disease.

Other conclusions reached by the authors were that "a considerable proportion" of the patients were aided by voluntary medical insurance; that there were "gaps in service" in such insurance, and that though the hospitalization plan "may be said to serve its avowed purpose," the Medical Service plan's coverage is not as complete.

"One observation concerning costs that may seem a little surprising," they wrote, "is that the average bill of the person with no insurance is higher than that of the person who has some insurance."

The difference, as noted in one of the many statistical tables, showed that the total cost of illness for the non-insured patient averaged $321, to $273.60 average for those carrying GHI insurance only, and $279.60 for patients covered by both GHI and Medical Service insurance policies.

The illness costs, it was stressed, were not confined to the period of hospitalization itself. They also included costs for the periods of one month before hospitalization and one month after discharge from the hospital.

The average hospitalization stay for the interviewed patients, it was reported, was 7.4 days. This compares to an average of 6.6 days for the total patient populations of the hospitals during the two-week period of late November and early December, last year.

One important phase of the study was an attempt to relate the cost of illness to the family income. The authors summed up this portion of the study in their text, as follows:

"Among the patients with incomes under $3000, 18 percent had costs to them of $300 or more; 5 percent had costs of $500 or more, and 1 percent had costs totaling more than $1000. This is after allowance for benefits derived from insurance memberships.

"In the next higher group, with incomes of $3000 to $4900, 16 percent had costs of $300 or more.

"For the former group particularly, and even for the latter, the present illness must have created a serious financial burden."

Maryland Teachers Told Of Japan's Educational Gains

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3 (AP)—An educational revolution in Japan was described for Maryland teachers today by Dr. Pearl A. Wanamaker, superintendent of schools in the State of Washington and former president of the National Education Association.

Mrs. Wanamaker recently returned from Japan, where she served as a member of the second United States Educational Mission to that country.

She outlined her findings today to a general session of Maryland State Teachers' Association convention.

Remarkable advances have been made in Japan since V-J Day, she said, adding:

"If those people who have so little can do so much, then we who have so much can do a lot more than we are doing for edutation in this country."

Dr. Wanamaker cited four examples of education progress in Japan. It has been decentralized, she said, with the formation of hundreds of local school districts. School boards are now elected by the people. Parent-Teacher associations have been organized. Japanese teachers are now getting training while they teach.

Judge Delays Theft Sentence

Judge David A. Pine of District Court yesterday postponed for a week sentencing of Richard G. Richardson, 27, former union bookkeeper who pleaded guilty of embezzling $12,000 in union funds.

The judge said he wanted a more satisfactory explanation from Richardson of what was done with the funds taken from the International Association of Machinists here.

In another case, James W. Brown, 24, of 5101 F st. se., received 20 months to 5 years for having carnal relations with a 10-year-old girl.

Melvin C. Carr, 59, of 1418 Q st. nw., received one to four years for assault with a shotgun on Dallas Thompson of 1418 Duncan st. nw.

Lucius H. Sheffield, 34, of 947 T st. nw., got two to six years in prison for housebreaking in the theft of liquors

3000 Attend Juvenile Book Fair Windup

The six-day Washington Post Children's Book Fair in the Department of Commerce auditorium ended last night.

About 11,000 persons visited the fair during the six days. About 3000—half of them children whose school classes came during the day—attended last night.

The fair was held under the auspices of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission with the cooperation of the Washington Booksellers Association, Children's Book Guild and Department of Commerce.

About 1200 books were displayed at the fair, in addition to loan exhibits from the District Public Library, State Department and Dr. Irvin Kerlan, a Washington private collector.

The books donated by publishers are to be distributed to charities selected from a list of Community Chest agencies for children.

Washington Post officials, pleased with the results of the affair, said last night the possibility of making it an annual event will be considered.

Va. Education Association Parley Ends

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3 (AP)—The forty-fourth annual convention of the Virginia Education Association came to an end here tonight with a general session following a day of group discussions.

During the four-day meeting delegates heard a total of 90 talks made by 73 different speakers; and there were hundreds of informla comments.

Dr. M'Ledge Moffett, Dean of Radford College, told a VEA subdivision today that the day is past when leadership will be vested in any one person or in a small group of persons.

Democracy must be "defined in terms of personal behavior which finds its expression in the family, in the school, and in the market place as well as in the theories of government and the verbalism of philosophy," Dean Moffett said.

Lindley J. Stiles, dean of the department of education, University of Virginia, today urged VEA members to seek to guide their more promising students into the teaching profession.

Many young people have rejected teaching as a career "because they have been discouraged from considering it by teachers themselves," Stiles said.

Speaker Attacks Segregation Policy

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3 (AP)—Dr. John Hope Franklin, a visiting professor at Harvard University, said here today segregation is not only an economic burden but also a curse and an insult—a denial of human rights and human dignity."

In an address at the Virginia Teachers Association's annual convention, he said an "indignity perpetrated against the human race—whether in Richmond or in Johannesburg, South Africa—is a violation of the basic code of human dignity."

Postlude

New Whittall Series Opens At Library

By Paul Hume

Rudolf Serkin and Adolf Busch opened this season's Whittall concerts in the Library of Congress last night.

The popular piano and violin team played sonatas by Mozart, Brahms, Schubert, and Beethoven. In spite of the familiar composers involved, the program held little music we hear very often. Only Brahms' D Minor Sonata falls in this category.

In their account of that great work by Brahms, Busch and Serkin seemed bent on a work of redemption. It was as if they knew how frequently this sonata has been softened up and over-sweetened lately by various famous performers.

Their version was vigorous, sometimes almost violent. The first and last movements went at a headlong pace that could have been modified a bit without hurting the work. But it was a relief to have it delivered with such respect for its true essence.

Mozart's G Major sonata, rarely played, was a gem in every way. Its opening movement is flawless at every point. It was perfectly performed. Serkin had to cancel a recent piano engagement because of an injury to his hand.

The adagio in the Brahms sonata was notable in the same way as the opening measures of the Mozart. And the familiar singing style of Schubert emerged in relaxed vein in his A Minor Sonatina. Here, as in the Mozart, Busch could draw the right kind of tone and line from his violin. In the large moments of the Brahms, the violin lacked the spacious line and adequate tone.

The recital closed with the final sonata of Beethoven, Opus 96 in G Major.

Travel Agents Hear Warning By Steelman

Military victory in Korea will not assure peace, John R. Steelman, Assistant to the President, said last night.

Speaking at a dinner concluding the three-day convention of the American Society of Travel Agents in the Hotel Shoreham, Steelman said:

"We cannot be assured that new conquests will not be attempted. The United Nations must always be prepared to respond with the same high degree of resolution, realism, and courage to a challenge of aggression.

"Our objective in Korea is simple," Steelman added. "We want to help the people of Korea to help themselves. We have no desire to impose blueprints upon them; we have no pat solutions."

Two things must be done to support UN in the reconstruction of Korea and safeguard free peoples from further Communist aggression, Steelman said—continue to build up the economic and moral strength of free nations; increase the defensive military strength of ourselves and of the free world.

"For the free peoples to create the necessary defensive strength, a substantial portion of the American economy must be reserved for military production for many years to come," he declared.

"This means a home-front program along two lines. First, a substantial portion of our present capacity must be shifted to defense production, and this requires controls. Second, basic industrial capacity must be substantially increased.

"In a scarcity economy, rationing of scarce items is a necessity. Only if our economy expands rapidly enough to meet the needs of consumers and of the military, can we hope to escape controls or minimize the use of controls."

Not CIA's Fault

A misguided effort has been made to blame the Central Intelligence Agency for the supposed failure to warn the President of the attempt on his life. Whatever the deficiencies in intelligence about the plot, the fault was definitely not CIA's. Under the National Security Act of 1947 the Central Intelligence Agency is specifically forbidden from engaging in police and internal security activities in the United States and its possessions. In other words, not only is CIA totally out of the Puerto Rican picture, but it would have no business there. The responsibility for predicting the assault, if it could have been predicted, belonged to the Secret Service, which guards the President, and to the FBI, which is generally responsible for internal security. Those who would make the CIA a scapegoat in this case either have political axes to grind or simply do not know the facts.

Schools And Sewers

Treasurer John Locke Green of Arlington County has engaged in a remarkably misleading, and from all appearances malicious, effort to block the $7,450,000 school bond issue to be presented to the voters on November 7. In a letter to the electorate he charges that the elected school board has been extravagant, that the operating cost per pupil has risen from $98 to $232 since 1948, and that the board is spending "over $80,000" per new classroom in comparison with the Virginia average of $14,000.

We hope that Mr. Green is more careful with county revenues than with his political charges. Actually, according to school board statistics, the per pupil cost in 1947-48 was $159.06, and in 1949-50 (the last season for which accurate figures are available), $196.85—below the national average. Contract cost per new room in elementary schools has been $34,279, which compares favorably with costs in areas of similar size and is within the estimate of costs prepared by the United States Office of Education. Incidentally, the Virginia Department of Education notes cost ranges within the last four years of from $16,666 to $51,060 per elementary school room and from $28,313 to $56,225 per high school classroom, depending entirely upon what is included. In every case of new construction, the school board has taken the lowest of at least seven bids. Moreover, Mr. Green overlooks completely the fact that Arlington has been recovering from long years of school neglect, and that the new board has been raising salaries and providing such things as laboratories which students have never enjoyed and which add to "room" costs.

The same may be said of the report of a group representing the Arlington Ridge Civic Association. This report is extremely misleading in attempting to compare costs of completed schools in Arlington with base schools in Montgomery County; its findings have been debunked by school architects. Incidentally, the names of some of the "signers" of this report appear to have been used without their knowledge.

What is more important than defense of the school board—which, in our opinion, has done an honest and competent job—is the recognition of new needs. Whereas Arlington now has a school population of 16,000, by 1954-55 it will have an estimated 22,000. The bond issue is designed to provide a new high school, a new junior high, three new elementary schools, extensive additions to present schools and the purchase of new sites. Even this construction will not end all use of temporary buildings. The alternative is half-day sessions for at least 6000 students by 1952. Yet the bond issue, which can be managed without impairing county credit, will mean an increase of only $7 on a $100 tax bill.

No less important is the accompanying $2,617,000 bond issue for a new sewage treatment plant, on which we have commented previously. Arlington now dumps half its sewage raw into the Potomac. Chairman Harold A. Kemp of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, himself an Arlington resident, has stated: "These plant additions are absolutely necessary and no frills are involved . . . A septic or cesspool condition is threatened (in the river) and must be prevented." Unless new facilities are provided the Virginia Water Control Board has authority virtually to stop Arlington expansion by banning additional raw sewage from the river.

Both propositions in these referendums aggregating 10 million dollars are equally essential. The cost is heavy, but it is the cost of delay and neglect in Arlington's growth to metropolitan status. The cost can be borne relatively easily now without a great increase in taxes. But if either issue should be defeated in the misguided view that there is some cheaper way to obtain these necessities, the cost may be felt many times over in the form of half-educated children or possible disease epidemics.

French Fears

No military unity can possibly be built up in the West as long as the French think of the German as a worse enemy than the Russian. This is Mr. Moch's approach, shared, doubtless, by the Socialists of whom he is one of the leaders, and a sizable number of the members of the other political parties. At any rate, the Pleven ministry would not have erected this attitude into policy unless the state of France's domestic politics demanded it. The mystery is not so much that this state of mind exists, but that the French should have come to a formal conference in Washington with a proposition that any schoolboy could have foreseen would be impossible for any of the other Atlantic powers to accept.

The Franco-Atlantic issue is not yet entirely clear, but the facts are gradually coming to light. As a preliminary to the military unification of the Atlantic community France wants a signature of the Schuman Plan tying together the coal and steel industries of continental Europe. This is a basic job for Atlantic diplomacy which should have had, but has not had, the continuing backing of the State Department on the working level. There are other French conditions, such as a European parliament and a European Minister of Defense, but the French would probably be content with the Schuman Plan, knowing that this would generate a momentum for the federalization of Europe.

However, there are military snags that would still remain to be overcome. One is the exact size of German units to be incorporated into a European army. It is also said that the French want in Europe three armies instead of one: American, British and European, to be coordinated (imposter word) by an American commander in chief. The French object to divisional strength for Germans, insisting upon smaller groups not exceeding regimental size. Military opinion elsewhere is dead set against the condition on units, saying that it would impose an impossible task upon the unified command—at least till Europe gets more "mixed up together" than it is today. As to the other military condition, this, if true, only serves to illustrate the depth of France's superior fear, and the impossibility in such a circumstance of working out unity.

The effect of these military conditions would be to undermine the strategy that was agreed upon prior to the October 28 conference. To the Scandinavians these conditions would put in doubt the protection of the Scandinavian wing. Certainly they would leave out Germany, because there would be no German contribution, and this would make the line on the Elbe that much more difficult to support and sustain. This is clear from a statement from Chancellor Adenauer. "If the Federal Republic," he says, "is to put a contingent at the disposal of an American-European army, then it will do so only on a footing of complete equality with all the other contingents. That is our condition, without which we shall in no circumstances cooperate." There is logic in the statement. Here is the key to unity in Europe—the harmonization of Western Germany with western Europe.

So the problem is not particular issues but the general issue of France's residual fear of Germany rising superior to any concern about Soviet Russia. The way to bury a fear is to absorb it, or, to put the matter in folksy terms: If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em! To keep at arm's length is not to join, but to stay unjoined, the opposite purpose of the unfortunate Atlantic meeting. The revelation that a "great panic" in France is proof against even the kind of guaranty that was offered to the French will make the American people more wakeful than ever lest what was to be a calculated risk is compromised into a quixotic one.

However, an organizational gap in the Atlantic set-up was revealed when the French bombshell exploded. Why wasn't the French case submitted to the Council of Deputies (of the Foreign Ministers) in Paris so as to avoid a futile and anticlimactic conference of the Defense Ministers? Why is there a separation between the Defense Ministers and the Foreign Ministers when all the matters under discussion are politico-military? The miscarriage of SHAPE might be the occasion for the establishment of a council of governments of the Atlantic powers pending any reconsideration of the issue in dispute which might be forthcoming.

Balanced Budget?

A correspondent whose letter appears on this page today criticizes our editorial, "Balanced Budget?" on the ground that it attempts to justify heavier taxes solely on the basis of anticipated increases in defense outlays, and implies that inflation is not possible without budgetary deficits. To that charge we can only say that we were dealing with one aspect of inflation in the editorial. Previously we had discussed and indorsed various credit control measures designed to discourage what the Federal Reserve Bank of New York calls private deficit financing—that is, expenditures in excess of current income financed by borrowing. We agree that excessive private spending, not Government deficits, are chiefly responsible for the rise in prices since the start of the Korean war. In saying that deficit financing provides the fuel with which to feed the fires of inflation, we did not intend to convey the impression that inflation is not already a reality, but simply to warn that existing inflation would be seriously aggravated if anticipated Government deficits are not offset by higher taxes.

Our correspondent has, however, raised an important question by his references to the inflationary effect of accelerated private spending, and we welcome the opportunity for comment. Since the start of the Korean war consumers have been buying more than usual in anticipation of higher prices. Businessmen have also been spending more on plant and equipment and building up inventories in anticipation of higher prices. A Gallup poll published this week indicates that nearly 7 out of 10 Americans believe that the prices of most things they buy will be higher six months hence than now. This state of mind actually tends to make their forecasts come true, because it leads consumers and businessmen alike to try to beat the expected price rise, thereby creating shortages that result in advances. Savings have been drawn upon and loans have been increased to finance extra large purchasing, with the result that current purchasing power has been rising more rapidly than the volume of purchasable goods and the upward pressure on prices has been intensified.

As our correspondent points out, the mere balancing of the Federal Government's cash budget, important though it is, will not lick inflation. Balanced budgets simply prevent inflation from becoming more extreme, while higher taxes weaken inflationary forces by taking money away from people who might use it to "feed the fires of inflation." Economic Stabilizer Valentine said in his first public address since taking office that "many good Americans are not yet ready to make real personal sacrifices to serve in the war against inflation." We greatly fear that Mr. Valentine's warning that a controls program lasting much more than four years may be necessary will not have the intended restraining effect on private spending, especially in view of the widespread belief that prices are going still higher. But unless the public is willing to spend less and save more, unless workers are willing to forgo wage increases that lead to higher prices, inflation cannot be arrested without recourse to direct wage and price controls, in addition to tax increases.

Tough Going

The optimism which pervaded our military and much of the world over the Korean campaign is being tempered by reverses in the north. Whether or not Chinese troops are present in any great numbers, the stiffer stands and counterattacks by the North Koreans coincide with reports of their use. On this point, it seems to us, the National Security Council and the State Department have made a cardinal blunder. The Peiping radio, it is now said, has long evinced great concern about the two dams built by the Japanese along the Yalu River border which furnish electricity to Manchuria, and has talked of establishing a cordon sanitaire around these dams. Yet there has been not one word of assurance from the United States that the dams would not be molested. Clearly such assurance is within the province of the State Department, since the United States is serving as the agent of the United Nations.

It may be doubted, of course, that fear of the destruction of the dams is the sole reason for Chinese involvement. For example, United States forces have had it within their power to destroy the dams by air any time they wanted to. That point ought to be made to the Chinese. Nevertheless, some Chinese concern is understandable. American troops had advanced within 30 miles of the important Suiho Dam, about 75 miles above the mouth of the Yalu in northwest Korea; this dam has two thirds the capacity of the Hoover Dam, and the powerhouse is on the Korean side of the border. Whatever the Chinese motives, a declaration by the State Department on the status of the dam would at least remove any technical justification for Chinese intervention.

In the broader picture the intensified fighting fits in with the Kremlin strategy of pinning down United Nations, and particular American, troops as long as possible. The extensive mining of the harbor at Wonsan and elsewhere was a clew that no formal surrender by the North Koreans was to be expected soon. It may be that their intention all along was to retreat to the northern border where they could be easily supplied from Manchuria and Russia; certainly they have been getting more supplies and air support. Enough North Koreans escaped from the south to furnish formidable resistance, and in this connection the recapture of Seoul without first closing the trap on North Koreans in the area may have been a mistake on the part of the U. N. armies.

It is possible, too, that some of the difficulty of U. N. forces in the north is occasioned by the fact that they have outrun their supplies. Here the United Nations push was a gamble to keep the enemy off balance; in large part it succeeded. But winter is approaching, and if American troops remain pinned down over the winter the Moscovites will have accomplished much of their purpose. The aim must be to wipe out organized resistance quickly and leave the policing of guerillas to amply-armed South Koreans. That is why it is so important that more forces be obtained from other U. N. members. In recent days only Colombia has offered additional troops. The death of the Australian commander in combat ought to demonstrate that fighting is still going on and that the responsibility of many U. N. members is still far from met.

"Balanced Budget"

Though I agree with its conclusion, your October 28 editorial "Balanced Budget," I feel, does not adequately answer the question, "why the Administration insists that tax increases are necessary to curb inflation, if the cash budget (of the Government) is about to be balanced."

That this question should be asked illustrates the insufficiency of the "pay-as-you-go" principle as a guide. As long as there is Government deficit spending this slogan has its place, but after this ceases, i. e. the cash budget has been balanced, it becomes useless.

With deficit spending in an inflationary situation, balancing the budget is a step in the right direction only because it is counter-inflationary. Increased taxes help balance the budget and also reduce the amount of private spending otherwise possible. It should be clear now that not the former but the latter effect is what matters.

The purpose of taxation is not to supply the Federal Government with revenue which it can get by other means. On the other hand, one of the purpose of taxation is simply to take money away from people who might use it to "feed the fires of inflation."

The fact that defense spending is off to a slow start does not mean that inflation is off to a slow start. Inflation is already here. Prices in general are rapidly mounting now. By justifying heavier taxes on the basis alone of anticipation of larger defense outlays next year and for the indefinite future, you underrate the present urgency of the problem.

You say "the budgetary deficits of succeeding years will provide fuel with which to feed the fires of inflation," as if this inflammatory danger is not possible without budgetary deficits. The extent of inflation, however, is determined by spending, public and private, in relation to production, and by budgetary deficits only insofar as they affect spending and/or production.

At the present time, a dollar spent by anyone, including the Government even if cash inflow and outflow are in balance, has an inflationary impact; to maintain proper balance between inflationary and deflationary forces, a budgetary surplus is called for.

It is not only "the total flow on money between the Government and the public" which we have to worry about, but rather the total flow of money between anyone and anyone else. What we should look at, for this purpose, is not the books of the Government accounts, but what hits us in the eye, the various price indices. SIDNEY KORETZ,

Halloween "Eve"

As householders who have always been reasonably cooperative with the children on Halloween, my wife and I would like to inquire your purpose in condoning, and in fact encouraging, the celebration of this traditional affair on the night of October 30, as well as on the night of October 31. What is your justification for inciting this double demand upon the householder and this double indulgence of the children?

I am also curious as to the literacy of the reporter who wrote the following sentence in your issue of October 31: "For District policemen and firemen who recall with a shiver last year's 42 false alarms, this Halloween eve was almost like a day off." It might contribute to what he should have learned in kindergarten if you would advise him that the word Halloween itself means All Hallows' eve, i. e., the evening of All Saints' Day, which falls on November 1, and that one does not speak of the eve any more than one speaks of the eve of Christmas eve on the night of December 23. But, of course, it is helpful to the double indulgence to encourage a contrary notion.

In passing, it might be interesting to know whether you intend to support the celebration of Christmas eve several nights in succession before the actual date, and perhaps to have Christmas Day repeated several times over. This would at least be a happier arrangement for many of those concerned than the duplication of Halloween.

Christian War

It is interesting to read of the Faith Festival of Protestants, with its eloquent attacks upon atheism.

But why cannot these pulpit spokesmen go to the full length of Christian warfare? They demand personal piety, which is actually only half of the Gospel. The other vital half is social justice, which demands persistent war against the two destructive monsters—communism and capitalism. Apparently only a minority of Christians confess this, while the majority falter.

Montgomery Charter

This letter attempts to help the Montgomery County voters who are confused on the fact that the Charter Committee endorses eight candidates (two Democrats, and six Republicans) although there are only seven members to be elected to the County Council next Tuesday.

The reason is simple. The vicious Lindsay law, put on by stealth by the Brooke Lee Democratic machine, compels the use of party labels in the election of county officials. Hence the Charter Committee had no choice but to make indorsements from both lists of party candidates in the recent primaries. Specifically, it found that it could endorse six Democrats and six Republicans. When the ballots were counted all six Republican endorsees had survived, but only two Democratic endorsees had qualified for the final election.

On election day, Charter supporters therefore have only two alternatives in selecting the seven candidates they wish to vote for among those eight Charter Committee endorsees: Either (1) they will vote for the six Republican nominees (Nesbit, Smith,, Reid, Hammond, Lawlor and Monarch) plus the upcounty Democrat (Walker) who has no opposition, or (2) they will do the same, except that in the place of the Republican, Reid, they will substitute the Democrat, Mrs. Werner, who was also endorsed by Charter from the Fourth District.

Voting System In Fairfax

It will now be obvious to everyone who has read the prolific statements put out by the advocates of the county manager system in Fairfax that the real issue is that of representation, or voting rights, rather than a more efficient county government.

It is painfully apparent that the toughest task the county manager group now has is to explain away the fact that, in a statute comprising some 6000 words, allegedly devoted to setting up an efficient county government, there appears a phrase of seven little words, tucked away at the end of a sentence in an obscure paragraph, which changes completely the voting franchise. It is this "joker" type of legislation, such as is exemplified in the county manager form, that has aroused the county executive advocates to the dangers that always exist to men's freedom and liberty in the franchise.

These seven mysterious little words refer to the election of the Board of Supervisors "by the qualified voters of the county." This language veritably abolishes magisterial districts. Our unswerving view is that, even if it be conceded that magisterial districts are obsolete, they should be abolished explicitly in a clearly presented issue to the voters, as prescribed by law, and not, as is the case in the county manager statute, indirectly by a few words cleverly inserted in a statute where no one would ever expect to find it.

I cannot help thinking at times that the irresponsible actions and statements by the county manager advocates have retarded county government progress for many years.

A bit of grim humor in this matter appears in your issue of November 1. On the editorial page, under the caption of "Montgomery County," appears a jeremiad bewailing the fact that, under a county manager system under which the county-wide system of voting is in existence, the "machine" candidates appear to be about to take over the reins of power in Montgomery County politics. On the very same page Mr. Harold Ward tells us in a letter how difficult it is for a "machine" to gain control under the same system of voting which he and other ill-advised enthusiasts are trying to foist upon the unhappy Fairfax electorate. Truly the ability to disentangle fact from fancy is sadly lacking in the champions of the so-called "popular uprising among the county's overwhelming majority"—to quote from Mr. Ward's letter.

When the Federal Constitutional Convention met in Philadelphia in 1787, our own Virginia delegates came there with a cut-and-dried scheme for a national government.

Under the Virginia plan the national legislature was to be composed of two houses. The lower house was to be chosen directly by the people and the upper house (or Senate) was to be chosen by the lower house from lists of persons nominated by the State Legislatures. Representation in both houses of Congress was to be either in proportion to the number of free inhabitants of each State, or in proportion to the quotas of contribution, or to both.

If this plan had been adopted, it would then have given 16 delegates to Virginia and one delegate to Rhode Island in the lower house and a similar relative apportionment in the Senate. Had this plan gone into effect the result would have been that the larger and more populous States would have run the national government. Also the power of States as political entities would have been greatly reduced.

Today the majority of the people in Fairfax County may be in Providence, Falls Church and Mount Vernon districts, and Lee, Centerville, and Dranesville may be but sparsely populated. In the future, however, the population may have greatly shifted, especially if the Federal "fringe city" plan is adopted. Then, my county-manager friends will realize the mistake they made when they tried to put through the "force bill" of county managership on a then numerically weaker group of people. LEWIS S. TRAVIS.

Keeping The 'Rascals' Out

By Malvina Lindsay

Defamers' Field Day

THE question was flung at me and I had no ready answer. It was one that caught fire instantly in a discussion in a seminar for a group of visiting German editors.

"What I can't understand," said a young woman with big puzzled eyes, "is how these men who seem like criminals ever get nominated." She meant the candidates whose rascality, as so colorfully depicted by their opponents, she had been reading about in American newspapers.

"Why," she went on, "don't candidates tell what they are for, instead of only shouting how bad their opponents are?"

I was about to reach for my ever-handy cliche about "human nature" when the leader of the discussion took the ball. He was glad, he said, the visiting editors were in this country during an election campaign, and could see both its good and bad features. It was true some campaigning had reached a very low pitch, that of New York for example. But they should understand that the American voter shrugged off a lot of this invective and accusation as part of the game and generally used his own judgment at the ballot box.

He then brought out that, despite the charges of political corruption resounding on all sides, there had been a gradual but steady decline in this through the years. Citizens today wouldn't stand for the open abuses that had once been tolerated. Above all, newspapers were more alert in exposing these.

LATER—for the subject carried on in private discussion—I asked a German editor, an obvious intellectual, if campaigning everywhere didn't run to the personal. Perhaps, he admitted, but not to the extent he had seen in this country. European politics had its intrigue and other weaknesses, but seldom did it emphasize so much the bitter personal attack. The British particularly, he felt, kept campaigning on a high level of sportsmanship.

But, he went on tactfully, ideas interested Europeans more, whereas Americans, being a younger people, wanted the material symbol of the idea. Hence they fought their political battles in terms of personalities.

Yet I felt no better satisfied with all our explanations than I am sure did many of the visiting German editors. I tried to tell myself that campaign mud slinging was just a show, giving the voter the same vicarious outlet for his aggressions as a prizefight. Still—wasn't it time that an election became something more than a sports event?

Perhaps though, gutter campaigning was just a good old American custom. I recalled its long tradition in political life: how the first Republicans were cartooned as cannibals, drunkards, pirates, anarchists, called "low radical scum"; how the Federalists were branded monarchists, England lovers, warmongers, spendthrifts; how Washington was ridiculed and lambasted for kingly habits; how John Adams was called everything from the Duke of Braintree to a madman; Jefferson charged, among other things, with guilt by association because he entertained Tom Paine, a "sot and infidel."

I THOUGHT of the gossip-mongering about Rachel Jackson; of the vicious epithets bestowed on Lincoln; of the alley cat fighting that had occurred in virtually every campaign down to my own time. That was the trouble! We weren't making any improvement. In fact we had now mastered new techniques by which campaigners could hit more effectively below the belt with no danger of libel.

Why was it that if we were making some progress against political corruption, as I firmly believed, that our civic conscience, even our self interest in preventing our enemy from dividing us, didn't demand more civilized campaigning? Why were we parroting campaign lies without investigating their truth? Why were we not asking programs of action from spellbinders instead of being entertained by their rantings?

Well, maybe after all, human nature—no I would not take that way out! Anyway human nature, some of it, aspired to something better. I thought of the sweeping success of Margaret Chase Smith's campaign for the Senate—a campaign of positive approach that was one answer to the young German journalist's question. I thought of the dignified campaign free of personalities that Representative Reva Beck Bosone and Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest were waging against each other in Utah, and of the many other decent campaigns not making the headlines.

Suddenly I didn't feel so depressed about the candidates who would go into office Tuesday elected by people's suspicions, prejudices, fears and hatreds. For their political scaffolds would rest upon the sands.

Arlington School Bonds

I would like to second Howard Massey's sentiments (letter published October 21) with regard to the Arlington County School Board and the proposed bond issue.

In view of the facts and figures presented by County Treasurer John Locke Green, the question of how to vote at the polls next Tuesday poses less of a problem. I think our county treasurer has done the citizens of Arlington County a great service in bringing the facts on the expenditures of our school board before the Arlington voters.

Americans Abroad

By Marquis Childs

Impressions in Flight

ABOARD TWA's Star of Massachusetts en Route Home.—Ten years ago even the wildest prophet could hardly have foreseen how America is today tied into the web of world affairs. The globe-girdling American plane is a link with every corner of the earth, foreshortening time and space in a way that still seems part magic.

Childs

Americans are everywhere. They are traveling on public and private missions, most of them connected with one phase or another of the global effort to contain communism. Here are snapshots of three such Americans. It would probably be inaccurate to call them typical; yet they are representative of the thousands upon thousands who have gone out on one kind of assignment or another.

The Engineer. He was well past the retirement age when his firm in New York sent him to Greece to survey a hydro-electric project to be constructed largely with American funds supplied by ECA. It is part of a three to five year program planned to double the electric power available to the Greeks.

"I'm going to get young again," he says as he talks enthusiastically about the job ahead of him. "That's one reason I told them I was willing to come out. I wasn't ready to be put on the shelf."

"Waiting for his wife to join him, he is learning what he hopes will be enough Greek to enable him to talk to ordinary people he meets when he's out in the country. And he is organizing the field trips that will provide the data for his survey.

"These people," he says earnestly, "are way behind in this power business. They've only got on the average about 400 kilowatt-hours per person a year and that compares with a little over 2300 kilowatt-hours for the United States."

He's a little nervous about his wife, about whether she will like housekeeping in Athens. But she's a good sport, he says, and he thinks she'll take to the idea of getting young again, too.

THE colonel. He's one of the old-time fly boys who achieved the rank of brigadier general briefly during World War II. Now, as a chicken colonel, he's second in command at an American air base in Europe. It's a pretty routine kind of job which the colonel carries out with an efficiency that is sure, but somewhat heavy-handed.

You don't have to talk with him long to discover a kind of smoldering resentment. It seems to be directed at "those folks over there in Washington" who are fiddle-faddling around in a way that raises the colonel's blood pressure dangerously.

"What are we putting up with it for?" he demands, in the strong accent of Oklahoma or, maybe, Texas. "What are we letting those Chinese Communists get away with it for? It just don't make any sense to me."

You ask the colonel what he would do if he had his way.

"What'd I do!" He thumps on the luncheon table with a heavy fist. "Why I'd go in there. I'd clean 'em out. I'd do what has to be done. You don't think we got the power to do it? Well, we have."

"Of course," he says a little later in a tone of resigned melancholy, "I haven't got any call to be talking this way. You saw what they did to my friend Orville Anderson. But I don't give a blankety blank," and his voice rises again, "I'm goin' to say that we ought to hit 'em right at the heart, right where the power is."

THE GI. In the MATS air terminal at Dhahran in Saudi Arabia, air-conditioned against the sticky, penetrating heat outside, he is lounging on a ticket counter. He watches the ebb and flow of passengers from the big planes with a detached, philosophic interest.

"Oh, it's not bad," he says. "Of course, it's hotter than the hinges of hell most of the time. And the sand blows a lot—it blows in your hair and your eyes. But what's really bad is that there isn't any women. There's a half-dozen Army nurses. But they don't date the GIs because the officers keep them dated up all the time.

"See, there's one now," he says, nodding in the direction of a woman in uniform passing briskly through the waiting room.

The big brass are coming in tomorrow and the GI has a crew of Arabs polishing doors and windows. One of the Arabs comes up and the GI says, "Now listen, Joe, you know damned well you haven't got that glass in that door clean. Look at the smears on it." There is a bit of good-natured laughter between them and the Arab goes back to work.

"Of course," says the GI, "they only keep you out here a year. And it isn't so bad for me because I get to fly with special missions to Teheran and Baghdad and places like that and you can find some women there." No, it isn't so bad, he says over the raucous sound of the loudspeaker announcing a plane departure. His good-natured grin breaks out as he tells Joe to bear down on that window.

Senate Election Investigators Quiz Hanley in Hospital Bed

HUDSON, N. Y., Nov. 3 (NYHT) Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, Republican candidate for United States Senator, explained to investigators from the Senate Subcommittee on Elections today the circumstances of his now-famous letter to Representative W. Kingsland Macy, Suffolk County Republican leader.

Hanley talked with the investigators for 45 minutes this morning from his bed in Columbia Memorial Hospital here, after which he issued a statement saying he had "told them everything without any equivocation or mental reservations."

The investigators, Edward A. McDermott, special counsel to the Senate subcommittee, and Bruce C. Aultman, his associate, said Hanley was "very cooperative" and their interview with him was "very satisfactory."

They were smiling when they left Hanley and declined to give any details of the 74-year-old lieutenant governor's explanation of why, in his letter to Macy, he was assured of being able to clear up his debts in 90 days. They said if there was to be any statement it would have to come from Hanley.

In answer to a question, however, they made it clear it could not be assumed they were through with the questioning of Hanley. Having previously questioned Macy, as well as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Representative William L. Pfeiffer, Republican State chairman, they said they would try to make a report this weekend to the Senate Elections Subcommittee, of which Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) is chairman.

They left here for New York City, saying they intended to fly to Washington tonight.

Hanley, who entered the hospital Wednesday on his doctor's orders for a complete rest from exhaustion, sat up in bed to give his version of the letter to the Senate investigators. Also present were his physician, Dr. Gene S. Rogati; Arthur H. Schwartz, counsel to the State Republican Committee, and Hanley's two sons, James R. and Julian H. Hanley, both lawyers.

Widow of Slain Assassin Held In $50,000 Bail; Hearing Nov. 9

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP).—The young widow of Griselio Torresola, slain when he tried to kill President Truman, went to prison today, her lips tight, her head high.

She was unable to raise $50,000 bail and was held on a charge of plotting to injure the President.

The woman, 21-year-old Carmen Torresola, finally was seized by the FBI last night, hours after she slipped out of her Manhattan hotel, her baby in her arms.

U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol said at her arraignment that there is no evidence she was an active schemer against Mr. Truman's life. But he said she "expressed herself in entire sympathy with the attempt on the President's life."

Saypol revealed that Torresola went to Washington ready to die for the cause he believed would be furthered by the assassination.

He left farewell letters, Saypol said, to his children—a 6-month-old daughter by Mrs. Torresola and an older child of a previous marriage in Puerto Rico.

"Without disclosing their contents," Saypol said of the farewell notes, "They are an indication of an awareness of the imminence of death on his part."

United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald set bail for Mrs. Torresola. He fixed her hearing for November 9.

The Government said its charges against Mrs. Torresola are based on "admissions" by Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 42, whose husband survived the Washington assassination attempt.

Mrs. Collazo, an ardent nationalist like her husband, also is held in default of $50,000 bail on the conspiracy charge. Like Mrs. Torresola, she is a mother—of two daughters and third girl born to her husband's first wife.

Both women, if convicted on the conspiracy charge, face a maximum penalty of six years in prison and a $5000 fine.

Torresola's Brother Arrested in Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—United States postal authorities and Federal marshals today arrested four Puerto Rican Nationalists, including the brother of one of the men who tried to assassinate President Truman Wednesday.

It was the first time United States authorities stepped into the Nationalists' revolt, which Gov. Luis Munoz Marin declared only tonight had come to an end after some 450 Nationalists were arrested.

Among the arrested men was Elio Torresola, brother of Griselio Torresola, who was killed by guards as he tried to shoot his way into Blair House while the President slept.

Quick Collazo Trial Sought

will leave from Madison pl. just north of Pennsylvania ave.

The United States attorney reported the Collazo case will be placed before the Grand Jury "as soon as practical." His office will seek an indictment against Collazo on a charge of first degree murder of Coffelt and charges of assault with intent to kill the wounded policemen, Fay said.

Collazo Can Be Charged

Fay explained that even if Torresola fired the bullets which killed Coffelt, Collazo can be charged with the crime because he participated in the attempted perpetration of a felony which resulted in the murder. There is no special law covering attempts to assassinate the President, it was explained.

Late in the afternoon Fay appeared before District Court Judge Edward A. Tamm to point out that Collazo had expressed a wish for counsel when he was arraigned Thursday but had not yet obtained a lawyer.

Judge Tamm then appointed William E. Leahy to serve as "officer of the court" until Collazo gets counsel. Leahy accepted the responsibility and was requested by Judge Tamm to speak to Collazo, advise him of his rights, and help him get counsel.

Wound Called Superficial

Collazo is in Gallinger Hospital with a bullet wound in his shoulder. Authorities there said the wound is superficial. An operation will be performed to remove the bullet. His wife is under arrest in New York City on a conspiracy charge.

Local authorities said yesterday that Collazo has admitted being in Washington on several occasions before the attempted assassination. He was seen here at several meetings of "pressure groups," it was said.

This furthered disbelief of investigators in his story that he and Torresola alone hatched up the plot to assassinate the President and "took a chance" on finding him in Blair House when they tried to storm the doors.

Sticks to His Story

Authorities added they believe the two men would have tried to get into the White House unless they "knew" in some way that the President would be at Blair House instead. The shooting happened shortly after 2 p. m., while Mr. Truman was taking an after-lunch nap.

Collazo is sticking to his story that he and Torresola met several weeks ago in New York City and schemed to kill the President, hoping to set off a revolution in this country which would bring about Puerto Rico's independence, authorities said.

They added, however, they believe the action of the two men here may be connected with the Nationalist uprising in Puerto Rico earlier in the week.

Coffelt will be buried today in Arlington Cemetery. President and Mrs. Truman plan to attend the services at 11 a. m. at the Fort Myer Chapel.

good, my husband. I'm glad he didn't suffer.

"You know my husband used to say to me, 'Honey, there's no bad really in anybody in this world, there's only good, really,'" Mrs. Coffelt quoted her husband, cut down at the age of 40 by a man who never knew him. "If anyone does anything wrong they don't mean it."

"He never discussed anything with me about his work—never said anything he thought would worry me. He was the most thoughtful person anyone could have. All he ever said was how he loved the President—how he was such a man, a real man, a good man."

President Truman had said of Pvt. Coffelt's death: "It was a terrible thing to have happen on one of the nicest fellows you ever knew." And the President had written Mrs. Coffelt a letter of condolence—and the first flowers to arrive at the funeral home were yellow chrysanthemums from the President.

"I feel to sorry for the President," Mrs. Coffelt cried. "I know his heart must be heavy, too—knowing that my husband gave his life to save him. He's so kind—he even sent me a letter. Everybody's been so good to me."

A friend moved a handkerchief across Mrs. Coffelt's eyes, drying the tears, and the words came like a psalm of strength:

"I've been proud of him all his life. I'm still proud of him."

The services were originally scheduled for the Washington Cathedral but the decision was made to hold them in Fort Myer Chapel instead, at 11 a.m. today. They will be conducted by Dean W. Suter of the Cathedral, assisted by Lieut.-Col. Robert M. Homiston, Fort Myer chaplain. Bearers will be fellow White House policemen of Private Coffelt's.

Burial will be with full military honors, with the body being taken from the chapel to graveside near the Confederate Monument on McPherson dr.

The casket will be borne on a caisson drawn by six matched greys, and the procession will include the United States Army Band, a firing party of one squad, an escort guard of one platoon, the National Colors, the clergy and members of Pvt. Coffelt's family.

Mass Is Said in Rome For President's Safety

ROME, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, offered a special thanksgiving mass in Rome's American Catholic Church today for "the safety of President Truman."

The Church of Santa Susanna, directed by the Paulist Fathers of New York, was filled with more than 1000 American Catholics and representatives of the Vatican. United States Ambassdor James C. Dunn led United States embassy personnel.

At the end of the mass, Cardinal Spellman offered a special prayer. Selected from the "Prayer of the Church for Civil Authorities" composed by Archbishop John Carroll of Baltimore in the eighteenth century.

Probe Hurts Sen. Lucas in Race

the voters that Dirksen's an "isolationist Rip Van Wrinkle" who has been sleeping in a cave for 10 years while the world passed him by.

Lucas charges Dirksen takes his isolationist line from Col. Robert R. McCormick's Chicago Tribune. The Senate leader even gives some advice to the Republican Party. Only by getting rid of its "die-hards" can it become a really effective opposition party, he says.

Downstate Lucas stresses his own independent voting record, saying:

"Mr. Truman is an intimate friend of mine . . . but I'm against socialized medicine, no matter what they call it, and I'm also against the Brannan (farm) plan."

But he welcomed an assist from Vice President Alben W. Barkley and keys his campaign ever more closely to the Administration line.

Recently, new Lucas billboards were put up in the city of Chicago, featuring a portrait of the President holding aloft his Senate leader's hand. They bear this single inscription: "For World Peace and Continued Prosperity."

Republicans inevitably accused Lucas of "coat-tail riding." Lucas retorts that he ran ahead of President Roosevelt in this State in 1944 and doesn't have to ride coat-tails.

Truman's Recent Speeches

Lucas associates say that President Truman's recent San Francisco and United Nations speeches made such a favorable impression that the Truman-Lucas "world peace and prosperity" billboard is a natural.

Charging foreign policy "bungling and stupidity," Dirksen asks his audiences: "Where is this peace? In Korea? In Tibet? In French Indo-China?"

Then he paints this emotional picture of the draft:

"Amid the weeping of their families, young men are going into uniform. For the second time in five years they are getting ready to march away again."

In nearly every speech the Republican former Congressman charges Administration coddling of Reds, Socialist policies, weakening defenses and a spending policy that brought on inflation.

Quoting frequently from the Bible, he calls his campaign a crusade rather than politics. "I feel there is something Christian in this," he says.

Of the Truman-Lucas billboard, Dirksen said:

"That's the same Lucas who now goes up and down the State kicking Mr. Truman in the teeth on the Brannan Plan and socialized medicine.

Confusion Charged

"Truman goes one way, and Lucas goes the other. And the Veep from Paducah goes around in circles in the middle, saying: 'We're not committed.'"

What's worrying the Democrats more than anything Dirksen says is the hob raised in Cooke County by the Senate Kefauver Committee's investigation of wealthy cops here. Captain Gilbert, Democratic candidate for sheriff, and "The World's Richest Policeman," said he piled up his fortune by "wise investments."

The usually Democratic Chicago Sun-Times, which is supporting Lucas for the Senate, promptly indorsed Gilbert's Republican opponent for sheriff, John E. Babb. It said editorially that with the exception of "Terrible Roger" Touhy, no important member of a crime syndicate has been convicted during Gilbert's term as chief of the State's attorney's police, and that gang murders and syndicates still flourish here. Chicago newspapers published pictures of luxurious homes owned by Chicago police captains, drawing $5000 to $9000 salary a year.

Independent Vote Aroused

Chicago's independent voter is so aroused by the disclosures that it may bolt the Democrats in a big way. Cook County's strong Democratic organization probably has ample votes to elect Gilbert sheriff, but by less than its usual big pluralities. This is bound to be reflected in the Democratic vote for Senator, though Lucas is not involved in the scandal in anyway.

There have been indications in recent days that the Democrats may also lose some Negro votes in Chicago, though this is subject to some dispute. Death of former Mayor Ed Kelly, who was very popular with the Negroes, plainly hurt the Democrats. Republicans are charging that Lucas "dilly-dallied" with the civil rights issue. Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, has been active here for both Dirksen and Babb. Democrats deny any Negro vote defection.

More than offsetting any Cook County cutbacks, Democrats claim they are in better shape than ever in Republican downstate. Lucas has been pounding Dirksen over the head with slashes made in farm items while Dirksen was chairman of the Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee in the GOP Eightieth Congress. In addition, the downstate Republican organization has never quite recovered from Republican Gov. Dwight Green's defeat two years ago.

Lucas Ahead in Poll

A Democratic poll of some 32 downstate towns showed Lucas running ahead 51 percent abnormally high for a Democrat. A poll by The Prairie Farmer Magazine of rural boxholders gave Lucas 48 percent. Discounting many factors in both polls, Lucas aides say they will be in good shape if he gets 40 to 42 percent of the actual farm votes.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), who came within 22,023 votes of carrying the farm areas in 1948, and piled up a 429,751 majority in Cook County, has been campaigning overtime for Lucas all over the State. Douglas, whose stock has risen higher since his election, is credited with considerable pulling power.

Reports are current however that some downstate Democratic County leaders aren't overly enthusiastic about this campaign. Their resentment is said to lie against Gov. Adlai Stevenson, who hasn't been too free with Democratic patronage, rather than against Lucas, but it could account for some of the apathy.

Walter Lippmann is in Europe. His column, "Today and Tomorrow," will be resumed upon his return in December.

The fact that some of Christianity's immediate objectives are often the same as the Communist does not mean that we should scrap our organizations for the care of the needy, but rather that we should stress the spiritual side of charity and emphasize also the importance of the individual, the prelate told his audience of 500 persons.

Religion And Children

President Edmond Borgia Butler of the NCCC told the general meeting that one of the most serious problems today is the preservation of the religious culture of children.

We must insist, he asserted, that "no child placed in any public or other institution shall be without religious training as long as we can provide it."

Butler said he hoped members of the White House Conference on children and youth, which meets here next month, would not have the attitude of those who framed the United Nations' Declaration of Human Rights.

The framers of the Declaration "plagiarized the Declaration of Independence" but ignored God, he charged.

Welcomed by Archbishop

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington welcomed the members of the conference and read a message of benediction from Pope Pius VII.

Chairman of last night's meeting was Alfred A. McGarraghy, secretary of the board of directors of the District Catholic Charities.

During yesterday's sessions of the convention, the Right Rev. Msgrs. John O'Grady, national secretary of Catholic Charities, gave a report of the organization's fortieth year.

Labor and Management

A morning meeting on the subject of cooperation among Catholic agencies, organized labor and management included James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO.

Thomas Kennedy, vice president of the United Mine Workers, spoke at a conference on work opportunities for the aged and physically handicapped.

Sister M. John Berchmans of the Oblate Sisters of Providence here presided over the Conference of Religious on recent developments in group work in homes for children.

Presentation of Medal

Today Catholic University will make its first presentation of the Frederick Ozanam Medal to Mother Marie Antoinette Blanchot, superioress of the Daughters of Charity in Paris.

The presentation will be made by Archbishop O'Boyle in recognition of work done by 8000 Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul during the postwar period in France.

A solemn requiem mass for deceased members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul will be offered at 8 a. m. today by Archbishop O'Boyle at St. Matthew's.

Kensington Firemen Double as Midwives

Mother and baby were doing fine in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, yesterday, but it wasn't what you'd call a routine delivery.

Two volunteer firemen from the Kensington Rescue Squad got an emergency call to pick up Mrs. Carl L. Stephens, 22, of 12132 Viers Mill rd., Viers Mill Village, in the wee hours Thursday and transport her hospitalwise with all speed.

They started transporting her at 4:55 a. m., stopped at 5 a. m. to assist in the delivery of a 9½-pound girl.

The amateur physicians were Deputy Fire Chief Lewis Kengla and Lieut. Hank Ballanger.

The President's Calling List

President Truman had the following White House appointments yesterday:

10 a. m.—Cabinet.

12 noon—Edmond M. Hanrahan, former head of Securities and Exchange Commission.

12:15 p. m.—Harry A. McDonald, chairman, Securities and Exchange Commission.

12:30 p. m.—William O. Douglas, Associate Justice of Supreme Court.

Newsprint Men Defend Prices

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (AP).—A spokesman for Canadian newsprint producers replied sharply today to protests from the United States against recent newsprint price increases.

R. A. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, said manufacturing costs have increased rapidly in the past two years while Dominion newsprint prices have remained unchanged. There also is a constantly rising demand for newsprint, he said.

"In many countries that are vitally important to your country and to mine," Fowler added, "there is not enough newsprint to meet minimum essential needs of informing people of world events."

Fowler said many items coming from the United States have risen in price.

"And," he added, "I have yet to hear of any Canadian manufacturer presuming to tell the American railroads, coal miners or machinery makers what profits they ought to make."

Fowler's reply to criticism in the United States, where publishers are dependent upon Canadian production for more than 80 percent of their newsprint, was in an open letter to a critic of the increase.

Fowler told Charles G. Nichols, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, New York, that the newsprint association has nothing to do with the sale or pricing of newsprint. These matters, he said, are handled by the individual companies.

The Nichols protest was one of a number from the United States since the first Canadian newsprint manufacturer boosted his price $10 a ton October 12.

Several of the large Dominion producers have followed and two United States manufacturers have announced increases.

2 More Firms Boost Price of Newsprint

QUEBEC CITY, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Two newsprint manufacturing firms announced today price boosts on newsprint of $6 a ton, bringing to eight the number of firms that have increased prices since mid-October. The firms are Price Brothers, Ltd., and Donnacona Paper Co., Ltd.

Episcopalians To Start Every Member Drive

The annual every member canvass of the Protestant Episcopal Church—both locally and nationally—begins Sunday and continues through December 3.

In many churches in the Diocese of Washington, parish dinners are planned with laymen speakers presenting the story of the church and its program of work.

In others, "Loyalty Sunday" services will be held, when the congregation will be asked to offer signed pledges assuring necessary funds to continue and expand the work of the church.

All members not reached in this way are visited by canvassers who volunteer to call on "every member" and give all an opportunity to share in the church's program.

This year the national Episcopal Church has a total budget of $5,834,454, of which $4,153,745 will be spent for mission work at home and overseas.

The quota of the Diocese of Washington which its 90 parishes and separate congregations are asked to raise is $145,193.

In addition, each parish must raise the funds for its own needs. Total receipts of all parishes of the diocese last year amounted to over $1,600,000.

Built by Parish

Dedication Of Church School Set

For 14 months members of the congregation of Oxon Hill Methodist Church have been constructing a new church school.

Their efforts will be climaxed Sunday at 3 p. m. with dedication of the building.

Bishop Charles W. Flint will give the dedicatory address to more than 100 members of the congregation, the greater part of whom worked Saturdays and evenings on the building.

The Rev. William C. Harpold, pastor, said that less than $350 was spent for labor and about $6000 for material. He estimated the building's value at $15,000.

Bishop Flint will be assisted by Mr. Harpold. The Rev. Philip C. Edwards of Woodside Church, Silver Spring, will represent the board of missions and church extension of the Methodist Church.

Mission Got Peanuts

As president of the Washington Federation of Churches, the Rev. C. W. Cranford made the money-raising appeal at the highly successful opening of the Festival of Faith Sunday.

Dr. Cranford

The pastor of Calvary Baptist Church told the 10,000 spectators that they must have been just as surprised as he when coming to a church service at Uline Arena to be greeted at the door by a tradesman's noisy chant of, "peanuts, peanuts."

"I assure you," he said, "that when it comes to the offering we aren't interested in peanuts."

However, a member of the audience got the final laugh next day. During the collection count two peanuts were found—wrapped inside a $1 bill.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, whose sermons and writings have brought him recognition as one of the world's foremost theologians, will talk on "Man's True Dignity" at the Hood College vesper service Sunday at 6:30 p. m. at the school in Frederick, Md. More than 2000 religious and lay leaders representing 420 Reform congregations affiliated with the Union of Hebrew Congregations are expected to attend the forty-first biennial convention of the union in Cleveland November 12-15 . . . St. Andres' Ukranian Orthodox Parish is observing its first anniversary with a dinner Sunday at 2 p. m. at Ascension and St. Agnes Episcopal Church, 12th and Massachusetts ave. nw. . . . Mass is celebrated each Sunday at 11 a. m. in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral . . . Next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m., the Westmoreland Congregational Players will present "A Murder Has Been Arranged," at the church, 1 Westmoreland cir. nw.

Dr. Niebuhr

Dr. Fred E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Federation, estimated that the entire peaching mission cost around $10,000. None of the participants received anything other than expenses. The offering at Uline Arena amounted to $2300, and included 1800 $1 bills. The project was the result of nine months of planning, with more churches cooperating than in any similar enterprise before in the Washington area. The total was 309.

Green Valley Presbyterian Church will observe its second anniversary on Sunday. The church will be officially organized by the Presbytery of Washington City at formal services, November 19 . . . A detailed plan for a united Protestant church in America has been drafted by the Conference on Church Union, created in Greenwich, Conn. last December to advance a movement for organized union . . . The Rev. Albert P. Shirkey, minister of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, will give some of the highlights from his experiences at the conference on World Brotherhood in Europe last summer, Sunday at 6:45 p. m. He was the Protestant adviser for the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the gathering . . . The Rev. Bryan Green, who speaks at Washington Cathedral Wednesday, drew verbal spitballs from Washington educators several years ago when he charged in England that American high school and college students are "sexually promiscuous."

A third annual united appeal for relief, interchurch aid and service to refugees, has been voted by official representatives of the major denominations at a meeting of Church World Service. The campaign will come during the Lenten season next year . . . The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will be host to the Federal Council of Churches' Commission of Christian Scholars at the College of Preachers this weekend. They are looking into the moral principles involved in obliteration bombing and the military use of the hydrogen bomb for mass destruction of peoples.

Bryan Green Returns Here

The Rev. Bryan Green of Birmingham, England—who spoke to some 25,000 persons during a 10-day preaching mission here last year—returns for a special reunion service Wednesday.

Rev. Green

The Angelican missioner will talk in Washington Cathedral at 8 p. m. Preparations are being made to accommodate a capacity audience with all the chapels and the crypt open to those who cannot be seated in the main body of the church.

Mr. Green will come here from Boston where he is conducting a preaching mission. Last Sunday he drew more than 14,000 persons to a rally.

The minister will also speak on the campus of the University of Maryland at 4 p. m.

The Cathedral's doors will be opened at 7 p. m., and beginning at 7:30 there will be community singing of favorite mission hymns. At 8, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, will open the services with prayers and the lesson.

Penn Tries Again Today to Stop Army

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3—Penn with its Reds Bagnell, the team that has come closest to shattering Army's 25-game defeatless streak, will have another go at it tomorrow in Franklin Field before a sell-out gathering of 78,000 fans.

Povich

The Cadets squeaked past Penn, 14-13, last year and were able to beat the Quakers only 26-20 in 1948. In 1947, the two teams played to a 7-7 tie, But tomorrow they will be encountering Tailback Bagnell in his peak season.

To maintain its unbeaten slate, Army must beat back the passing threat of Bagnell, the versatile redhead who has completed 47 of the 87 passes he has thrown this year, none of which was intercepted. With his ball-carrying, he also spearheads the Quakers' running game.

Yet Army continues to rule a two-touchdown favorite against Penn, beaten only by California in a 14-7 game. Not the least factor in Army's favoritism is the Cadets' glittering defensive record, against both passing and running, which shows they have snatched 13 enemy aerials out of the air.

They're calling this game Penn's one-man backfield versus Army's two-platoon system. Penn's coach, George Munger, has no reserves to match Army's talent in depth, and injuries to Defensive Back Noel Schmidt, End Tom Hanlon and Backerup Dave Coulson have complicated his defense against Army's T-formation hocus-pocus.

Munger is wondering out loud whether his team is good enough to beat Army "but it's the cockiest bunch I have ever coached, and Captain Bagnell has sold the team on the idea we can win."

Penn ran up a 30-7 score against Navy from its smart single-wing attack directed by Bagnell, scoring on touchdown passes, a clever reverse by Glenn Adams, and an intercepted pass by Ed Bell.

Coach Earl Blaik brought his Cadets into Philadelphia yesterday for final workouts at their suburban retreat here. He declined an invitation by Munger to permit the two suads to dine together tonight, objecting to so-called fraternizing that might serve to blunt the determination of his Cadets.

Al Pollard, Blaik's dynamic sophomore backfield sensation, who never starts in the Army games, will see as much action as required, though. At any sign of lack of scoring punch, the husky Pollard who 'runs equally well inside and outside, will replace Jim Cain at left halfback.

Bob Blaik at quarterback, Jack Martin at right halfback and Gil Stephenson at fullback will be the other member of Army's starting backfield.

Caps Take on Mikan & Co. Here Tonight

By Bill Ahlberg
Post Reporter

Coach Bones McKinney's hustling young Caps take on George Mikan and Company at Uline Arena tonight.

For the Caps, standing at the .500 mark with one win and one loss in the National Basketball Association, it will be their third start against teams that last year were the three toughest in the league.

The Caps opened against Rochester, runnersup last year for the Central Division title to Minneapolis . . . The Caps lost that one, 78-70.

Olympians Next

Then it was the Indianapolis Olympians, last year's Western Division champions—The Caps polised them off, 100-84, in their home opener last Wednesday.

And now comes Minneapolis, last year's Central Division Champions and overall league champions by virtue of a playoff victory over the Syracuse Nationals.

For Minneapolis, of course, Mr. Mikan is the big show. He scored 34 points in the Lakers' league opener the other night against Baltimore—the only thing wrong with the performance being that Minneapolis lost, 81-71.

In addition to Mr. Mikan and established stars like Jim Pollard, Arnie Ferrin and Verne Mikkelsen, the Lakers have Kevin O'Shea, Notre Dame's great playmaker from last year.

Freddie's Ready

The Caps will be the same team that handed Indianapolis such a beating last Tuesday. Young Rookie Alan Sawyer, who wound up as high man in that game with 17 points, Freddie Scolari, Don Otten, Earl Lloyd, Frank Kudelka, Ace Maughan, Dick Schnittker, Bill Sharman, Dick and Tommy O'Keefe and Chuch Halbert are ready to tear into the Lakers. Johnny Norlander and Chuck Gilmur are hurt and will not see action.

Whenever these two teams meet it usually produces something extra from little Scolari and the towering Mikan. Freddie is always at his 5-foot 11-inch best when playing on the same floor against the 6-foot 10-inch Mikan.

Intercepted Passes Set Up 2 Scores In Onslaught

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

MIAMI, Nov. 3.—Georgetown cracked under the relentless pressure of tough Miami University and went down to a horrendous 42-7 defeat here tonight before 30,929 fans in the colorful Orange Bowl.

Unbeaten Miami, which went into the game the eighth-ranking team in the country, made Georgetown succumb violently with a 26-point onslaught in the final period. It was Miami's sixth straight victory.

The Hoyas caved in as they have few times in their history in that fourth quarter. They could do nothing right and Miami kept pouring it on, tallying three touchdowns in the final eight minutes.

STATISTICS

Miami		Georgetown
17	First downs	13
248	Net yards gained, rushing	16
19	Forward passes tried	20
13	Forward passes completed	8
155	Yards gained, passing	165
403	Net yards gained, rushing, passing	181
0	Forward passes intercepted	7
6	Punts	6
28	Average yards of punts	40.5
9	Fumbles	4
4	Fumbles lost	1
60	Yards penalized	45

The rout began early in the fourth period when 20-point underdog Georgetown was trailing by only 16-7. Fleet fullback Bob Schneidenbach, apparently stopped at the line of scrimmage, lunged into the secondary and sped 67 yards for a touchdown.

2 Interceptions Set Up Scores

Two of Mattingly's passes were intercepted to set up scores and Georgetown couldn't even punt the ball away from the charging Hurricanes who were operating at gale-like force after a slow beginning.

Halfback John Castagno intercepted the first one on Georgetown's 45 and raced to the 21 before Bugs Thompson made a saving tackle. It didn't help a bit. Jack Del Bello pitched a 17-yard touchdown pass to End Tom Jelley.

Guard Del Bailey grabbed another of Mattingly's passes on the Georgetown 47 and Del Bello, threw them goalward with a 34-yard pass to Jim Dooley and a 4-yard scoring pass to Soph End Ed Lutes.

That made it 35-7, but things got even tougher. End Joe Pallotta, who averaged 40 yards with good booting, was rushed so badly he couldn't punt and was tackled on the Georgetown 25.

Miami fumbled its way goalward, recovering two miscues for gains and Halfback John Bow went across on a 4-yard slant.

Only thing Georgetown was doing right in the fourth period was blocking extra-point tries. End Harry Schmitt stopped one of Goron Watson's boots and Capt. Tommy Hardiman, who never did give up, came in to block another.

Truth is, Georgetown never gave up as a team. It just was badly beaten physically and wilted in the steaming 78-degree humid weather. It was just as hot for the red-hot Miami team, but it appeared about nine deep.

This is a fine ball club Coach Andy Gustafson has and it completely outclassed the Hoyas at the end. In all the alert defense intercepted seven passes, Georgetown completed only eight.

However, the victory was costly for Miami. Little Jack Hackett, brilliant 150-pound quarterback, fractured his shoulder in the first period and will be lost for the season with the Iowa, Florida and Missouri games coming up.

Funny thing is that with Hacket, Miami trailed 7-0.

Vandy Romps, Curtis Breaks Scoring Mark

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 3 (AP).—Vanderbilt End Bucky Curtis tied the all-time scoring record for a Southeastern Conference lineman as the Commodores downed stubborn Chattanooga 34 to 12 here tonight.

A partisan crowd of 8,500 applauded wildly as a muddy field and a keyed up Chattanooga defense bottled up Quarterback Bill Wade's passing throughout most of the game.

Four minutes after a hard-fought first quarter had ended scoreless, the Commodores went ahead on a 5-yard plunge by Fullback Dean Davidson. Chattanooga recovered on the Commodores' 1-yard line when Vanderbilt fumbled a punt four minutes later and tied up the game on the next play.

Davidson bulled over for two more touchdowns before Curtis took a pass from Wade in the end zone for his ninth scoring reception of the season. The completion gave him 54 points in seven games, to equal the Southeastern Conference lineman record set by Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State in 1939.

GW's Hopes Rest on Passes and Rain

S. Carolina Tied, 13-13, By Marquette

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 3 (AP). Marquette held two-touchdown favored South Carolina to a 13-13 intersectional football tie here tonight, matching South Carolina Left Halfback Steve Wadiak's running with Quarterback Frank Wolm's spectacular passing.

Wadiak's running and his key blocks for right half Bishop Strickland, who scored both South Carolina touchdowns, plus Volm's short touchdown throws to halfbacks Stan Wojcik and Norm Rohter, highlighted the game.

After Strickland's opening 44-yard touchdown jaunt with the game less than two minutes old, Volm went into action, capping a 63-yard march with a 10-yard pass to Rohter in the end zone.

Marquette went ahead just before the half on a 74-yard drive to the South Carolina 10, from where Volm stepped over untouched.

Not until the final period was South Carolina able to tie the game on a 5-yard wide left sweep by Strickland.

Sub quarterback Don Leahy of Marquette made his first conversion, missed his second one. South Carolina sub end Bill Killoy made his first conversion, but saw his second one blocked by Marquette end Bill Jelisnke.

Marquette	7	6	0	0	—13
South Carolina	7	0	0	6	—13

Marquette scoring: Touchdowns—Rohter, Wojcik. Conversion—Leahy.
South Carolina scoring: Touchdowns—Strickland (2). Conversion—Killoy.

Murphy Stops Wagner in First

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—Irish Bob Murphy, 173, San Diego, Calif., stopped Dick Wagner, 166½, Toppenish, Wash., in the first round of a scheduled 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena tonight. Dr. Alexander Schiff ruled Wagner unable to continue because of a lacerated mouth.

Murphy, a 1-to-3 favorite, dropped Wagner for a nine count in the first round. He was unable to continue after a rest following the first round.

Terps Heavy Favorites With 20,000 Expected

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Ambitious George Washington tackles bigger and better-manned Maryland this afternoon at the new Byrd Stadium with 20,000, the largest crowd of their 53-year-old rivalry, expected for the 2 o'clock kickoff.

The oddsmakers have doomed the thrice-beaten Colonials to a three-touchdown defeat. But the spirited GWs, with the help of a rain forecast, could make a close game of it.

GW is in good physical shape. Maryland will be operating without its classy quarterback, Jack Scarbath, who injured his shoulder in a scrimmage this week. Bob DeStefano and Frank Armsworthy, who have played a total of five minutes this season, will attempt to fill the gap.

GW's victory hopes rest on the passing arms of Andy Davis and Bob Cilento and the receiving of Charlie Jones, Charlie Butler, Bill Szanyi and Jimmy Kline.

Handicapped by a slow running game and lack of capable blockers, single winging GW has gotten by almost exclusively on its passing game. The Colonials rank sixth in passing in the Nation, while Davis ranks eighth in passing and eleventh in total offense.

The Colonials will be outclassed in every department except passing. In Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski, Bob (Shoo Shoo) Shemonski and Joe Petruzzo, the Terps have three of the most talented runners in the East. And all three are tolerable passers.

The Terps are four deep in linemen, and the left side of their defensive line is rated one of the best in the Nation. There's Elmer Wingate at end, Ray Krouse at tackle and Bob Ward at guard.

All-America Candidate Ward was out of the lineup with an injury last year when the Terps walloped the Colonials, 40-14. The year before, it was 47-0, Maryland.

Terp Coach Jim Tatum reported yesterday that his team is in a good frame of mind. "I thought I'd have trouble convincing the boys that they will be in for a rough afternoon," said Jim, "but I was wrong. The boys are up."

A statement by a GW soph that Maryland has an alibi (the loss of Scarbath) if it loses, has the Terps up in arms.

They chorused, "we won't need an alibi" yesterday before going into a three-hour meeting with Tatum.

Terp Quarterback Armsworthy pointed his finger and declared, "We're readier now than we've ever been." Co-captain Jake Rowden added, "the boys have been mean all week. Mr. Tatum has had to let us scrimmage so that we could blow off some steam. We still have some left for tomorrow."

GW was a bit het up too. A letter, postmarked "College Park," arrived yesterday and was pinned up in the Colonials' dressing room. It read, "You GW guys have only one more day until we beat the tar out of you.—(Signed) The Maryland Greats."

Japan's 'Babe Ruth' Outdoes Joe DiMaggio In Home Run Hitting Contest at Tokyo

TOKYO, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees thrilled a crowd of 50,000 Japanese baseball fans with a batting exhibition today but lost a home run hitting contest to Japan's leading slugger.

DiMaggio, who has played before huge crowds in nine World Series since 1936, was amazed at the enthusiasm of the turnout and the ovation given him at Korakuen Stadium in Tokyo.

"I haven't touched a baseball for a month since the World Series," DiMag told the cheering crowd over the public address system, "and I'm not going to make any promises, but I hope to hit a few homers for you."

Then, wearing the Yankees' road uniform, DiMaggio hit ball after ball into the left field stands in an impressive exhibition that brought a thunderous ovation from the huge crowd.

But Joe could not get going against slow-ball pitching in a special home run hitting contest against Makoto Kozuro, the "Babe Ruth" of Japan's central professional league.

Kozuro poled four balls into the stands on 20 swings, while DiMaggio succeeded in hitting only two out of the park, although most of his hits were line smashes which amazed the fans.

DiMag also caught a few flies in the outfield and coached Japanese outfielders.

Manager Frank (Lefty) O'Doul of the San Francisco Seals accompanied DiMaggio.

"I'm here this time as bat-boy to the greatest ball players in the game today," O'Doul told the fans.

DiMaggio, asked about recent reports that he might retire, said he would make up his mind before spring training, adding: "That is a long way off and I have plenty of time to decide."

82,000 Watch Them Today

Erdelatz Feels Navy's Ready to Upset Irish

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Between them, Notre Dame and Navy have won only three football games this year but they're still champions at the box office.

A standing room crowd of almost 82,000 will jam Municipal Stadium tomorrow to watch the twenty-third renewal of the colorful series which begins at 1:30 p. m.

All 81,596 of the available tickets have been sold for two months and tonight there wasn't a hotel room in Cleveland or within 30 miles of here to be had.

Regardless of the odds, Erdelatz tonight said: "Our boys are in the same mood they were for the Southern California game. I hope the result is the same."

The Irish, the myth of their invincibility exploded by Purdue, Indiana and Michigan State, are two-touchdown favorites to hand Navy its fifth loss.

Coach Eddie Erdelatz's Crabtowners have been beaten by Maryland, Princeton, Northwestern and Pennsylvania and have only a victory over Southern California to show for Erdelatz's first year at the helm.

Coach Frank Leahy's Ramblers have whipped North Carolina and Tulane for their only two victories.

For the first time since the opener with Maryland, Navy will have the services of Captain Tom Bakke, whom Erdelatz regards as one of the country's best ends. Bakke received a back injury in the 35-21 spanking by the Terps and has been out of action since.

The last time Navy whipped Notre Dame was in 1944, 32-13. Since then, however, the Middies have scored only twice against the Irish, once in the 6-6 tie in 1945 and the last time in the 41-7 defeat in 1948.

Navy's fate, as usual, depends on the performance of Quarterback Bob (Zug) Zastrow. If Erdelatz's "Big Z" has a good day passing the ball, Navy could well take the Irish. If Zastrow is off, Navy's chances are practically nil.

Notre Dame's passing attack hinges on Quarterback Bob Williams of Baltimore and End Jim Mutscheler. Mutscheller, understudy to Leon Hart last year, caught six passes, three for touchdowns, in Notre Dame's 36-33 loss to Michigan State last week. Mutscheller has already set an Irish record for pass receiving. He's latched on to 25 in five games, three going for touchdowns.

The Navy game is the longest continuous series on Notre Dame's schedule. The first Irish-Middie game was played in 1927 and the two teams have met every year since. The series stands at 18 wins for Notre Dame, four for Navy and one tie.

Kernan Runs 88 Yards for Touchdown

By Bill Gilbert

Held scoreless in the first half, McKinley Tech's Trainers broke loose for three quick touchdowns in the third quarter and clinched the Group II Interhigh League championship with a 25-0 victory over Roosevelt yesterday at Tech.

The triumph qualifies Tech for the big Interhigh League championship game November 24 at Griffith Stadium, sponsored by the Washingto Post and the Touchdown Club in conjunction with the District Board of Education.

It was Tech's third victory against a tie, with a game with Bell remaining.

Coolidge, in the running before yesterday, bowed out, losing, 28-0, to Eastern.

Roosevelt's Bobby Smithers fumbled the kickoff that opened the second half, and Guard Danny Vaught recovered for Tech on the Rough Riders' 18 yard line.

Five plays later, Benny Colandreo went over from the 2, and Tech led, 6-0. Jim Owens' kick was no good.

Vaught set up the Trainers' second touchdown on the following kickoff, recovering Tony Grimaldi's fumble on the Roosevelt 30. Tech couldn't get started, and Roosevelt took over—but only for one play.

Grimaldi again fumbled going through the center of the line, and Vaught fell on the ball on Roosevelt's 31, recovering his third fumble in less than four minutes.

A pass from John Wege to Richie Gaskell carried to the 7, and Colandero went over from there on the next play to give Tech a 12-0 lead. Bryant Hopkins' kick was blocked.

The Rough Riders took the kickoff and, in seven plays, marched from their own 32 to the Tech 11. Smithers fumbled at that point, however, anad Stan "Snookie" Kernan picked up the ball on the Tech 12 and raced 88 yards down the sidelines for Tech's third touchdown. Hopkins again missed on the conversion attempt and Tech held an 18-0 advantage.

The Trainers marched 57 yards for their final tally, Ray Murray climaxing the drive with a 7-yard run around end. Wege passed to End Tom McCauley for the extra point.

Eastern Wins, 28-0, Takes Lead

Eastern won its fourth interhigh victory of the season yesterday, rolling over Coolidge 28-0, with Pat McDougall chalking up two of Eastern's three first-half touchdowns.

The Ramblers thus went a half game ahead of idle Anacostia in the tight race for Group 1 laurels.

McDougall smacked across for the first Eastern score mid-way in the first period, after a drive of 55 yards had taken the ball to the one. The big fullback left the game late in the second quarter with a twisted ankle, just after he had again crossed the Coolidge goal line on a three-yard jaunt through tackle.

With minutes to go in the first half Eastern again hit pay dirt when Jim Sullivan threw a 40-yard pass to Ralph Sita who scampered across.

Sita set up the final Eastern score with a 28-yard run to the Colts 2-yard marker where Dan O'Neil took it across. Dave Keys kicked all four of the Eastern extra points.

Snead's 275 Wins Title By 4 Strokes

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—Sammy Snead bested par by two strokes today with a 35-35—70 finish to romp home a four-stroke victor over Johnny Palmer to win his second straight North and South Open golf championship with a 72-hole score of 275.

Snead, leading money winner of professional golf two years in a row, pocketed $1500 in first money in the $7500 event to boost his year's earnings to $35,258.

His rounds of 68—71—66—70 felt him 13 under par for his four trips over the 6952-yard Pinehurst Country club course. His winning total was the third best in the event's 48-year history. A year ago he won with 274 as against Ben Hogan's record 271.

Palmer, chunky Badin, N. C., tournament regular, finished with a par 72 for second money of $1000. His rounds were 65—70—72—72 as he moved from eleventh to ninth in money winnings this year—$12,035.

He had led the tournament the first two rounds and was tied for second, two strokes back of Snead, with Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, starting the final round.

Claude Harmon, a former Masters champion from Mamaroneck, N. Y., finished with 70, one of 12 sub-par rounds recorded today, to come in third at 281 and win $750.

Tied for fourth at 282 were two North Carolina professionals—Julius Boros of nearby Southern Pines and Tommy Bolt of Durham.

Four Games Hold Interest In College Football Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP).—A football fan with the desire and the means to attend tomorrow's top college game could draw straws among Austin, Tex., Seattle, Wash., Ann Arbor, Mich. and Philadelphia and not go far wrong wherever he landed.

The Southern Methodist-Texas game at Austin generally is listed as tomorrow's biggest attraction, and it probably deserves the honor. It brings together the Nation's No. 1 team in the Associated Press poll—S.M.U.—and the No. 7, in Texas.

But it would be difficult to convince Eastern fans that the clash at Philadelphia between unbeaten Army, No. 2 nationally, and once-beaten Pennsylvania is of lesser caliber than the Southwest classic. Around here, at least.

West Coast fanatics doubtless would prove equally hard to convince that the struggle at Seattle between California's Golden Bears, undefeated in 30 straight regular season games, and the Washington Huskies, licked only by Illinois this campaign, is not the week's gift to football.

As for the Midwest partisans, they will give you all three of the above-mentioned contests and try to fight their way into Michigan Stadium at Ann Arbor to watch the Wolverines do battle with Illinois and its brilliant Johnny Karras. Some 92,000 of them will succeed, so you pays your money and takes your choice among the four.

The winners at Austin almost certainly will be the host team in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day, while the Seattle victor will be favored to win through to the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Illinois, if it gets past Michigan, is a good bet to represent the Big Ten in the Coast classic. Army and Penn are not Bowl conscious.

The Deep South's grid leaders have been knocking each other off to such an extent that, at this point, the section boasts only one real standout, undefeated Kentucky. The Wildcats are expected to add Florida's scalp to their collection tomorrow at Lexington.

The South's other top games tomorrow find once-beaten Tennessee playing host to North Carolina at Knoxville, and Georgia tangling with Alabama at Tuscaloosa. From these, two games there should emerge the team which will challenge Kentucky for the Southeastern Conference crown—probably Tennessee.

Terp Frosh Whip GW; Pantos Stars

Jimmy Pantos, former Central High star, tossed two 31-yard touchdown passes in the first three minutes to give the University of Maryland freshmen a 13-0 victory over George Washington at College Park yesterday.

GW fumbles set up both scores, as Maryland captured its third triumph in four starts. The Colonials have won one and lost two.

On the second play, Colonial Fullback Fred Matani fumbled and Halfback George Albrecht recovered for the Terps on the George Washington 31.

On the next play Pantos passed to Halfback Chester Hanulak as he crossed the goal.

GW Halfback Ken Belliveau fumbled on the first play following the ensuing kickoff and Ralph Felton recovered for Maryland on the Colonial 39-yard line. Five plays later Pantos connected with Left End Bob Beckwith for a touchdown. Don Decker converted.

Miami's 26-Point 4th Period Buries Georgetown, 42 to 7

Frank Mattingly threw a 12-yard touchdown to Bugs Thompson for the 6-pointer and Dick Haesler converted.

Tackle Bill McCarthy set it up when he blocked a punt by Elmer Tremont out of bounds on the Hoya 46. With fourth and one on the Miami 45, Georgetown made a daring gamble pay off. Fullback Gino Pagluica bulled his way for a good 3 to the Miami 42.

Still rushing, Ralph Charney, Thompson and Pagluica went for another first on the Miami 31. Then Mattingly completed a 20-yard pass to Gus Fornacari to set up the score.

Georgetown held on valiantly but was the victim of two long second-period runs. On the first play of the quarter, Harry Mallios scooted 42 yards for the tying touchdown. Nobody touched him until Bob Verspirlle tackled him at the goalline.

Then Gordon Watson broke into the secondary on a run where every Hoya seemed to have his hands on him. But Watson picked up 45 yards to the Georgetown 4. Schneidenbach slipped over easily from there.

In the third period, Miami added a safety to its total when Pallotta fumbled trying to kick out from his end zone. Line-backer Pete Mastellone smeared him for the two superflous Miami points.

It was a badly beaten Georgetown team that left the field with its fifth loss in six games. The defeat made a losing season definite with only engagements with Fordham, Holy Cross and GW remaining.

Hope Hopes He'll Get at Least One Football Ticket

SEATTLE, Nov. 3 (AP).—There's hope for Hope, but there's no hope for the other 69 in his entertainment troupe returning from Korea.

Bob Hope, the comedian, wasn't cracking wise in Alaska when he wired University of Washington Athletic Manager Harvey Cassill for 70 tickets for tomorrow's Washington-California football game.

"I only wish he were joking," smiled Cassill wanly. "We haven't had a loose ticket for days. But maybe I can find just one for Bob."

A 55,000 homecoming sell-out is predicted.

Brandy Good Shot

Only Four Race Today in Pimlico Cup

PIMLICO, Nov. 3—Nineteenth running of the Pimlico Cup, over the longest stake route of American racing, 2½ miles, will be the feature of Pimlico's first Saturday program tomorrow.

Only four have been named overnight for the $15,000 distance test and C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy will be the high weight of the field, under 113 pounds, one more than Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Adile, in at 112.

Grandview Stable's Pellicle, 108, and Mrs. F. A. Bonsal's Windy, at 106, complete the lineup for the cup.

Double Brandy comes into the cup with a record of three stakes victories this season, the son of Questionnaire and Tien Lan having accounted for the Brandywine, Omnibus and Southern Maryland handicaps. Double Brandy also was second in the Dixie, Long Branch, Brooklin and Saratoga Cup and recently finished third in the Washington Handicap at Laurel.

Adile, a daughter of Mahmoud and Furlough, won the New Castle Handicap for fillies and mares and had thirds in the Whitney Stakes and Jockey Club Gold Cup. Last season she won the Empire City Gold Cup, Alabama and Monmouth Oaks.

Pellicle has yet to win a stake this season but was third in Hialeah's Bougainville.

Only unknown quantity in the race is Windy, who will be making his first stakes appearance. At the long route and as the lightweight on the field, he probably will earn a share of support. He is trained by F. A. Bonsal, who last season saddled Pilaster to score in the cup.

Bolling Plays Eglin Today

Coach Mush Dubofsky's Bolling Flyers seek their fourth win of the season Saturday when they tackle Eglin AF Base from Florida here at 2:30 p. m.

Last year Bolling lost, 27-6.

Eglin has a record of four wins and two defeats against service competition. One of the losses was a 41-7 defeat by Camp Lejeune, the same team that licked Bolling last week, 55-7.

He is second lead-ing rider in the country. Sam Boulmets also will confine his riding to Maryland. Only 8992 Turn Out for 4-Horse Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

PIMLICO, Nov. 3.—Greentree Stable's One Hitter used a fastball approach to win the fourteenth running of the Pimlico Special today before a disappointing crowd of 8992.

By the effective method of going to the front at the start and staying there, One Hitter, with Ted Atkinson up, became the first son of a Pimlico Special winner to follow in his dad's footsteps. Shut Out, his sire, having accounted for the 1943 running of the $15,000 winner-take-all event.

The 4-year-old chestnut horse is the third Greentree representative to take a Special.

Shut Out won his Special in a photo finish from Slide Rule and then had to survive a foul claim to make victory stick. But his boy lobbed along in front and finished 2½ lengths in advance of Palatine Stable's Chicle II with Lewis J. Shaw's Abstract, the colt who is blind in one eye and can hardly see out of the other.

Royal Governor Disappoints

Mrs. E. du Pont Weir's Royal Governor, the favorite in the four-horse field, finished in last position after making only one mild move in the famous mile and three-sixteenths test.

After the approximate odds had see-sawed One Hitter finally was installed second choice by 10 cents on the dollar to Chicle II and paid a $6 win mutuel.

As was the case in other aspects of the race, the time was nothing to write home about. One Hitter was clocked in 1:58 3-5, 2 3-4 seconds over the mark for the track and the race set by Greentree's Capot in running away from Coaltown last year.

Today's winner, twice conqueror of the mighty Noor of West Coast fame, did not extend himself while setting one of the slowest paces in the Special's history. He was timed in .25 1-5 for the quarter, .49 3-5 for the half, 1.14 for the three quarters and 1.39 3-5 for the mile.

However, Atkinson rode a heady race on One Hitter and allowed the 4-year-old to use up only enough energy to put the race in the bag. Doubtlessly, One Hitter could have bettered the time, had he been pressed seriously at any stage.

Starter Eddie Blind sent the field away with hardly a moment's hesitation. One Hitter bounded to the front. Royal Governor collided with Chiele 2nd, leaving the gate.

While Atkinson allowed One Hitter to run with only slight restraint through the stretch the first time, the others were under steel grips, being saved for the final drive.

One Hitter saved ground and kept bounding along in front as the backstretch was reached. Royal Governor and Abstract were teamed within striking distance with Chicle II, skimming along the inside rail, trailing.

At the far turn, Royal Governor rallied slightly and then began to drop back as Abstract, surprise winner of the Washington Handicap, moved along to make what appeared to be a challenging move. Chicle II, shaken up, began to show some signs of life.

In the stretch, Abstract's threat waned as he drifted out, Royal Governor slowed to a walk and Chicle II came on gamely. However, One Hitter with Atkinson driving only lightly, held on willingly to the end.

Chicle II closed fastest of all but the rally came too late to seriously threaten One Hitter although it shunted Abstract into third place.

The victory was the fifth in 18 starts this year for One Hitter and the eleventh in 51 outings since he began his career in 1948. Today's $15,000 sent his earnings for the year to $67,930 and his all-time total to $118,825.

One Hitter got all the Special postrace trimmings, including the chrysanthemum blanket treatment in the winner's circle.

But all in all there was nothing particularly special about this year's Special, if you know what I mean.

Carolina A&T Rallies to Win Classic, 28-13

Spotting North Carolina A. and T. two touchdowns, Tennessee State College came back with two of its own late in the second quarter and two more in the fourth to register a 28-13 upset victory in the ninth annual Capital Classic last night at Griffith Stadium before a crowd of about 20,000.

An 80-yard Carolina drive in the second period was climaxed when James Fisher plunged over from the 1. The Aggies upped their lead to 13-0 two minutes later, Park Smith crashing over from the 1. Bill Blakely converted.

Clarence Bush passed to Hal Turner for two Tennessee touchdowns in the last two minutes of the first half, the plays covering 10 and 12 yards. Al Rowe's conversion following the second score put Tennessee ahead, 14-13, at the half.

Tennessee scored the clincher in the fourth quarter, driving 78 yards. Bill Gray's two-yard off tackle slant culminated the march. Carl Carter's one-yard smash and Rowe's fourth conversion of the night wound up the scoring.

U. S. Riders Retain Lead at New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—The United States equestrian team, inexperienced, but displaying all the self-assurance of a veteran international squad, captured its second victory at the 62d National Horse Show today.

Continuing its domination of the International Low Score Competition Challenge Trophy, the team of Mrs. Carol Durand and Arthur McCashin won the second of the three-day event with a near flawless performance.

The even was noteworthy in that the Mexican Army team was unplaced in the event, the first time the riders from below the Rio Grande have been shut out of the ribbons in several years at Madison Square Garden.

The British team was second, with the Canadian team third, and the Irish Army team fourth.

Victory for the United States came when Mrs. Durand, Kansas City housewife, and McCashin, a farmer from Pluckemin, N. J., finished the nine jumps course with only a single fault.

That came when the Americans, riding in pairs competition, became separated at one point by more than half a length as they were taking the obstacles abreast.

In the opening of the three-day event yesterday, the United States team gave a faultless performance. Thus, with only one fault chalked against them, the United States civilians are in a good position to capture the Challenge Trophy when the third event is held Sunday afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Harry Llewellyn won the West Point Challenge Trophy for England tonight, in the International Jumping Competition.

Llewellyn, astride Monty, clipped around the 11-jump course in the fastest time, and without a knockdown to beat out Capt. Alberto Valdes of the Mexican Army team.

Dr. Bradford Quits Fairfax Health Post With Protest

Director Charges State Operation Is 'Out of Date,' Blasts Locality

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Dr. Henry C. Bradford, Fairfax County health officer since November, 1946, has resigned because of "differences of opinion" with State and county authorities on how the department should be run, he declared last night.

The resignation, effective Thursday, was announced yesterday by county authorities. No reason for the action was given.

Last night Dr. Bradford told The Washington Post he resigned because he "couldn't get along" with officials in the State health department. He said he felt the department's policies in regard to local departments were "out of date" and charged it had failed to act on his "frequent" recommendations for improvement.

The State department, Dr. Bradford said, "wants its local health officers to assume full responsibility for their work, but won't give them the equipment or personnel to work with."

"I think the State Health Department should bear the full responsibility for any breakdown in the functioning of the Fairfax County Health Department," Dr. Bradford declared.

He also assailed the county supervisors for what he termed their "lack of cooperation" in local health matters. He said he had gone to the board "many times" for assistance on department problems but "they paid no attention to me."

"If the supervisors paid more attention to county problems, I don't think they'd be in the jam they're in now, with everybody demanding a change in county government," Dr. Bradford said.

A graduate of the Medical College of Virginia, Dr. Bradford served in the Army Medical Corps from 1916 until 1944, when he retired as a full colonel. Before his Army service, he practiced medicine in Norfolk, Va.

County officials said yesterday Dr. Bradford would be replaced temporarily by Dr. J. C. Neal, director of local health services for the State department.

Juvenile Court To Publish Crime Data

For the first time, Washingtonians are going to get an up-to-date picture of the extent of juvenile crime here.

Juvenile Court Judge Edith H. Cockrill announced yesterday that monthly statistics on the prevalence of juvenile offenses will be issued by her staff starting in December.

She said she believed the public is "entitled" to this information.

Judge Cockrill warned that the monthly report on the city's juvenile problem would not necessarily be complete, but would be the "best we can do" with a limited staff, and lacking a statistical department.

Judge Cockrill's request for funds to set up a statistical department so far has been denied by Congress.

Judge Cockrill said that because she has to "burden an already heavily burdened staff" with preparation of the report, she does not believe that the report will be prepared on an area basis at the present time.

It will, however, include a breakdown of offenses, as committed, in each criminal classification, she said.

A. J. Howard Named Judge By Truman

ANDREW J. HOWARD
. . . gets judicial nomination

Assistant United States Attorney Andrew J. Howard, 53, was nominated by President Truman yesterday to be a judge of Municipal Court.

Howard, a prosecutor for seven years here, will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Emory B. Smith after 13 days in office.

A native of Alcorn College, Miss., where his late father was the school president, Howard first came to Washington in 1916 to attend Howard University. He now resides at 35 Q st. nw. He has five sons.

The appointment, which is subject to Senate approval, is for 10 years.

A Democrat

Howard is a Democrat. His uncle is Perry Howard, Republican national committeeman from Mississippi.

"I am, of course, delighted with the confidence which the President and the Attorney General have in me, as evidenced by my being chosen for the judgeship," said Howard.

Howard was mentioned several months ago for the position which Judge Smith received.

Howard attended Howard University between 1916 and 1918, when he became ill. He then went to Denver where he managed a butcher shop for eight years.

He returned here, took a messenger's job in the Justice Department, and by attending night classes received his LLB from Howard in 1930. He worked in the Justice Department until 1938 when he opened a law office at 512 5th st. nw., across the street from where his judicial chambers will be.

Assigned to Municipal Court

As an assistant corporation counsel, he was assigned to Municipal Court. Recently, he has been in partial charge of the office there.

In February, he was quizzed by the special District Crime Investigation Committee on practices of prosecutors here. During the hearing, he admitted nolle prossing a case of carrying concealed weapons where he acknowledged he might have won the case.

He said he made his decision on the basis of all the circumstances, including the fact that he did not believe that the offense would be repeated. When asked whether he had been acting as a judge rather than a prosecutor in this, Howard replied:

"I admit it. I admit it."

Painter Injured In 40-Foot-Fall Sent to Gallinger

James Brawley, 55, a painter, of 1818 Kalorama rd. nw., was seriously injured yesterday when he fell 40 feet from a scaffold to a concrete walk.

He was at work painting an outside wall at Episcopal Hospital, when he apparently lost his balance, police said. He was taken by ambulance to Emergency Hospital and later transferred to Gallinger Hospital, where he was admitted with a fractured spine and elbow and cerebral concussion.

Police said witnesses told them the fall was accidental. They said they found several notes in Brawley's pocket, however, indicating that he had planned to take his own life. He was held for mental observation.

Convocation Planned At Howard University

The thirty-fourth annual convocation of Howard University's school of religion, will be held November 14-16, with a theme, "Church, State and Human Welfare."

Dishwasher Accused of Setting Fire

$10,000 Damage Caused by Blaze In S.E. Restaurant Where He Worked

A 22-year-old dishwasher yesterday admitted setting a $10,000 fire in a southeast restaurant in which an elderly couple narrowly escaped injury and four firemen were overcome by smoke.

The dishwasher, William Henry Harris, jr., of 2145 Newport pl. nw., was arrested about an hour later after a chase in which police fired eight shots.

He was held for grand jury action by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson on charges of housebreaking and arson. Bond was set at $20,000.

Police said Harris confessed to entering Rector's Grill, 149 Independence ave. se., where he has worked for three years, about 2 a. m., by climbing a ladder to a second-floor window.

Harris

According to police, he attempted to open the safe with a hacksaw blade but failed, so he took a sack of coins from the cash register and turned on the gas jets in the kitchen. Then he went to the basement, started a fire with some waitresses' uniforms and a blanket, and left by the fire escape, he told them.

A short while later, Mr. and Mrs. William Cookson, who live in the apartment above the restaurant, were awakened by radiator noises and found the radiators were hot, police said. Smoke poured into the apartment when they opened the door to the hallway, but they made their way safely to the street and called the Fire Department, police said.

Two engine companies and a truck company responded and confined the fire to the basement. Considerable damage was done, however, to the building, food stores and some murals.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke. Pvt. Frank Principe, 34 of No. 7 truck company, was admitted to Casualty Hospital for smoke inhalation. His condition is not serious. Pvts. Daniel Breeden of No. 18 engine company, and Sam Smead and Edwin Sellers of No. 8 engine company, were treated at the hospital and released.

While firemen were fighting the blaze, Harris went home, then later to a restaurant at 6th and C sts. sw., where he asked the counterman to change about $25 in coins in the sack he was carrying into bills.

Police Pvt. Norman F. Allison, of the Fourth Precinct, in the restaurant, became suspicious and started to take Harris to the station house. When they got outside, Harris broke away from Allison who fired six shots.

The restaurant counterman called police and Detective Sergts. William W. Friel and Irving Lubar responded. They located Harris still carrying the sack of coins, at 6th st. and Independence ave. sw. When Lubar called to him, Harris started toward him with a knife, then ran on down the street. Lubar fired two shots but missed. The youth was finally cornered in an alley behind the Bureau of Fisheries.

When questioned about the coins, he admitted breaking into the Rector's Grill but gave no explanation of why he set the place on fire.

Said Rector's owner, Charley Antipas, present when Harris confessed: "I can see why you would take my money, but why set my place on fire? Now you don't have a job and I don't have a job." Harris had no answer.

Jury Tampering Indictment Upheld

Judge Edward A. Tamm yesterday upheld the indictment charging Bennie C. Caldwell, night club operator, and Daniel M. Garry, bandleader, with jury tampering here.

The District Court jurist said that the defendants had failed to convince him that there were any irregularities in the grand jury proceedings. They had charged that there were unauthorized persons and statements in the grand jury room.

The two men were charged after jurors complained they were offered bribes during the trial of three men on gambling charges. The three were convicted but the judgment was set aside by the United States Court of Appeals.

Quarrel Reported

Chevy Chase Woman, 43, Slays Self

MRS. FLORENCE E. TERRETT
. . . takes own life

Certificate of suicide was issued yesterday in the death of Mrs. Florence E. Terrett, 43, who fatally shot herself in her apartment at 4808 Wellington dr., Chevy Chase, Md., late Thursday night.

Mrs. Terrett died at 12:15 a. m. yesterday at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md., where she was taken by the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad.

According to police, Mrs. Terrett and her husband, Thomas V. Terrett, operator of a Bethesda automobile service center, had a minor quarrel earlier Thursday night. He had gone to the apartment of neighbors, Col. and Mrs. Henry F. Rhodes to watch a television program.

About 11:15 p. m. Mrs. Rhodes went to the Terrett apartment and found Mrs. Terrett in bed, a pool of blood about her head and an Army Colt revolver by her right shoulder. She called her husband, who summoned police and the rescue squad.

Mrs. Terrett was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Labrosse and was a native of Massena, N. Y. She and her husband were childless.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, county medical examiner, said the death was caused by a self-inflicted wound in the head.

Appointive Method Wins Backing in Poll

A proposed change in the method of filling the offices of city attorney and city tax collector in Alexandria has been indorsed by six of the city's seven councilmen.

A League of Women Voters poll of the council has established that all but one is in favor of having both officials appointed rather than elected, the league said yesterday. The Washington Post incorrectly reported Friday that the majority favored election of the two officers.

Voters will decide in a local referendum next Tuesday on whether the offices shall remain elective or become appointive.

Appointment of the attorney and collector is favored by Mayor Franklin P. Backus and Councilmen Leroy S. Bendheim, Albert A. Smoot, James M. Duncan, jr., R. Samuel Luckett and Marshall J. Beverley. Councilman Roy S. Bragg told the league he believes the elective system should be retained.

Backus said he believed that in a city manager-council government the council should be the policy-making body with power to appoint administrative officials. His view was supported by the other five councilmen favoring the change.

Bragg, however, said he believed the city attorney could function more independently if elected instead of appointed.

Judge Reconsiders Life Terms For 2 Who Took Jailer's Keys

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Judge Leon M. Bazile sentenced two brothers to life imprisonment today for the theft of two keys in a jail break, then set aside his own verdict and ordered a jury trial for the pair.

The action came in Fredericksburg Circuit Court when Harvey, 26, and Robert Bullock, 23, of Baltimore, pleaded guilty of taking the keys from Deputy City Sergt. Grover C. Brame on October 12 when they attacked Brame and broke from jail.

The men had thrown themselves on the mercy of the court by filing pleas of guilty.

C. O'Conor Goolrick, an attorney who was in the courtroom at the time but had no part in the case, made a plea in behalf of the prisoners.

"Robbery is not so grave a crime that such a terribly harsh sentence should be passed on these two Negroes," said Goolrick, a former State Senator.

He recommended a definite sentence for the pair, saying, "Twenty years would be more than enough."

Nascom S. Pribble, court appointed defense attorney, joined with Goolrick in asking Judge Bazile to reconsider his judgment against the men, and "give them something to live for."

Commonwealth's attorney W. B. F. Cole interjected a remark at this point, that the life sentence was not so terribly harsh and that the state parole board in Richmond probably would free the men in 10 or 12 years.

Pribble reminded Cole "that what the parole board does in 10 or 12 years is not the business of this trial or this court."

Judge Bazile then recessed court. He conferred with Goolrick, Pribble and Cole, and when he returned to the courtroom, he accepted a request from Pribble to withdraw the plea of guilty for one of innocence and to let the defendants stand trial before a jury November 25.

When the two brothers first were brought into court this morning they pleaded guilty to two other indictments charging auto theft and housebreaking with intent to commit larceny. They received five-year consecutive sentences on each of these charges.

The Bullocks still face an indictment charging malicious assault on Brame.

Montgomery County to Have Three-Car Traffic Squad

Montgomery County this month will have a three-car traffic squad to help counteract its 100 per cent increase in both traffic and accidents during the past year. Police Chief Charles M. Orme said yesterday.

The squad will permit assignments of one car for each of the county's police precincts. Two men will man each vehicle, performing regular patrol work as well as traffic duties.

The traffic squad will be under direction of precinct commanders. Chief Orme said each car will have radio and public announcement equipment, with loudspeakers for traffic control in riots, accidents, and other incidents which require crowd handling. He said the cars will go in service late this month.

A 74-year-old woman, injured October 14 when she was struck by an automobile in the 1700 block of Wisconsin ave. nw., died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital.

Police said she was crossing the street in the middle of the block when the northbound car, driven by Jack P. Loesberg, 18, a Western High School student of 2505 K st. nw., knocked her down. No charges have been placed against Loesberg.

Mrs. Henderson was born in Baltimore, but came to Washington when a child. She was the widow of Roderick John Henderson, a Navy Yard employe, who died in 1931.

She is survived by a son Roderick John Henderson, jr., of 1505 South Nelson st., Arlington; a daughter, Mrs. Marie Bromley of 3813 Beecher st. nw.; 10 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:30 p. m. at Chambers Georgetown funeral home, 3072 M st. nw. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Two persons were injured yesterday, neither seriously, in the collision of a truck and a car on Route 28, a half mile east of Olney, Md., near the Montgomery County General Hospital.

The driver of the car, William Roberts Ricketts, 16, a student, of Ednor, Md., was treated at the hospital for a possible fractured left knee. Mrs. Ethel J. Johnson, 31, of Spencerville, Md., wife of the driver of the truck, Albert Henry Johnson, 35, was treated for a hip injury.

Edwin C. Payne, 83, of 500 East Capitol st., suffered a slight head injury yesterday when he walked into a streetcar in front of his home. Police said the car was operated by Parks Smith, 54, of 2 17th st. se.

4 Polio Cases Reported, 3 in Washington

Four new cases of poliomyelitis were reported in the Washington area yesterday—three in the District and one in Prince Georges County.

The District Health Department said the cases here included: A 23-year-old woman of the 3800 block of Davis pl. nw., who is being treated at home; 3-year-old boy of the 200 block of 13th st. ne., admitted to Children's Hospital November 1; and a 4-year-old boy of the 2400 block of 17th st. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital November 2.

The Prince Georges Health Department reported a three-year-old girl of the 800 block of Rittenhouse st., Chillum Terrace, Hyattsville.

The total number of cases in Washington is now 172 and the total in Prince Georges 66. Washington had 101 and Prince Georges 60 this date last year.

Sewage Bond Is Urged Passage Is Urged

Arlington's director of recreation, W. R. Richardson, yesterday urged passage Tuesday of a $2,617,000 bond issue to improve county sewage treatment facilities.

He said a vote for the bond issue would help reduce Potomac River pollution and make Arlington able to "fully enjoy" the "great recreational area in its front yard."

Gets 10 Years

Prisoner Defends Self And Loses

A penitentiary convict who studied law in jail in order to defend himself yesterday was convicted of assault with intent to rob.

Judge Charles C. Marbury, in Prince Georges County Circuit Court, imposed a sentence of 10 years on Ronald Harris, 45-year-old Baltimore man who has been serving a 10-year sentence in the Maryland Penitentiary since 1945. The sentence will begin after he has completed his present term.

Harris was convicted in a case which has been pending in Prince Georges since 1944.

He was originally indicted on five counts, robbery, assault to rob, simple assault, larceny and receiving stolen goods. All but the assault with intent to rob charge were dropped by the State.

The graying convict-lawyer, dressed in a brown sweater and blue denims maintained throughout the trial he was being "framed" because he had been tried and released on charges of killing a policeman in Baltimore six years ago. He startled spectators and officials by:

1. Demanding unsuccessfully to submit a list of 73 questions to each of the jurors;

2. Criticizing State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie in very harsh terms;

3. Breaking a water glass with his gestures. (The glass tumblers at his table were then replaced with paper cups.)

Two Attorneys Retire From Bridoux Case

Two Washington attorneys retained to represent Capt. Eric Rios Bridoux, Bolivian pilot, in damage actions after the crash of his ship with an Eastern Airliner in 1949, yesterday announced they would withdraw from the case.

They are Frederick Thuee and Gerard P. O'Grady. O'Grady said neither has heard from Bridoux since he left the country last July. He said he and Thuee were retained in January to represent Bridoux by the Bolivian ambassador, on behalf of his government.

The crash of the two planes took 55 lives. Captain Bridoux was blamed for the accident by the Civilian Aeronautics Board. He is now in Bolivia.

The estate of Helen Hokinson, cartoonist, who was killed in the same accident, has sued the Federal Government for $300,000, the United Press reported yesterday from New Haven, Conn. The suit charges the Government was responsible, because it controls the airport.

Brown Was Sane at Time Of Slaying, Psychiatrist Says

Final arguments in the first-degree murder trial of Charlie H. (Three Finger) Brown, 55, will be heard on Monday.

The week-long trial in District Court neared its conclusion yesterday with a second Government psychiatrist, Dr. Amino Perretti, testifying that in his opinion, Brown is sane.

Brown, a 9th st. derelict, is accused of fatally bashing in the face of Raymond E. (Big Reds) Lewis, a "flophouse" manager, with a baseball bat June 30 on the Mall.

The Government charges that Brown had a grudge against Lewis for an alleged assault and swindle claimed by Brown. The defense claims temporary insanity inducing an irresistible impulse based upon a background of chronic drunkenness.

New Angles Add Zest To Campaign In Maryland

Vivisection Fight, Attitude of Labor And Negroes Among Major Factors

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—This town's politics has taken on more new wrinkles than an old seersucker suit. But don't get the idea the politicians are finding either the heat or the homestretch election maneuverings comfortable.

For one thing, there's an out-and-out dog fight — not for the disposition of political offices but for the disposition of animals at the city pound. Antivivisectionists have forced a ballot question on amending the city charter to ban use of impounded animals for medical experimentation.

Both sides are working to bring out the vote on that question. Both sides think the vote will come. Registration percentages appear to favor Democratic candidates if the vote on the animal issue is heavy. Vivisectionists are generally expected to win.

Candidates generally won't touch the dog question. But Harry Skop is an exception. Skop is Republican nominee for State Senate in the fifth district here. His campaign slogan, issued on small handy cards, is to vote Republican and "Don't Skip Skop." Now Skop is all on the side of the vivisectionists, and says in large type on handbills that the issue is "Children vs. Dogs."

There's another involved set of gyrations developing in a bid for the Negro vote—a substantial factor in this city. Republicans have nominated Linwood G. Koger, attorney and an alumnus of Washington's Howard University, to the State Senate from the Fourth Legislative District, and several other Negroes to the House of Delegates.

Democrats have no Negro candidates but do have a committee of Negro leaders working for the Democratic ticket, with an office in Democratic headquarters.

Of the 59,000 Negro voters in Baltimore, about 44,000 are registered Republican.

Further ins and outs of politicking have affected the labor response to the candidates. Four major organizations—AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods and the Machinists—joined here through a United Labor Coordinating Committee in indorsing the Democratic State ticket. The indorsement applied to Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., Democratic candidate for reelection as Governor, and his running mates.

But a parallel group at the western end of the State, according to leaders here, kicked over the traces to indorse Republicans, including Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, Republican candidate for Governor, and Representative J. Glen Beall (R., Md.), who is seeking reelection.

Mahoney Indorses Tydings for Senate

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—George P. Mahoney today put his newly won power in the party behind Senator Tydings, who seeks a fifth term.

"We need his brilliant mind, sound judgment and experience in these troublesome times," Mahoney told a group of workers at Democratic Party headquarters.

"We cannot afford to lose his 24 years of experience and knowledge in the United States Senate," the former Democratic gubernatorial candidate said.

"Maryland can well be proud of her senior Senator, who is third-ranking member of the Senate. He has brought unparalleled honor to Maryland by being the only member on three major Senate committees: Foreign Relations, Armed Services, and Atomic Energy.

"I am proud to indorse and support Senator Tydings."

Arlington's Schools Held To Be Bargain

Board Chairman Says County Gets More for Its Money

The Arlington School Board is actually getting "more for its money" in the schools it builds than other comparable communities, Board Chairman Mrs. Edmund Campbell said yesterday.

Her statement was in reply to a critical report by a committee of the Arlington Ridge Civic Association, which called county school building costs "excessively high" compared wth those in Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Mrs. Campbell pointed to statements of architects of both Arlington and Montgomery County schools, who told the board Thursday that committee charges were full of "misinformation" and "misinterpretation."

One of the architects, Rhees Burkett, said the committee report "cannot possibly have been published for any other reason than to hurt" a proposed $7,450,000 school bond issue on which Arlington residents will vote Tuesday.

Report Action Delayed

At a full membership meeting Wednesday night, the civic association withheld any action on the controversial report until after the bond issue vote Tuesday.

Dr. Ivan Booker, president of the county P.-T.A. Council, yesterday congratulated the Arlington Ridge Association for withholding action on the committee report.

Burkett said the committee survey compared Montgomery's "stripped-down buildings at overcrowded capacity with complete buildings at normal capacity" in Arlington to arrive at its cost-per-pupil figures.

Burkett denied committee figures which set the per-pupil cost of Arlington's Stratford Junior High at $1445 compared with a cost of $1025 for Eastern Suburban Junior High in Montgomery.

Stratford Cost Lower

He said comparison of both schools based on their normal pupil capacities would set Stratford's per-pupil cost at $1459, that at Eastern Suburban at $1553.

Burkett said the Stratford cost was lower, despite a total of $242,000 more in equipment at the Arlington school.

Supporting his position yesterday was the Research Committee of the Coordinating Council for School Bonds in Arlington. The group said conclusions of the civic association's committee were "distinctly misleading," and its report "either naive, irresponsible or malicious."

Other architects of Arlington schools who generally agreed the citizens report contained "misleading information" were Ronald Senseman, John W. McLeod, Allen Dickey and John Graham.

One On the Aisle

British Chuckles Come Naturally

By Richard L. Coe

THE PLAZA'S "A Run for Your Money" will delight those who enjoyed "I Know Where I'm Going," "Tight Little Island" and "Passport to Pimlico."

This is one of those regional comedies of British life in which the characters are human beings, not lacquered dolls such as are inhabiting some of the more widely touted exhibits about town.

It concerns two Welsh miners whose coal production mark nets them a trip to London for the football championships as well as a sock cash prize. How they're taken over the ropes by the city slickers and miss the ball game, but get back home intact, will give you some cheerful chuckles.

The Welshmen are to be met in the big city by the paper which sponsored the contest; assigned to the job is the garden editor (Alec Guinness), who couldn't like his assignment less. The boys are separated early in the day, one falling into the hands of a Welsh acquaintance who came to London to sing but wound up in the streets and without his harp. The younger brother is quickly spotted by a confidence girl who thinks she's going to get a hefty commission for selling him a fake diamond, tries to get a swank gown for her day's work and seems to have laid hold of his 200 pounds prize money. How all these disasters are avoided by rustic alertness is nicely shown by Donald Houston.

What makes this disarming fun is the natural, even sloppy, attitude about individual scenes. The hearty benevolence of the mine manager, the stark loneliness of the London streets at 5 ayem (Dick Whittington couldn't have been more let down by actuality), the engrossed pawnshop man who can bear only Wagner, the genial futility of the garden editor on his unaccustomed assignment, the mockery of the Welsh town's name —some 26 letters long, the garrulity of the subway direction-finders and the aping of a fashionable dress shop's madame; this last, only a brief moment, is wonderful nonsense by Joyce Grenfell, who was similarly funny in her moment as the shooting gallery proprietor in Hitchcock's "Stagefright."

Michael Balcon, who produced "Tight Little Island" and "Passport to Pimlico," lined up some daft writers and players for this one, a lively first-rate comedy.

"BORN YESTERDAY," with Judy Holliday in the role she made famous, will be coming to the Gayety stage for the two weeks beginning the 27th. . . . This brings the Max Gordon production banner back to the National Capital, one more in an increasingly impressive list after our long hiatus . . . Gordon is restaging the Garson Kanin comedy hit especially for the Gayety; it's been in the wind since the theater opened last spring. . . The comedy hit will follow "Lend an Ear" and Manager Bernie Ferber's books now have only three vacant weeks till the end of March. . . . Nice going, Bernie.

THE ONTARIO, a new theater being built by the K-B chain, will be opened in the spring at 17th and Columbia rd. . . . Frank Boucher, general manager for the chain, states it will seat 1300, using the latest in "retractor" seats, which sends the seating bill alone up to $30,000. . . . Permits are now in order and preliminary construction has started.

"ALL OVER TOWN — 1950" will be played by the town's teenagers this afternoon at Roosevelt High for the last time . . . It's a large company of youngsters, all under the general direction of John B. Wentworth, with Violet Sheldon at the piano . . . Among the assistant directors for certain sketches are Mae Chipman, Hank Pizza, Andy Hayden, Jackie Thompson, and John K. Davidson . . . Some of the authors getting program credit are: Joe Plummer, John Barnes, Chet McCall, Douglas Davis, Maureen Canfield and Al Elkes . . . Curtain time: 2:30.

ERIKA THIMEY and her Chamber Dance Group of American University will be repeating last night's program tonight at 8:30 at Clendenen Hall, Nebraska and Massachusetts aves. . . . Among the dancers: Faith Clark, Batya Heller, Claire Mallardi, Robert Fabik, Ruth Koldan, Walter Koldan and Miss Thimey.

"THE BARRIER" opens in New York: " . . . it looks and sounds like 'art art' in the shrill neighborhood of Broadway. To at least one theatergoer, accustomed to simpler pleasures, it puts a barrier of montonous and random sound between the theme and the audience . . . Nothing really gets said with passion or sincerity or with simple dramatic candor," Atkinson in The Times; "A powerful potential of musical drama is partly realized . . . 'The Barrier' could bear improvement in every department, but even as it stands it never strays far from the edge of electrifying musical tragedy," Guernsey in the Herald Tribune; " . . . better in intention than in achievement and hardly likely to add greatly to the laurels which the new lyric drama has been gathering . . . The ballet . . . gets in the way of the mood of terror and indignation and calls attention to the already too evident fact that the story is in need of padding," Watts, Post; " . . . a thin musical treatment of a thin story . . . The subject ought to have bearing on social attitudes in general, but is treated in hackneyed fashion with no particular comment by author or composer," Hawkins, World-Telegram-Sun . . . Three more aisle-sitters yet to report.

THE BROKEN VAAAHSE: This is the limit fears of Joan Crawford while Wendell Corey knows it is in their "Harriet Craig," the story of a woman who loved her home too much, now on the Warner screen

Remake for Crawford

'Harriet Craig' So Unsubtle That Husband Seems a Fool

SO QUICKLY do you catch on to the selfishness of the Warner's "Harriet Craig," that you spend most of the film wondering how her family ever spent more than five minutes with her.

This Joan Crawford vehicle is a remake of a film Rosalind Russell did a few years ago from a Pulitzer winning play by George Kelly, "Craig's Wife." The heroine was a woman who put her house and possessions ahead of her husband; at least one wise change has been made from the original, cutting of a murder angle.

However, this new movie telling is so broad and unsubtle that one is never engrossed in Joan's problem; is, in fact, impatient with the husband, Wendell Corey, who seems a fool deserving of his fate.

How Harriet's evasions and lies finally catch up with her is revealed in a trick she uses to keep her husband from being sent out of the country by his firm. This angle, however treated, has nothing to do with the primary aspect of Harriet's character, her love for her home and possessions. The husband could easily be out of the way on a business trip; she would have been far too shrewd and impressed with her possessions to create a soap opera scene for a secondary objective.

That she finally is left by her wise housekeeper, her young niece and her awakened husband in the lonely house does allow for final moments of good climax, but it has been so long in coming and so obvious in getting there, that it also is an empty climax.

This script by Ann Froelick and James Gunn having been tailored for Star Crawford, you can imagine the reason behind her selfish possessiveness. Her father, the screen writers have her inform you, was a drunk and a beast when all along she adored him, and after he ran away from home she had to work in a factory and a laundry.

Which reason is, of course, the screen's traditional reason for anyone turning out to be a rotter. If you've started with nothing and climbed up the ladder to comfort and luxury, to retain it you'll fight, fight, fight, fight.

That's how life is, the movies always say, and "Harriet Craig" is in there pitching the good old California gospel.

With two exceptions, the supporting cast is as artificial as Joan's lacquered hair-do. Lucille Watson is entirely probable as the wise wife of Corey's boss, and Viola Roache is superbly human as the beleaguered housekeeper.—R. L. C.

"HARRIET CRAIG," a Columbia release, produced by William Dozier, directed by Vincent Sherman, screenplay by Anne Froelick and James Gunn, from the play "Craig's Wife" by George Kelly. At the Warner.

Man Who Claimed Setting Circus Fire, Gets 4 to 40 Years

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio, Nov. 3 (AP).—A 21-year-old former circus roustabout, who admits burning to death or killing 172 persons during the last 12 years, was sentenced today to 4 to 40 years in prison.

Robert Dale Segee, a husky youth who says he set the 1944 Ringling Bros. circus fire in Hartford, Conn., stood quietly before Judge William D. Radcliff of Pickaway County at mid-morning. Weeks ago he pleaded guilty to setting two minor Circleville fires.

"I have never been in trouble before," said Segee. "I would like to ask the court to grant me leniency."

Judge Radcliff then sentenced Segee to two terms of 2 to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary. The terms are to run consecutively, which means a maximum of 40 years or a minimum of 4 years with about eight months off for good behavior. This was the maximum penalty under Ohio law.

The story of Robert Dale Segee became public last May 17, when he was arrested near East St. Louis, Ill. Segee told investigators an amazing story of arson and killing dating back to his third year in school. He was 9, he said, when he committed his first slaying—the strangulation of 8-year-old Barbara Driscoll of Portsmouth, N. H., in 1938.

He recited a list of fires he set and three other slayings: A watchman in Portland, Me., a boy in Cape Cottage, Me., and a boy in Japan, where he served with the Army of Occupation.

A flaming red Indian, said Segee, tortured him into setting the fires. The phantom's taunts in the depths of Segee's mind drove him to race from the scene of the fires once they were begun.

Jobless Count Drops 401,000

By The Associated Press

Unemployment dropped to a two-year low of 1,940,000 in October. This was a fall of 401,000 from September.

Reporting the drop yesterday, the Census Bureau attributed it in part to the bite that draft calls took from the working force and to good weather which brought an expansion in farm employment.

The bureau said the number of people holding jobs rose to 61,764,000, highest ever for an October.

There was no sign that the big defense production program had brought any important increase in jobs or additional strain on manpower reserves as yet.

In fact, nonfarm employment fell 142,000 to a 53,273,000 total in October. Farm employment jumped 680,000 to an 8,491,000 level.

The drop in unemployment would have been hailed as unadulterated good news in "normal" times. But because of the defense program the official comment did not take that slant.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who released the figures, pointed out that the shrinking pool of unemployed "is rapidly ruling out the jobless group as an important source of additional workers for defense industries."

The number of unemployed would have dropped still lower had not 137,000 persons—many of them women—entered the ranks of job seekers.

The rise in employment from September to October was 538,000. The decrease in unemployment is not the same because of additional persons joining the number looking for work.

While employment picked up in October, the number of people with jobs was 603,000 short of the record-high peak of 62,367,000 attained last August when the working force was swollen by "large numbers of students and other summer workers."

New Cabinet Takes Office In Greece

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 3 (AP). A new coalition cabinet headed by Premier Sophocles Venizelos—his fourth in 11 months—was sworn in today. Constantin Tsaldaris and six members of his Populist (Royalist) Party, who held ministries in the former cabinet, were excluded.

Liberal and leftwing newspapers have blamed financial irregularities uncovered in an investigation at the port of Piraeus on previous Populist administrations. The scandal involved a loss of six million dollars.

Members of Parliament, which reopened Tuesday expressed shock at reports of the inquiry.

Pressure developed upon Tsaldaris, a vice premier. He refused to withdraw from the government. This brought Venizelos' resignation yesterday. King Paul I asked him to form a new cabinet.

Venizelos, in addition to being Premier and Foreign Minister, will be Defense Minister. Papandreou will be Coordination Minister as well as Vice Premier.

No date has been set for the cabinet to appear before Parliament for a confidence vote.

At the Capitol

Show on Stage Sparkles; 'The Miniver Story' Weeps

By Orval Hopkins
Post Reporter

YOU could enjoy a good cry or a nice nap, depending how how you are about sobby movies, or you could fly into a peeve, if you're the truculent, irrascible type, in the matter of "The Miniver Story," now at the Capitol. Stick around and we'll have more of this.

The stage show at the Capitol is, on the whole, enjoyable. Miss Kay De Witt gets things off to a shiny start with an understanding account of "Nevertheless."

Mel Torme is the nominal start of the live show. I'm not sure I understand all Torme's antics—there were certainly a gang of teen-age babies in the audience who did—but he was funny mocking Perry Como and looked like an old pro sitting in for the drummer.

Winik and Mae have a better than average dance act (I seem to have seen this girl with another act sometime; she's extraordinarily graceful;) and Roy & Vicki Douglas with the ventriloquism routine, and Gautier's Bricklayers, the dog act, come off well enough.

The movie again, is the one in which Greer Garson is brave, beautiful, wise and deliberate to a thumping fault, and Walter Pidgeon is hearty, handsome and, of course, also very, very wise. The story is something about a man Miss Garson knew and who went back to his wife. "Now that I have her again, I don't need you," he writes Greer, which is making things about as clear as you'd need, seems to me. It's also about the Minivers daughter, Cathy O'Donnell, who appears to have met a man in the war and lost him, too.

I understand that Jan Struther, who wrote the original Mrs. Miniver stories, had nothing to do with this picture except cash checks tendered for the use of the name.

The film certainly has none of the simple dignity and lifelike characterization which distinguished the stories. The screen play has been written by Ronald Millar and George Froeschel, who have labeled some of their menfolks Spike, Steve and Toby, in an effort, I guess, to salt the thing with something earthy. H. C. Potter directed, and I'm willing to assume that he did his best with Miss Garson, but was simply unable to jar her out of the leisurely pace she sets.

"THE MINIVER STORY," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced by Sidney Franklin, directed by H. C. Potter, screenplay by Ronald Miller and George Froeschel, based on characters created by Jan Struther. At the Capitol.

Soft Hairdo Best for Expectant Mother

By Ann Lawrence

Fifth Day of Betty's Beauty Program

TO CHANGE OR NOT to change a hair-style during pregnancy? That's the question.

Whether 'tis better to stick to the tried-and-true coiffure to which you have grown accustomed, or whether to branch out and strive for something new, is now the consideration.

With the changes in a pregnant figure and the changes in the daily schedule, it is good idea to find a hair-style that is (1) softer and more feminine in dress and grooming, since this is the most feminine period in any woman's life and should be so played; (2) managed with a minimum of fuss and bother during the waiting months; and (3) easy to care for and comfortable, during the period of confinement, at the hospital and at home.

BEFORE HER PREGNANCY, Betty had worn her hair in a short cut with short ends curled to her face in the front, an almost-shingled effect in the back. About the third month, the nightly set required, the weekly trip to the beauty parlor, became too much of a burden and she began to let her hair grow. As it grew out, she pulled it back from her face, fastened it with a ribbon or a scarf. And while such a coiffure was certainly no trouble, it was, she admitted, certainly not becoming. It was too severe, too harsh, did nothing to frame her face and focus attention there, rather than on her thickening figure.

Betty's new hairdo, cut two inches below the hairline, has a slight curve up towards the face

"NEVER A SHINGLE," says James Ceasar, "for its growing out is messy and the young 'mom' cannot possibly bother having a clean-up hair trim every week, which is what a shingle requires to be kept neat."

The two-inch hairline, this expert believes, is easy to work with. If the hair is at a one-inch length, it is difficult to manipulate. The two-inch length is more adaptable to the fingers. Unless the hair is naturally curly (and Betty's is stick-straight) a very short cut must have a permanent wave to look its best.

The expectant mother might have a permanent during the third month of her pregnancy, but since hair grows quickly, she would need another before going to the hospital. And this would be a trying affair during the most uncomfortable period of her pregnancy.

A HAIR-STYLE CHANGE, prior to the seventh month, is most advisable. This gives the hair time to become trained in new directions, gives you a chance to learn to handle it without fretting and fuming.

Betty's hair is shaped with a cap-like crown. The large pin curls make safter curls or waves, for when a curl is opened, it is actually two one half waves. And the wider the circumference, the wider the curl. More curls will create kink and fuzz, rather than body.

The back of the new coif is brushed up one layer of hair supporting the other at the back. Deep waves at the side, another matter of wide spacing in curls and waves, help to frame Betty's face. The hair goes back off the face at the temples, then curls softly over the tips of the ears.

While she's in the hospital, Betty can turn this simple hair-do into a "Beau Catcher," by catching the ends up in a ribbon, about 1-inch wide and raising the hair ends off the nape of the neck in a modified Greek fashion. Her face will still be framed by the soft, side waves.

Physician Is Indicted For Operation

Dr. Oswald D. Durant, Alexandria physician who lives at 708 Pendleton st., was indicted by an Alexandria Corporation Court jury yesterday on an abortion charge.

The surprise indictment, handed to the grand jury by Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., without the usual preliminary hearing, accused Dr. Durant of "feloniously administering drugs and things and using other means" on a 14-year-old girl "with intent to destroy her unborn child and to produce abortion and miscarriage."

It said the offense occurred on August 1 and "at divers times between August 1 and August 5.

Within an hour after the grand jury returned its report, Dr. Durant was arrested on a bench warrant and jailed in lieu of $1000 bond.

Also jailed was a Washington woman accused by the grand jury of "procuring" the abortion. She was identified as Mattie Harris, about 32, of 754 Lamont st. nw.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes, chief of the Alexandria detective bureau, said the case was first called to the attention of police by authorities at Gallinger Hospital, where the girl was admitted and had a miscarriage. Hospital authorities said, according to Hawes, they believed the miscarriage had been "artificially" induced.

Dr. Durant, 56, has been practicing medicine in Alexandria "at least 20 years," according to police. He has long been active with civic and welfare organizations, and is a member of the city's Interracial commission, dedicated to a solution of problems arising between whites and Negroes.

The two indictments were among a total of 46 handed down by the Alexandria jury yesterday.

Among those indicted was Reginald K. Huff, 30, 2301 Cathedral ave., a warehouse employe charged with murder in the death of John W. Oliver, 49, 1614 Suter st., on July 29. Police said Oliver died of injuries sustained in a fist fight with Huff, following a card game altercation in a private home at 327 W. Globe rd., Alexandria.

The jury also indicted Virgil Shipes, 38, 1513 Meridan st., nw., on a charge of raping a 12-year-old girl in May, 1949. The girl has since had a baby, according to police.

A two-count arson indictment was returned against John T. McGalliard, 35, 201 Lynhaven dr., Alexandria, who is accused by police of setting fire to his upholstering shop last August in an effort to collect insurance.

12,500 Idled In Auto Plant After Fight

DETROIT, Nov. 3 (AP).—A battle of the sexes erupted in a Detroit auto plant today for the second time within a week, and 12,500 workers were idled as a result.

Chrysler's Plymouth division assembly lines were halted after a woman driving cars to a parking lot slapped her CIO United Auto Workers Union steward in an argument.

The name of neither was learned immediately.

Both, a company spokesman said, were suspended pending an investigation. A sympathy strike among other drivers resulted because the woman was not allowed to return to her job. Plymouth then sent 7500 workers home and the Briggs Manufacturing Co., Plymouth body builder, sent another 5500 home.

The argument and slapping purportedly resulted when the woman driver confronted the steward with a report she had learned he planned to turn her in for company disciplining for driving too fast from the assembly line to the parking lot.

60 Women Back at Work After 'Sweater' Walkout

DETROIT, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Sixty women workers who went out in a "sweater strike" to protest the clothes a co-worker wears were back at work today—but still grumbling.

The women walked out of the Zenith carburetor plant in objection to the tight-fitting sweater of Mrs. Kay Kondos.

"It isn't what she wears," said one disgruntled woman employe, "it's the way she wears it."

A prudent silence was maintained by John F. Bommarito whom Mrs. Kondos' husband punched in the nose for an alleged "friendly pat" he gave the sweater girl.

"I'm keeping hands off the whole thing," said Bommarito.

"I may have given her a passing glance or two. But I sure never made any passes at her. I just barely know the woman."

He charged Nick Kondos with assault. Kondos pleaded innocent and was freed on $500 bond to await trial November 9.

Company officials closed the plant Wednesday when the women walked out in support of Bommarito.

Officials of the CIA Auto Workers induced the 1300 workers to return to the plant and hope for cold weather.

St. Louis Phone Service Disrupted by Walkout

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Telephone service in the St. Louis area was disrupted today by the walkout of 5000 employes of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. workers.

A spokesman for the utility said three fourths of its 6500 employes were off their jobs. Dial service in the city proper was not affected but manual exchanges in suburban areas in Missouri and Illinois were on an emergency basis.

The utility said the growing walkout began after six Southwestern employes, members of Division 20 of the CIO Communications Workers of America, were suspended for refusing to work last night after Western Electric workers called an unexpected strike.

The company said it was handling only emergency long-distance calls.

Thieves Dare Fate

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Undaunted by the presence of 50 officers from at least 12 cities attending the State Police Officers' convention, thieves today staged a $25,000 jewelry store robbery.

FCC Head Says Hallicrafters Are Trying to Deceive Public

By the United Press

The color television fight boiled over again today when Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission accused a Chicago TV set maker of trying to deceive and frighten the public.

He aimed the shaft at the Hallicrafters Co., which ran an advertisement in a Chicago newspaper entitled "Five Men Against the American Way." It assailed the FCC's approval of Columbia Broadcasting System's mechanical TV color wheel.

Denouncing the ad as "pretty contemptible," Coy said in a letter to Hallicrafter President W. J. Halligan the "American way" is sacred to him. He added he resented "attempts such as yours to debase the coinage of words, through such a malicious smear campaign."

To Give Public Inventions

Coy said the commission's decision to permit CBS to start commercial color operations Nov. 20 will give the televiewing public "the advantage of new inventions as soon as they are developed."

"The hidden ball trick is a fine piece of football strategy," he said. "But when it is employed by a large radio manufacturer in an advertisement to deceive and frighten the public on such an important issue as color television, it becomes pretty contemptible."

He suggested Hallicrafter follow the lead of "some other progressive manufacturers" and turn out adapters and converters to permit the nation's 8,000,000 present television sets to receive CBS color pictures.

Hallicrafter, one of several major TV manufacturers who are opposing the commission's order, contended it should have waited until a system was devised which would have permitted present sets to receive color without buying additional equipment.

Must Buy Adapters

To receive CBS color in black and white, present set owners must buy adapters costing from $35 to $50. Color converters may cost up to $90. A rival system developed by Radio Corp. of America but rejected by the FCC would permit present owners to receive color in black and white. They would need converters for color.

Some smaller set-makers have announced they will manufacture CBS-type adapters and converters. The bigger firms are holding out, however, and RCA has filed suit in Federal District Court in Chicago to sidetrack the FCC decision.

Coy said if the commission had postponed its color decision any longer, even more people would have bought current television set models. Then, when color finally was approved, he said, they too would have had to buy adapters or converters.

Pointless to Wait

"The commission's opinion is that it is pointless to wait any longer for any other system to make good on oft' repeated promises of a satisfactory performance," he said. "We have selected a system that works now—today. We have preferred performance over promises."

Meantime, the General Electric Co. announced development of a new telecasting system that should improve picture detail in black and white sets. The system has been submitted to the FCC for approval.

Dr. W. R. G. Baker, GE vice president and general manager of its electronic department, said the system increases the horizontal size of pictures about 50 percent and should give "excellent texture in the sense that no dot structure should be visible."

He said it would not affect reception by present sets.

$18,000 Taken From Safes; Cashier Sought

Two safes were rifled and $18,000 in small bills taken at the Coca-Cola plant, 400 7th st. sw. sometime early yesterday.

A lookout was broadcast by police through the East for the company's cashier, James Norman Eshelman, 40, of 1126 16th st. S., Arlington, who, police said, is missing.

The theft was discovered about 7:30 a. m. Frank D. Noel, manager, told police $12,000, representing receipts and payroll, was taken from one safe, and $6000, representing the night deposits of drivers, from another.

Both safes were locked when he left the plant Thursday evening, Noel told police. They said he added that only three persons, one of them Eshelman, knew the combinations of the safes.

Police said Eshelman was seen entering the plant shortly after 7 p. m. Thursday. His wife told them he left home around 7 o'clock to attend a lodge meeting and did not return.

The lookout described him as a short man, of stocky build, with dark hair balding and wearing glasses. He is believed to be driving a 1949 dark green sedan, according to the lookout.

Police said Eshelman had worked at the plant here for 15 years, and had been employed at the Coca-Cola plant in Parkersburg, W. Va., for 13 years prior to that.

Noel said the theft must have happened sometime after 10 p. m. Thursday.

Farran, Martin Cases Studied By Trial Board

Two policemen, who were cleared in District Court of charges of stealing two air conditioners, yesterday appeared before a Police Trial Board on other charges growing out of the incident.

The Trial Board charges against Pvt. Warran G. Farran, of the Eighth Precinct, were conduct unbecoming an officer, refusal to respond to the questioning of superior officers, willingly and knowingly making an untruthful statement and failing to maintain constant patrol.

His partner, Pvt. Henry Martin, was tried on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, making an untruthful verbal report, failing to make constant patrol, making an untruthful statement and conduct prejudicial to the force.

The Board took the case under consideration.

The larceny charge was dismissed against Farran Wednesday in District Court at the request of the Government. An earlier verdict of conviction had been set aside after the court learned the chief Government witness had a serious criminal record.

The grand larceny charge against Martin had been dismissed in District Court for lack of evidence.

Chicago Man Renounces U.S. Citizenship

PRAGUE, Nov. 3 (AP).—Morton Nadler, 29, of Chicago, renounced his United States citizenship here today.

The American embassy said he took the oath of renunciation with the explanation that he intended to become a citizen of Czechoslovakia in order to remain here and help "build socialism."

Nadler is an engineer who works for Tesla, government-owned manufacturer of radio and electronics equipment.

Embassy officials said the oath does not automatically relieve him of his U. S. citizenship. Under the 1940 Nationality Act, they said, the final decision is up to the State Department, which may or may not issue a certificate of loss of citizenship.

Nadler arrived in Prague in 1948, with his wife and a daughter. Asked about his wife's intentions, Nadler replied: "She will have to decide for herself."

Dugan Will Ask 5-Day Week for Police, Firemen

Arlington County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan said yesterday he will call for a five-day week for county policemen and firemen at today's board meting.

To prepare for the step, he said he would ask County Manager A. T. Lundberg to compare the cost of the five-day week with that of the present six-day schedule in both departments.

Since other county employes now work only five days a week, Dugan said, it is unfair to require police and firemen to work longer."

Crime Unit Calls Distillers to Tell Of Gang 'Invasion'

Senate crime investigators yesterday called on some of the Nation's biggest distillers to be ready to tell next week what they know about the underworld's "invasion" of the wholesale liquor business.

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said his special crime investigating committee has invited spokesmen for seven distilleries to take part in a "roundtable discussion" next Wednesday.

Detailed questionnaires were sent last week to some 300 distillers and processors after Kefauver charged that "hoodlums" had "moved in" on liquor distributorships in several large cities.

Oh, It's TV Time

A 405-Line Girl, A 525-Line Guy

By John Crosby

WHAT I'M WAITING FOR, what we're all waiting for, what the world is waiting for, is not the sunrise but a song about television. I can't imagine what Tin Pan Alley is up to these days, to neglect so large a subject. Heaven knows, when the Oldsmobile came along it was commemorated in song almost before the last rivet was in place. The flying machine (Come, Josephine) was suitably lyricized almost before the Wright brothers got the darn thing off the ground.

Crosby

What's the mater with television, boys?

"She was a vision.
"On television . . ."
"I'm just spitballing here, Mannie, but you can see right away it can't miss. Or how about this?
"He was emcee on N. B. C.-TV.
"In Black and White.
"She was in color, you see.
"On C. B. S.-TV
"They couldn't get married
"For fear of the F. C. C."

Well, yes it needs work but you see what I'm getting at, Mannie. I mean here is this girl in four colors—a 405 line girl—and here is this guy in black and white—a 525 line guy. If ever there were a couple of star-crossed lovers . . . well, its just crying for a blues song. After all, Romeo and Juliet had nothing between them but a family quarrel. These two got the Federal Communications Commission, a court action in Chicago, a whirling disk, the dot sequential system—gonna be rough to get a rhyme for that—and a whole mess of advanced mathematics.

Things were a lot simpler for the songwriters when they invented the Oldsmobile. But then things were a lot simpler for everyone. We've all had to bone up on a lot of complicated things since those days and there's no reason why the songwriters shouldn't keep pace with the increasing complexity of civilization. If the songwriters can't find a rhyme for electronics, they are failing in their responsibilities.

FOR SOME REASON which eludes me, I happen to be staring at the prop list for "The John Hopkins Science Review," a TV show emanating in Baltimore, on the subject, "Electrons at Work." The electrons must have brought this prop list up here personally because I can't think how else it arrived. Anyhow, here are a few of the props for that show—vacuum tube and socket set, two-volt meter, oscilloscope with tube shade, Crookes tube, girl to sing song.

It's that last prop that worries me. I don't know how good the prop man is on that show and I just wanted to advise him that that particular prop—girl to sing song—requires very special handling. For one thing, she should be kept at room temperature; for another she should be fed fairly regularly.

Any good prop man can take care of an oscilloscope with tube shade but not every prop man is adept at the special requirements of a girl to sing song. Oscilloscopes don't vary much from place to place but girls who sing songs do, and the requirements for each girl changes, depending who the girl-singer is. If it's Ethel Merman, for example, you'll have to get rid of that two-volt meter. Ethel is wried for 112 volts. She'd blow all the fuses in the place.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It'll Be a Good Trick, Especially If He Can Do It

There's going to be a super-duper chicken fry and barbecue at the Hybla Valley Airport, 3 miles south of Alexandria on U. S. 1, tomorrow afternoon and evening, from noon to 10 p. m.

For two bucks ($1 for children under 12) you not only get your food but continuous entertainment by the likes of the Grand Ole Opry's Texas troubador, Ernest Tubb, the Swing Boys, Don Patton and Billy Byrd. All proceeds go to the Fairfax County police safety education program.

Connie B. Gay is scheduled to act as master of ceremonies. But he was in George Washington University Hospital earlier this week, suffering from an acute attack of bursitis in his left arm and a broken right arm.

"Who's going to pinch hit for you, Connie?" I asked.

"Nobody," snapped Gay. "I've still got legs, and if I don't break one of them meantime, I'll be there."

The 1200 kids in the Fairfax County Safety Patrol need dough, and Connie means to do his part to see that they get it. Show people are like that.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Why are Government workers permitted to come in at noon with only one hour charged against them, or leave at noon with only two hours charged against them?

Mr. and Mrs. H.

Dear H's:

Jerry Kluttz says this is certainly not a general practice, though it may be true in some particular office.

I hear a lot of griping about Federal workers who "cheat the taxpayers," but I've never received a specific complaint that stood up under investigation.

If you have the facts, I'll be glad to check them and print the outcome.

Bill.

KID STUFF

Blanche Berlin of 812 Randolph st. nw. passes along a story about a 6-year-old friend of hers named Elaine.

Elaine was out driving with her parents one day and, as they passed Blair House, her daddy said: "Look, Elaine, there's the President and his wife."

At school the next morning the teacher asked the children for any current events discussion they might have to offer, and Elaine immediately volunteered: "I saw the President and his wife yesterday."

"How interesting," prompted the teacher. "And what is the President's name?"

"George Washington is dead," corrected a little boy in the back of the room.

"He is indeed," said the teacher. "Elaine, did you mean you saw Mr. Truman and his wife?"

"That's right," said Elaine. "That's his name now."

CAMPAIGN DAZE

The Republicans are going to save us from the Democrats; the Democrats are going to save us from the Republicans; and both of them are pledged to save us from the Communists. Now all we need is somebody who can save us from ourselves.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Adorable kittens, Siamese, Persian, pure white, black and tiger." (Wisconsin 3541.)

"Playful 6-week-old kittens." (Sligo 1727.)

THESE MODERN TIMES

I woke up with a charleyhorse yesterday morning, but didn't get very much sympathy from the lady of the house.

"Take a nice hot bath," she suggested. "You'll live through it."

So I took a nice hot bath and soaked my aching leg in silent comfort for a while. My reverie was broken by a startling thought.

"Good grief," I exclaimed, "do you realize this is the first bath I've had in years?"

"Not so loud," came the muffled reply through the bathroom door. "The neighbors might misunderstand."

I can't remember exactly when it happened, but some place along the line I switched from tubbing to showering. And now that I reconsider the situation, I suspect that I've been missing out on one of the better things of life.

Soaking in a tub of hot water is good for what ails a man. Especially if he brings along something interesting to read.

A quick shower is all right for a man of affairs whose time is limited. But I've got more time than Bulova, and now that I've rediscovered the joys of bathing I'm afraid I'll soon win back my title as Washington's worst bathroom bottleneck.

BUT HIS LEASE ISN'T UP YET

Alarmed by the recent gunplay, Democrats would like to get Mr. Truman out of Blair House for security reasons. Republicans would just like to get him out of Blair House, period.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

O'Konski's Campaigning Eyed

By Drew Pearson

Shortly after elections kindly United States Attorney General Howard McGrath may have a test of the Corrupt Practices Act laid on his doorstep which he isn't going to appreciate.

O'Konski

The Corrupt Practices Act was passed in order to prevent candidates for public office from spending huge amounts of money, thus making it difficult for a poor man to be elected. However, candidates have got around the act by claiming they had no control over friends or independent committees who spent money for them without their knowledge. They could not be responsible, they said, for money which well-meaning boosters spent behind their backs.

Thanks to this dodge, thousands of dollars are being spent by both Democrats and Republicans in what is obviously a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act. And not since hard-hitting Alex Campbell left the Justice Department has there been any real attempt to prosecute.

In Wisconsin, however, there is now evidence of a clear-cut violation—by Congressman Alvin O'Konski, already famous for his nepotism, his income-tax finagling and his payroll juggling.

Smokescreen for $$ Officially, O'Konski spends little money on his election campaigns. His chief electioneering has been done by the "Veterans for O'Konski Club," which has spent money heavily.

President of the "Veterans for O'Konski Club" is Wendell Johnson. And it now develops that Johnson is on O'Konski's congressional payroll in Washington for $218 a month. Actually Johnson doesn't work in Washington. He remains in Merrill, Wis., where he has an office at WLIN, the radio station owned by O'Konski, and has been the station manager.

This dispels any fiction that the Congressman doesn't know what Johnson as president of the "Veterans for O'Konski Club" is doing and how much money the club is spending. A a direct employe of the Congressman, drawing a salary paid by all the taxpayers, the usual dodge for violating the Corrupt Practices Act blows up in smoke.

Note — Attorney General McGrath has had a clear-cut case of salary kickbacks against O'Konski for months but has failed to prosecute. The Congressman put members of a weekly newspaper staff in Hurley, Wis., on his congressional payroll, thereby reimbursing them for the purchase price of the paper. Thus the taxpayers actually paid for the purchase of O'Konski's newspaper. However, it looks as if the Justice Department only likes to prosecute Congressmen who have gone after Communists—such as J. Parnell Thomas.

Merry-Go-Round

Senator Taft is reported gaining on Democratic Joe Ferguson in the last couple of weeks . . . Congressman Clarence Brown, Taft's No. 1 Ohio brain truster, admits to friends: "In ten years I've never had such a tough fight." However, he'll probably win . . . Congressman Ed Breen, ex-mayor of Dayton, may be the next Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio if he comes back to Congress with sufficient majority . . . Democrat Charles Buckley of the Bronx, sometimes called the Phantom Congressman because of his long absences, is likely to be defeated by Max Bloom of the New York Liberal Party . . . Alex Campbell, Democratic candidate for the Senate in Indiana, is descended from Alexander Campbell, founder of the Christian Church, otherwise known as "Campbellites." In Oklahoma, a preacher in the same church, "Billy Sunday" Alexander, is also running for the Senate—but on the GOP ticket . . . The two candidates with the greatest amounts to spend on billboards appear to be Taft in Ohio and Nixon in California. Nixon has so much money that he even puts billboards across the border in Mexico.

Idaho Scandals

Idaho, famous for its Senator Borah and Cowboy Glen Taylor, who deserted the Democratic Party for Henry Wallace, is likely to stage some political surprises. Local scandals have mixed things up . . . It all began with a State liquor and Insurance scandal which the GOP-controlled State Legislature tried to shush. However, the irate people of Idaho, many of them Mormons, took things into their own hands, and a grand jury demanded prosecutions. Eventually the State purchasing agent, Harold Boyd, got 10 years in jail, while the liquor law enforcement chief, Clarence Saunders, was fired . . . All this has seriously hurt GOP Candidate Henry Dworshak who had been defeated by the late Senator Bert Miller in 1948 and is trying to stage a comeback. Running against him is a live-wire farm-implement salesman and history professor, Claude Burtenshaw . . . On the other hand, the Democrat who defeated Glen Taylor in the primaries, ex-Senator Worth Clark, is pretty sure to lose.

Political Grapevine

A bribery prosecution may be in the works for a Negro newspaper in Los Angeles in connection with political advertising . . . The editor of a newspaper (white) on the outskirts of Los Angeles tells how he was offered $1000 in Nixon advertising if he would come out editorially for Nixon. He refused . . . San Bernardino, vice mecca for Angelenos since Mayor Bowron's cleanups, seems certain to kick out its present sheriff and elect Gene Mueller, an F. B. I. police-academy graduate . . . In Ohio a lot of Republicans are cutting the G. O. P. candidate for Governor, Don H. Ebright, in order to vote for the Democratic Governor Lausche because of Lausche's silent support for Taft . . . A big Republican vote is expected in North Carolina—cast by Democrats in protest against the primary campaign tactics of Willis Smith . . . In South Carolina not too many folks will bother about voting. With the issues decided in the primaries, South Carolina is chiefly looking forward to what ex-Secretary of State Jimmie Byrnes is going to say about his ex-boss in the White House when Jimmie becomes Governor.

Jazzed-up Diplomacy

Troubled by the fact that Comrade Vishinsky steals the play at Lake Success, the United States delegation is putting a new spice into its speeches. Witness the reference to Frank Sinatra by staid Wall Street Lawyer John Foster Dulles.

Dulles had carefully prepared a speech rebutting Vishinsky on the hot question of voiding the veto. It was mimeographed and issued to the press. But when newsmen listened to the speech, something new had been added.

"We are hearing the same old song from Mr. Vishinsky," explained Mr. Dulles. "But are we bobby-soxers who swoon when our modern Frank Sinatra croons?"

It was a good try, but Vishinsky got the headlines just the same.

Polio Cases Drop for Fifth Week in Row

The national incidence of infantile paralysis continued to wane last week, the fifth consecutive decrease, it was reported yesterday.

New cases for the week throughout United States totaled 1316, as compared to 1549 cases reported in the previous week, the Public Health Service said.

Last week's new cases brought to 26,698 the total number for the current "disease" year, begun in mid-March. For the same seasonal period last year the total was 37,218.

For the week, the District of Columbia showed up with 6 new cases on the national tables; Maryland reported 31 cases, and Virginia 36.

Public Health Service also reported that the polio peak was reached the week ending September 30, the latest peak occurrence in 18 years. Last year it was reached in the week ending August 20.

In other national death rate statistics, PHS statisticians noted that the general death rate in July was estimated at 8.8 per 1000 population, a low record for the month. Previous low July death rates were 9.1 per 1000 population, recorded in 1946 and in 1948.
